

Makes Face Young— Lightens Love Ties

A freckled expression, a wrinkled face and a faded complexion, do more to drive the male members from home than is commonly supposed. It was one of my greatest difficulties to appear smiling, fresh and elegant when my dear ones were with me. But I have overcome all that. I have changed my mental attitude and I now find it second nature to look cheerful. Due partly to this, partly to a remarkable treatment recommended by a friend my appearance has improved I look fifteen years younger than before.

A simple face lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered azoic acid in a half pint of water, washed my face with it. I used it with a brush, rubbed it in, and then washed it off. I still use this occasionally. To regenerate my complexion I purchased an ounce of ordinary sized wax at my drugstore and before using this up, a marvelous transformation had taken place. It was like removing an unsightly mask, revealing a new face. A youthful complexion of distinctive delicacy, clear, white and velvety. I merely applied the wax like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off mornings. Ten days treatment sufficed. "Aurilia" is Clubwoman.

GERMANS READY TO PULL SURPRISE

New Guns Much Larger Than Those Used at Antwerp Will Take Part in Attacks on Other Towns.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Germans are preparing to spring an even greater surprise on the world than their new 42 centimeter guns that have demolished modern fortresses in this war much as if such obstacles were built of cards. Within a few weeks the Germans will introduce to the world and at the same time to the allies, their latest invention of war, the king of cannon, the 52 centimeter (20 inch) gun of which the Krupp have spent months perfecting. The statement was made by Adolph F. Gall, mechanical expert for the Thomas A. Edison Co., who returned from Germany today on the Helligolav. Mr. Gall said that he got this information from two officers of the German general staff, with whom he came in touch during his five weeks' stay in Berlin.

"The Germans intend to go further than the capture of Antwerp," said Mr. Gall. "The two officers of the general staff told me that the Germans intended to sweep down the coast, take Ostend and push on until she is within striking distance of England. For this purpose she has her new marvelous 52 centimeter gun. The gun has been kept secret, even army officers did not know about it.

"These big guns are all worked and manned by Krupp engineers and not by regular soldiers," he added.

"The Germans have more Zeppelins than the world at large imagines. Whole fleets of them are lying idle awaiting the signal for their invasion of England."

FRIENDS TO PAY JENNINGS' FINE

Rally to Assistance of Officer Found Guilty by Board— Claim It Would Be Easy Matter to Raise $500.

Friends of Harry Jennings, patrolman of the city police department, who was fined a month's pay, and given a severe reprimand for drinking intoxicating liquor, while on duty, by the board of safety at a meeting held Monday morning, have raised $75 for the officer, thus relieving him of the heavy fine. The subscription was raised among business and professional men who have known Jennings during his career as a police officer of the South Bend department and the money has been turned over to him.

Charges were preferred against Jennings by Chief of Police Kerr at the instigation of John A. Hilberd, member of the board of safety, who stated that he had seen the officer drinking in the saloon of Clarence Elliott on Polk st., while in full uniform and on duty. Jennings admitted the charge when he appeared before the board but stated that he was on his way home to noon lunch and considered himself off duty. The board placed the fine of one month's salary upon the officer at the conclusion of his testimony.

"Five hundred could have been raised for Harry Jennings if it were necessary," declared one of the leading subscribers to the fund Tuesday night. "The money was secured from citizens who wish to express their indignation with the act of the board of safety. Jennings is a man with a family and carries three bullet wounds in his body. All received while performing his duty as a police officer and protecting the citizens of South Bend. He is a clean man and if some of the members of the board of safety were as upright as Jennings they would have a perfect right to pass judgment on him."

330 Seventh Ave., New York.

"Gentlemen:—Five years ago last August I was taken to St. Francis Hospital to be treated for bronchitis and congested lungs. ### ADDRESSES WOMEN ON BIBLE STUDY

Father Conway Outlines Course for Catholic Club—Will Give Third Lecture at High School Tonight.

Father Bertrand L. Conway addressed a large assemblage of Catholic women this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the life of Christ and St. Paul. "The Practical Study of the Bible," in which he outlined a course of study to be followed particularly in the Bible classes of the Catholic club. He gave a general idea of the Bible and its history, considered together with a discussion of the various revisions and versions and interpretations. He urged that all who undertake the study of the Bible lay special stress on the life of Christ and St. Paul.

This evening at 8 o'clock Father Conway will give the third lecture of his series for non-Catholics, taking for his subject, "The Catholic Church." The talk will be preceded by the answering of the questions by interested inquirers. Several musical numbers will also be given consisting of selections from Henssey, by Frederic Ingersoll, cellist; Miss Wilda Shontz, violinist; and Miss Helen Guilfoyle, pianist. Miss Josephine Decker will give a vocal solo, "Lead Kindly Light." The introductory remarks will be given by J. Augustine Smith.

Questions and answers concerning the Catholic faith and teachings which preceded Father Conway's lecture on "The Church and the Bible" in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening, was an interesting feature of the evening's program. Twenty-six questions were dropped into the question box Monday evening following the first lecture and it was with answers to these that Father Conway prefaced his lecture Tuesday evening.

Some of the questions asked and answered were: Does not the ceremony of the Catholic church obscure the religion? Why does the church baptize infants? Why is the Catholic church opposed to Masonry? Is the church opposed to secret societies? Is the Knights of Columbus a secret organization? Does not the church pay too much devotion to the Virgin Mary? What have you to say of the Inquisition? All the questions were answered in full and with Biblical citations.

Musical numbers of a delightful nature were contributed last evening by Prof. Frederick Berryman, organist and choirmaster of the First M. E. church and by the Guilfoyle orchestra. The introductory remarks were made by E. J. Twomey.

Discusses Stand on Bible.

The substance of the lecture last evening which was again greeted by a full auditorium was as follows: "The Catholic church has always been the defender, the interpreter, the guardian of the sacred books. In the beginning of Christianity she was the first to gather the inspired writings together and to take measures to safeguard their integrity. When men assailed the authority of these writings, when they perverted the original texts, she came forth as a teacher and declared, in the name and with the infallible authority of Christ, that error and such books are inspired, others are mere human documents."

"The Catholic church claims that she alone has the right to determine what constitutes the canon of sacred books. She declares that scholars may argue for or against the authenticity of certain books, but it is her place alone to decide what are and what are not to be accepted as divinely inspired. There are 72 books in the Old and New Testament which we regard as sacred and canonical. On the authority of the church we say these writings are inspired by the Holy Ghost."

"The word 'sacred' used in connection with the scripture does not mean merely that they contain holy things, that they tell us of Christ and the prophets and so forth; that they embody beautiful moral teaching; but it means that these books we call 'sacred' have God for their author. Briefly put, our belief in the divine authorship consists in this:

"God makes a man write what He wishes to be written. He gives the writer an impulse to record certain matters; secondly, He suggests the contents of the revelation of the mind of the sacred writer."

Spirit Aids Writer.

"The writer may not at the time realize that he is inspired. He may, as in the case of St. Luke, write what has been told him by others, not having been himself an eyewitness of what he relates; thirdly, we claim that the Spirit of God assists the writer and keeps him from recording what is erroneous. At the same time we do not believe that God dictates verbally, as one dictates to his amanuensis, what a man shall write. The evangelists and other sacred writers were free intelligent agents, acting under God's influence. One man wrote in a far different literary style from another. Take St. Peter and St. Paul for example. The former, a poorly-taught fisherman, could not bring to his task the erudition of the school of St. Paul, trained in the school of Tarsus. There are verbal differences, likewise, in the accounts of the evangelists, in the narratives of the Lord's supper, the resurrection and other events. These minor discrepancies do not destroy the integrity of the sacred volume."

"The Catholic church accepts in its entirety the contents of the Old and New Testament. The church alone, voicing for us the divine, infallible teaching of Christ, guarantees the authenticity and inspiration of the 72 books that are comprised in our bible. Outside churches have omitted from the Old Testament seven books. In the time of the early Christians, even in the time of our Lord, there were differences among the Jews regarding what constituted the Old Testament. Books regarded as inspired by one class were rejected by another. The Hebrew canon of the Jews of Palestine differed from the Greek version of the Jews of Alexandria, the latter containing in addition to the books of Tobias, Judith, Wisdom, Ecclesiasticus, Baruch, and II. Machabees. The Jews in Palestine did not look upon these books as divine. The early Christians entertained doubts and differences regarding the sacred character of seven books of the New Testament that are now included in the canonical writings. They classed as doubtful Peter's second epistle to the Hebrews, John's second and third epistles, St. James, St. Jude and the Apocalypse. Other books that the councils of the church later rejected were looked upon by the Christians of those days, even in the time of our Lord, as being inspired. These were most devout books that were of their own knowledge could be distinguished from the inspired writings, yet they are not now in the Scriptures."

CONGRESS MAY WORK IN EVENINGS TO FINISH JOB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—With prospects of adjournment by the end of the week practically eliminated by the demand of the cotton senators for an amendment to the war tax bill to relieve the cotton growers, senate leaders today planned to start midnight sessions to rush through the measure. It was expected a session would be held tonight.

Democratic leaders would make no predictions as to when congress would get away, but Leader Underwood said the attitude of the southern senators on the cotton amendment practically has made impossible adjournment by Saturday. Sen. Simmons still is hopeful, however, and he insisted that a vote on the war tax bill would be reached by Saturday night. Final agreement on the cotton amendment has been reached by the southern senators. It provides for a government bond issue of $250,000,000.

No one could be found to venture a prediction as to the fate of the amendment, which is expected to come to a vote on Thursday.

Offer Amendment.

The senate finance committee has decided to offer an amendment to the bill striking out the tax on proprietary medicines. The tax on cosmetics and chewing gum will be retained. Chairman Simmons said today that the committee decided to eliminate the tax on medicines because they were used by sick and poor persons.

The committee today again took up the wine and the tobacco tax. It will recommend an amendment to the paragraph taxing shipments of newspapers so that the publishers may make sworn statements each month on the number of bundles shipped and a tax of one cent a bundle will be paid on the shipments.
