

BUDAPEST RIOTS SHOW CONTRAST

Care-Free Days of St. Stephen Before War Are Now History.

Budapest, scene of anarchy and carnage in connection with the reported ousting of Bela Kun and his communist government, presents a pathetic contrast to the care-free days of that city as that of St. Stephen's before the war.

That historic celebration, when men wore silk shirts and the women donned 20 petticoats is described in the following bulletin from the National Geographic society, based on a communication from DeWitt Clinton Fails.

"For who St. Stephen was and why he was thus honored we must go back some 900 and odd years in Hungarian history, from which we gather the following information: Walk came to the throne of the Magyar Duchy in the year 937. He applied for and received the title of Apostolic King from Pope Sylvester II, and was crowned in Budapest in the year 1000, under the Christian name of Stephen. He did much for his countrymen to bring them into the established church, and founded throughout his kingdom churches, schools, and convents. His administration was a wise one, and so firmly did he deal with the attempted uprising of the 'Old Magyar Religion' party that his death occurred. In 1044, he left his country entirely converted to Christianity. So much had he done for the advancement of the Christian faith among the wild hordes of eastern Europe, and added to the civilization of his subjects, that he was canonized and gladly proclaimed by the Hungarians as their patron saint.

Hands Were Amputated. "When the saint passed away, in 1044, one of his hands was amputated and embalmed, and this sacred relic reposes in the court chapel of the royal palace in old Buda. Adorned with many hand-some rings, it is kept in a crystal casket, set in a beautiful golden reliquary ornamented with many precious stones. In a special shrine behind the high altar, it remains for 364 days in every year, where it can only be seen by the royal household and those having special permission. On the 25th day, the one set apart to do honor to St. Stephen, it is taken from its resting place, and with great pomp and a most brilliant escort is carried in a procession to the old Matthias church for a special memorial service. This is the only time that the reliquary is visible to the peasants and the people of the humbler classes and they come from all over Hungary on that day to do homage to the sacred relic, as it is carried through the streets.

"Fancy our famous traffic squad shutting off Third-third st., that the Waldorf-Astoria might accommodate its extra patrons at overflow tables placed outside on the asphalt! But in Budapest this was a people's festival, so buses, cabs, and wagons willingly took another street, that the city's guests might be accommodated and made comfortable and happy.

"The first thing that attracted our attention, as we drove by the walking crowds, was the change of costume of the peasants from the day before. Then all wore in their working clothes, but today they were arrayed in all their glory. The men had retained their flat hats, but had generally adorned them with flying ribbons of the national colors—red, white and green. The white divided-skirt-like trousers were ornamented on the bottoms of the legs with fringe or coarse lace, and the dark working coats had been laid aside in their place were gala ones, always colored—soft browns, reds and greens—and elaborately braided with different colored cords.

"The women retained the colored head-handkerchief, but they were newer and brighter than those worn on Saturday. Their waists were generally of white or light cotton material, sometimes gaily ornamented with coarse colored embroidery. It was the skirts that were the unique things about the costumes. Of the brightest colors, they were accordion-plaited, and stood out in the most remarkable manner. How they accomplished this was a mystery to the ladies of our party, until our trusty guide and interpreter had been interviewed. From him it was learned that no Hungarian peasant woman considers herself properly dressed for a gala occasion unless she has on at least 20 petticoats!"

LIEUT. GEYER MAKES FLYING VISIT TO CITY

Lieut. Howard Geyer, son of George Geyer, 429 N. Michigan st., arrived in South Bend Thursday afternoon, and very unexpectedly met his father, who was spending the day in the city.

Lieut. Geyer arrived in this city shortly after the noon hour and was spending a couple of hours here while awaiting a train for Camp Grant, where the meeting took place. He recently arrived in this country after serving for several months as a member of the American expeditionary forces. He was to have been discharged earlier in the week at Camp Sherman, but is being held in service pending outcome of the Mexican situation.

PLANS EXTENSION OF CHURCH WORK

Bishop White Makes Survey of Northern Indiana to Ascertain Needs.

Rev. John Hazen White, D. D., of South Bend, bishop of the Episcopal church of northern Indiana, has completed a survey of manufacturing and industrial centers in this part of the state, which he has forwarded to the national headquarters, planning intensified social service among the polyglot foreign workers. Rev. James A. Miller, rector of Trinity church in Michigan City, is chairman of the campaign committee for this diocese.

The survey contemplates an appropriation of $128,000 for increased equipment in the way of churches, settlement houses, etc., and for additional clergy. This is to establish a "point of contact" as these laborers must be approached first through service to their physical, mental and moral needs before the church can minister adequately to their spiritual needs.

Would Work in Gary. Bishop White asks that the church in his diocese be aided through the nation-wide campaign to expand its work in Gary where there are extensive manufacturing in steel and tinplate, with an annual payroll of $40,000,000, including the suburban population, 100,000 persons can be reached through the church's work in and about Gary alone. Many of these are declared to be entirely unchurched. Many of them are foreigners. Their number is increasing rapidly. The nation-wide campaign's plan for mobilizing its forces to expand its work stresses this fact.

The survey calls for the completion of the church for Italians now under way in Gary and the erection of a rectory and community house in connection with it for social and educational work among the Italian population. An Italian rector and an Italian teacher must be obtained to make effective use of this equipment. For the negro workers in the city the survey asks for $15,000 to build a church and community house and enough more money to obtain a negro clergyman and a lay worker. For a settlement on the south side the sum of $50,000 is asked. A community house is needed by Christ church and Bishop White urges the purchase of land on the east side and in Ambridge for future parishes so that the church's work among the foreign population may be adequate in the future.

Need Lay Workers. Lay workers for service among the polyglot population of East Chicago, Whiting and Hammond are wanted. East Chicago has a parish house, but no community house. Such an establishment is urgently needed as is a mission chapel at Whiting. A population of 20,000 can be touched at Whiting and 35,000 at Hammond, the survey indicates.

The total nation-wide campaign asking by the diocese of northern Indiana are $122,000 for land, buildings and equipment alone. New workers needed call for $15,000 additional. Bishop White also asks for a community house, an extra clergyman and layworker for Valparaiso for service among the students of Valparaiso university and the residents of the city.

DAVIS, Calif., Aug. 21.—"Send an expert" has been the cry of puzzled California horticulturists to the University of California college of agriculture. "Send a picture—too busy to leave," is the new reply of the college. By means of studying photographs submitted of ailing trees or bushes, the college experts are saving time and traveling expense. Problems concerning pruning especially are handled with ease, the college returning the photograph with a letter advising what branches should be lopped off or what should be done to improve the fruit tree.

JEWISH RELIEF DRIVE SUCCESS

Extend Vote of Thanks to Mayor Carson and the Press.

Liberal contributions from the citizens of South Bend toward the Jewish Relief fund were recorded at the close of the Tag day held on Thursday. Approximately $1,200 was realized. The fund of the campaign will be used for relief purposes among the Jewish war victims in Europe.

The campaign for funds started early in the morning. An organization of young women canvassed the entire city selling tags, meeting unusual success.

Adopt Vote of Thanks. The committee in charge of the Tag day adopted a vote of thanks to Mayor Carson for issuing the proclamation authorizing the sale of tags, to the press and to the citizens of the city for supporting the movement.

The press committee of the Jewish Tag day included, M. E. Gilman, chairman, M. Feldman and M. Brodsky.
