

THINK INTREPID EXPLORER DRIFTS TO NORTH POLE

Nothing Heard From Roald Amundsen Since Starting for "Top of Earth."

SEATTLE, Aug. 27.—Bound for the north pole, Roald Amundsen, Norwegian discoverer of the south pole, is at present drifting in his ice-locked schooner, the Maud, somewhere north of western Siberia, according to beliefs held by the Seattle Norwegian vice-consulate and Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Canadian Arctic explorer.

In planning the trip, the explorer said he expected, after reaching the pole, to return either to Grant Land, west of Greenland or Melville Island, which lies in the Arctic ocean north of Canada. Should he reach Melville Island he probably would journey by sea to Nome, Alaska, or overland to Dawson, Yukon territory.

Carries Airplanes.

Two airplanes, it is believed, formed part of the Maud's equipment when she left Norway last fall and sailed through the White sea bound for the icy north. The final dash to the pole may be made in one of the planes. Amundsen, it is believed, may also fly back to civilization in one of the machines.

Nothing has been heard from Amundsen since Sept. 1, 1918, nearly one year ago. At that time the Maud was reported taking oil for her motors at Dixon Island, a White sea point. After taking the oil she sailed northwest into the rapidly freezing waters of the Arctic ocean.

Drift With Ice.

From White sea Amundsen expected to drift with the ice to the New Siberian Islands, which lie in the Arctic off Siberia. At the New Siberian Islands, it was believed, the drift would carry the boat toward, if not across, the pole. Amundsen intended to use the airplanes if he found the drift would not carry him across the "top of the earth."

Amundsen, in a degree, followed the footsteps of his countryman, Fridtjof Nansen, in 1893-96. Nansen, in the Fram, started on a drift across the pole but left his boat and tried unsuccessfully to reach the goal on foot. Later the Fram drifted as close to the pole as Nansen got.

Maud Has Wireless.

The Maud carries wireless sending apparatus but no receiving instruments. Amundsen said he would not install the receiving apparatus because he did not want to be worried by news from the outside world.

The Norwegian government this summer arranged to establish several food depots on Grant Land from Cape Columbus to Robinson channel, for the use of Amundsen in case he comes out by his eastern route.

If he comes toward the west and strikes Melville Island he will find himself on familiar ground, for he passed near Melville Island when he discovered the Northwest passage in 1903-06.

Amundsen expects to obtain scientific data at the pole. He will take soundings, observe the ocean drifts, study the ice conditions and bring back full reports.

FAIL TO LOCATE ANY TRUNK OF AMMUNITION

HAVANA, Aug. 26.—The steamer Morro Castle, which according to advices from New York had on board ten trunks filled with arms and ammunition bound from New York for Mexico arrived here Tuesday. The Morro Castle was not held up on the voyage by American warships.

The manifest of the Morro Castle shows that the vessel has in her cargo ten cases of cartridges, shipped in gal form from New York, four of which are consigned to a Havana firm and the remaining six to Mexico. The ship's officers say that thus far no trunks containing smuggled ammunition have been located on the steamer.

The gigantic wall which the Dutch are building across the narrow entrance to the Zuider Zee will be 18 miles long and 220 feet wide at sea level.

GIRLS WANT UNI-DRESS FOR HIGH SCHOOL WEAR; HEAD FAVORS NEW PLAN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—Cleveland high school girls have made a plea to Superintendent of Schools Spaulding that a uniform be adopted for school wear.

"Why not let us girls wear one-piece dresses or sailor dresses, or something else plain to show we're high school girls?" wrote one of the girls to the superintendent. "We have a large family but only a small income and it's terribly hard to be able to dress as well as the other girls."

Boy students wear uniforms and the letter concluded with the query: "Since the boys have their uniforms, why can't the girls, too?"

Superintendent Spaulding thinks the idea a good one and has promised to do all he can to have it put in effect.

BELGIUM WILL PROTECT, NOURISH AND EDUCATE ORPHANS OF GREAT WAR

BRUSSELS, Aug. 27.—Two hundred physicians from all parts of Belgium met here recently to outline a program for protecting and nourishing infants and mothers, as well as for nourishing and educating war orphans.

Henry Jaspar, minister of economic affairs, was present on behalf of the government and thanked those present for what they had done for Belgian children during the German occupation. He announced that the government was now working on a scheme to establish child-welfare institutes in every community in the country the bill being now before parliament. When this law is passed, Belgium will be the first country in the world to have such institutions in all big cities and all country districts, no matter how remote.

Dr. Rene Sand, just back from America, recounted the progress made there in child work.
