AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Despite all efforts at reform and "house cleaning" that political Auditorium stables still exist in certain sections is the thesis upon which is based "The Master Man," the first of the Frank Keenan Special Productions, which has been secured by the Auditorium for today.

"The Master Man" is a story of political life, of the "powers behind the throne," of grafters, ward-healers, bosses, and all the other unhealthy concomitants inseparable from corrupt politics. Mr. Keenan plays the part of the State attorney-general, a master-hand at political scheming, whose entire graft-built edifice tumbles to the ground when there enters into his life the one influence which can soften and bend that will of iron—a woman.

Everybody's favorite comedian Charlie Chaplin will be seen again in "Sunnyside," in which he appeared a short time ago and amused all of his followers. Saturday's bill for a feature has Peggy Hyland in "Miss Adventure," a five-reel comedy drama, with "A Pair of Deuces" a two-reel comedy and the Pathé News.

AT THE LASALLE.

The class of patrons who will feel and yield to the appeal of "Home" as a title for today's LaSalle picture, will not be disappointed and will find exactly what they seek in this simple every-day story of life. The heroine as played by Mildred Harris, who by the way is Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, is a young college girl who gives her companions the impression that she is from a home of wealth, when in reality the struggle of her parents to send her to school has been a hard one. Vacation comes and she goes to the home of one of her rich girl friends, when after numerous bitter experiences, she finds that wealth is not everything and returns to her own humble, happy home a better and wiser young woman.

AT THE CASTLE.

An intense modern drama that presents the famous emotional star, Pauline Frederick, in a role that is unlike anything she has done hitherto, in "One Week of Life," today's attraction at the Castle theater. It is an absorbing story of the narrow path, pulsing with flaming love and exciting adventure—daring in its exposure of the pitfalls of society. Cosmo Hamilton wrote the story. Willard Mack arranged it for screen presentation and his beautiful wife, Pauline Frederick is cast in the star role, a dual one. The plot is most unusual and like the author's "Who Cares?" and "Scandal!" will be found most original and entertaining.
