BIG ATTRACTION AT LINCOLN. Unique and replete with touches of originality is the description given of "A Man and His Money," the new Golden Picture, in which Tom Moore will be seen at the Lincoln theater today. It is a comedy-drama of society life, with a background of polo matches, country clubs, fashionable drawing rooms and mountain lodges. By no means a light play in spite of its delicate character drawing and satire, "A Man and His Money" tells the story of a young man who is made aware of the futility of his life when his fiancée breaks their engagement.

AT THE TEMPLE. Appearing in a new and novel screen characterization, Lina Cavalieri, one of the foremost operatic stars of the world, will appear at the Temple theatre today, in her latest Paramount starring vehicle, "The Two Brides." This is according to Manager Lambiotti, one of the most notable picture presentations of the season at this theatre.

to do after a while but for the present, at least, I am going to take it easy out on my father's farm."

Lovgren, who was not expected to furnish much new data at the Miller trial, but who came through with some details of the inner workings of the police department in the disposal of liquor seized in raids, furnished a little new testimony at his own hearing, the substance of which was that considerable liquor had been taken from the bull-pen by persons whom he claimed not to know the identity of.

When asked by Mayor Carson whether he knew of any other cases in which liquor had disappeared, besides the case of Miller, Sgt. Barnhart and Detective Koscorowski, which was admitted last Monday night, Lovgren said, "All I know is that I helped to stack bottles, jugs and suit-cases of liquor in the bull-pen as high as I could reach, and that none of the liquor is there now."

Says Bottles Disappeared. One of the board members tried to explain the absence of some of the liquor by the fact that some liquor has been confiscated by court order, but Lovgren testified that he had assisted in cleaning up after each confiscation, and that he never saw any of the pieces of the bottles which contained the "bottled-in-bond" whiskey seized in some of the raids. This bottled goods, he intimated, had been taken from the bull-pen without court order.

As was the case last Monday night, the question of how the bull-pen was unlocked that liquor might be removed, was either carefully avoided by the board, or touched upon very lightly. The only testimony on this point at either trial was that of Chief Peter Kline, who said that the only key to the bull-pen was always in the possession of himself or Assistant-Chief Cassidy. The one point emphasized by the board in its arraignment of Lovgren was that Lovgren failed to make a written report to a superior officer on the night of April 28, when he saw Sgt. Barnhart come to the station and take one suit-case of liquor, and afterwards saw "Tony" Barrett come and get the other two suit-cases.

Famous Pump Mentioned.

Dr. L. J. Smith, president of the board, even held Gasoline Sgt. Kemerley up to Lovgren as an example of the perfect policeman, Dr. Smith lauded Kemerley for reporting to his chief when he found the famous bull-pen pump in the locker of former Patrolman Bert Miller. Even the notorious pump was brought into the proceedings of the "trial." It was the unanimous opinion of the board as expressed at the hearing that the pump was never used for getting liquor from the bull-pen, thus exploding the charges which were originally brought against Miller by Chief Kline.

The hearing was supposed by law to be public. After Lovgren retired to await the decision, Harry Josephson, clerk of the board, made the suggestion that the representatives of the press be excused while the board deliberated.

Mayor Carson gave his opinion that the public has as much right to know what the board did as they did to know about the hearing of the evidence, but he was over-ruled in this by Dr. Smith, president of the board.

Over-ruled Mayor.

"I am not in favor of that," said Dr. Smith. "I don't propose to have present representatives of newspapers which intentionally, deliberately, and maliciously misrepresent us, and lie about us. Of course they will do that anyway, but I am not going to give them a handle on which to hang anything on me. The press can be excused."

Lovgren was charged with nine misdemeanors, only two of which were mentioned in the findings of the board. The charges were: misconduct, misrepresentation, failure to perform duty, failure to report the neglect of duty, violation of the rules of the department, neglect and disobedience of orders, incapacity, conduct injurious to the public welfare, and conduct unbecoming an officer. The original complaint even included immorality, but this was afterwards stricken out.

No mention was made of the incapacity charge, no attempt being made that Lovgren knows less about his business, which was driving and caring for the police automobiles, than does Gasoline Sgt. Kemerley, for example. Lovgren was recently discharged from the army, where he had charge of the upkeep of hundreds of army aircraft.
