

CELEBRATE FEAST OF TABERNACLES

Jewish People Are Temperate Says Rabbi Cronbach—Only Peace is That Which Comes From the Almighty.

The feast of tabernacles was observed Sunday morning at Temple Beth-El. A tabernacle of the traditional type stood upon the altar. The choir was assisted by the Jewish chorus. Mr. Hans Roeder played a cello solo. Rabbi Cronbach spoke as follows:

"Christian temperance workers occasionally tell me that if all people were temperate as the Jews there would be no need of temperance agitation or prohibition campaigns. "It is a familiar fact that saloons do not thrive in a Ghetto. When the Jews move into a neighborhood the saloons move out.

"It is out of sympathy with the difficulties and efforts of our non-Jewish fellow citizens that I watch with interest the attempts to reduce and abolish drunkenness. "You need not be a prohibitionist, you need not be a teetotaler. Still you surely cannot deny that drunkenness is a frightful curse and that to get rid of drunkenness no pains or sacrifices should be regarded as excessive.

"The tendency in religion has been to emphasize and perhaps over-emphasize that rest is holy. Work has been carried on under conditions that are largely unfair and unwholesome and that is how work got to be looked upon as something unholy and profane.

"As the conditions of labor get to be more humane, wholesome and fair, the holiness of work will get to be more and more a part of our faith. To make people work excessively and to underpay them for their work is not only wicked, it is sacrilegious, it is abusing a holy thing. "There is a joy above all joys, the joy of the heart that has found its place and its peace in God. How real is that joy—the joy that does not depend on circumstances or conditions, the joy of knowing that He, the Infinite Light, the Everlasting Grace, is yours, your very own.

"The joy that need not be bolstered up by success or flattery or comfort or bright prospects, the joy that you carry around in your heart's innermost shrine! The storm of life touch that joy, the gloom of death cannot frighten that joy.

"We have to pass through pain and anguish to win that joy. Heart-persevering sacrifices have to be made. We have to be humbled in the dust, many a time, before we can be lifted up into this joy of joys. Cherished ambitions must be renounced, fond hope must be immolated upon self-denial's altar.

"I never pray in this pulpit that distress and trouble may always be far. To do so might be to pray for the death of this joy consummation. "I love the joy of our Sunday school, I love those who are not in our Sunday school. Just because I love them I would not wish that their lives be an interrupted run of success and success. "Just because I love them I want them to know what anguish is, just because I love them I want them to know how the bitter cup tastes. Just because I love them I want them to pass through defeat and disappointment till, wearied of life's shams, disatisfied with life's tinsels, they fly for refuge into the arms of Him who is the rock of ages, the one fixed stake to which the spirit may cling amidst life's storms and floods."

NEAR-SIDE STOP IS MADE BY CARS

New System Went Into Effect Sunday and While It Took Some Hustling Few People Missed the Cars.

Did you go to the "far side" of the street yesterday to get on a car and while standing there did you see the car stop on the "near side?" You did? And then, you had to hustle across to the other side to get on before the motorman put on his juice.

Well, that all came about because yesterday the street railway company put into effect the "near side stop" resolution adopted two weeks ago by the council. When they adopted it the provision was made that it go into effect no later than Nov. 15 and since the street car company had nearly all of its "stops" painted it put the new system in action yesterday.

According to Supt. F. I. Hardy everything went off smoothly with the exception of a few instances where the prospective patrons were not aware of the new stop system. All poles on the "near" side of the street have been decorated with a ring of white above and below a bigger ring of black. And in the street next to the car track is another wide strip of white which gives the passengers a line on where the cars will stop. It is also an aid to the motorman.

Mr. Hardy explained the white strip on the pavement as an adaptation from the New York "safety zone." The "safety zone" is a square of white cement near the tracks to guide passengers to the point where the car will stop. The safety of it lies in protection. It affords passengers against automobiles and other vehicles as they must avoid crossing these squares of white cement.

With the exception of five or six cases all poles have been painted with the "near side stop" sign, said Mr. Hardy. A few others will be relocated, a mistake having been made by the markers.

BELGIAN ARMY IS NOW AT OSTEND TO JOIN ALLIES

Surprise Attack of Franco-British Forces at Quaterich Prevents Germans From Cutting Off Retreating Army.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Germans, cheated of their chance of cutting off the retreating Belgian and British army of defense in its flight from Antwerp by the severe check administered in the surprise attack by Franco-British forces at Quaterich near Termonde, are now advancing rapidly on Ostend in the hope of capturing King Albert and the entire Belgian government.

The Belgian field army, assisted valiantly by large detachments of British cavalry, infantry and the British naval brigade which eluded the German flanking movement near Selzaete has made good its orderly retreat and the main body has succeeded in reaching Ostend safely and intact. It is now in a position to effect a consolidation with the allies. As soon as this junction is a fact, the Belgians, the British and the French will form a new line to the south and east of Ostend for the defense of the new Belgian temporary capital and resume the offensive operations against the German lines in Belgium.

Refugees from Bruges and Eecloo, including many women and children, are flocking into Ostend fearful of the coming of the Germans. They report large bodies of uhlans scouting in the vicinity of these two cities and spreading terror as they advance.

Berlin dispatches report that the 200,000 troops who formed the besieging army before Antwerp, together with the heavy artillery used in the bombardment will be immediately transported to France and that Antwerp will be made to serve as a sea base for a new campaign against England in which mines and submarines will play an important part.

These dispatches also state that the headquarters of the German general staff officially announces the capture of Antwerp and add that they cannot estimate the number of prisoners taken. "We took enormous quantities of supplies of all kinds," says the official German statement that the German military commander of Antwerp has warned the people against committing overt acts against the Germans which will be punished according to the laws of war, and he adds, "may lead to the demolition of your beautiful city." Personal protection and immunity from property loss are promised those who abstain from hostile acts.

Prince Enters City. Prince August Wilhelm, the fourth son of the Kaiser, was among the first to penetrate the fortifications at Antwerp. The prince sent an enthusiastic message to the Kaiser who replied, bestowing the Iron cross upon the prince and upon German soldiers who followed him into the city.

The losses sustained by the Germans in the battle near Termonde where they were forced to cross the Scheldt under heavy fire were enormous. This is the first instance since the beginning of the war in which a surprise attack has been carried to a successful conclusion. The presence of the French and British allies in great force in this vicinity has been successfully hidden even from the scouting aviators.

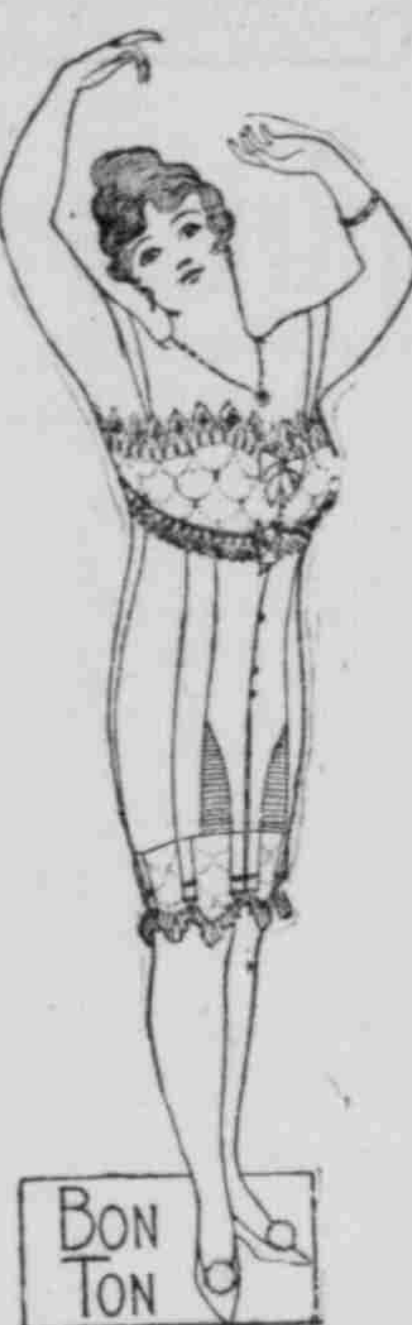

The Germans are striving desperately to gain control of all the railroad lines in northern and western Belgium to block the onward march of the French into Belgium. Meanwhile the allies are striking at the railroads now held by the Kaiser with equal determination. The rapid transfer of the force of allies to Termonde shows the surprising development of the French system of transport.

It is reported here that Germany is preparing to force its war demands against Holland and that it will lay claim to the mouth of the Scheldt on the ground that it is necessary as an emergency war measure against Great Britain. The Scheldt which makes
