

SET PRICES FOR CITY MARKET TO CUT COSTS, VIEW

Method of Charges to Public is Investigated and Found Very Unstable.

South Bend's city market will never be a success until a price is set by the city, according to the opinion of a number of business men who visited the city market Thursday morning and found prices in a number of cases above those of the grocers.

Information acquired from truckers and gardeners on the market was to the effect that there is no price set by anyone, but that they arrive at the market and ask the man next to them what the articles are selling for and place that price on their produce.

The trouble, as found through investigation, is that hucksters and peddlers of the city are among the first arrivals at the market in the morning and in order that their trade for the remainder of the day is not spoiled, set a high price on the goods, which is immediately taken up by the producers as satisfactory.

A clear example of this fact was furnished by a woman who visited the market Thursday morning. On seeing a farmer drive up with a load of tomatoes she asked the price. He said he was not sure what others were charging but would sell them for $1.25 per bushel. She quickly purchased a bushel of number one tomatoes and left.

The farmer was satisfied that this price would warrant his raising them but on inquiring from other wagons soon learned that they were selling them for $2.25 a bushel. His wagon was visited again some time later in the morning and it was found that he was charging the new price.

Efforts were made to reach Charles A. Carls, food administrator, who is launching a campaign against the high cost of food but it was learned at his office that he is out on a 10-day trip. His assistant has been instructed to do nothing but what he has been assigned to do and according to the office assistant, Carls has been said relative to the city market and its prices.

Other cities have struck at their city markets as the most logical place of reducing the H. C. L. Advisory committee have been named to make thorough investigations and in a number of instances the prices have been greatly reduced.

Eliminate Middleman. A get price has been placed on farm produce at other cities by which the producers must go to and hucksters or anyone who does not grow the crop is unable to get a stall on the market place. This plan eliminates the middleman who goes to the markets early in the morning and succeeds in setting a price that will not hurt his business during the rest of the day.

One fruit dealer living 25 miles from South Bend was asked whether or not the city sealer has ever instructed him as to how much he shall charge for his goods and he answered, "I should say not. Whenever that time comes I won't drive 25 miles to market my goods when they are at three or four markets nearer to my farm than South Bend." On being asked why he didn't see why he should when he can make up for the extra time and gasoline along with a fair profit by bringing the fruit to South Bend.

Prices are High. Since prices are set by the hucksters who arrive early they naturally are all as high and often higher than the prices of the retailers. Tomatoes were $2.25 on the market while they were but $1.75 at a number of the groceries. Eggs sold for 25 and 50 cents and could be purchased at the stores at from 50 to 52 cents. Potatoes were 50 and 51 on the market and 52 and 50 cents at the stores.

One grocer said he buys a number of articles from farmers who visit the markets and fails to sell all his goods. He also said he makes a good profit in the deal.

Big Bill and Jim Cutting Contest Big Eater Title

"Bill" Hosinski, the traffic cop, is running a race with "Jim" Cutting, acting police captain, to see who is the biggest eater of the two.

As a "start off" this morning "Big Bill" said he ate 10 apple sized hen eggs, 10 pancakes, three cups of coffee, 10 slices of bacon and half of a watermelon. He said this constitutes his breakfast every morning.

"Jim" Cutting was a little shyed by the appetite of Hosinski this morning, but promises to do better tomorrow. He said he ate seven eggs, five pancakes, two slices of ham, two cantaloupes, and two cups of coffee.

Both of the cops say they are in sympathy with the steps being taken by the government to reduce the H. C. L. They say it costs an awful lot to live these days.

VISITOR FEARS HE'LL BE "SHOOTED"; GOES TO POLICE FOR HELP

"Oh, Mr. Policeman! I'm in an awful fix," wailed a man as he entered the captain's office in the city building Wednesday morning.

"I'm going to get shot," he said. "Some big men are after me with guns. Everything I come here from the wheat fields in Minnesota this morning, and then there fellows 'er right after me too, and they'll kill me."

"They clumb up after me in Ontario and I scared, but now they're going to kill me here."

"Want you help me, Mr. Policeman," said the man as James Cutting, acting captain of police.

"I think they'll protect you all right at the Logansport asylum," said Cutting. "and if you don't beat it outta here you'll be peering out of some nice round bars pretty soon."

The stranger departed after again reminding Cutting that he was going to be killed.

"FIVE AND TEN" HEAD ADDRESSES KIWANIANS

H. C. Kimmel, manager of the local Kresge five and ten cent store, and Fred Keller were the principal speakers at the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis club at the Oliver hotel Thursday noon.

Manager Kimmel spoke of the chain of stores operated by the five and ten cent syndicate and the manner in which they make their purchases, which allows them to sell at their five and ten cent prices.

During the past year the Kresge corporation, with a chain of 175 stores, did $36,000,000 worth of business, while their closest competitor with 1,000 stores did but $28,000,000, according to Kimmel.

Fred Keller spoke of the housing situation in the city and told what the outlook was for the required number before January. There are approximately 250 houses under construction or completed since the first of the year while the requirements for the year are 2,300 homes. The reasons for the small number is said to be the high cost of materials and shortage of labor.

FREE MAN WHO MADE POLICE HURRY UP

Frank Sales, a terra firma traveler who created an excitement in the southern section of the city Wednesday afternoon when he was strolling around with a large calico sun hanging at his side, was released in city police court this morning when the prosecuting witness failed to prosecute the case.

Ass't Chief Cassidy arrested Sales after a chase over several fields.

DON'T SWEEP RUBBISH INTO STREETS, WARNS CITY COMMISSIONER

People who dump grass cuttings and leaf rakes into the streets from now on will be prosecuted, according to Street Commissioner D. C. Layton. It is said many residents persist on raking rubbish from their yards onto newly cleaned streets where it lays until the following week, or until a rain comes which washes the rubbish in the sewer gullies, stopping the inlet and flooding the streets.

Mr. Layton cited an instance when making the announcement said, "Wednesday night I was passing along in my machine on St. Louis Blvd. and two persons were sweeping rubbish off of their yards onto the street, which had just been cleaned. This street will not be cleaned for another week. A rain now will probably flood the street after the dirt has been washed into the sewer gullies."
