SOUTH BEND CLUB HOST 10 PLAYERS

Forty-three Qualify in Competition of Northern Indiana Country Clubs.

Northern Indiana's big annual golfing event play for the championship of the St. Joseph Valley association, began yesterday afternoon at the South Bend Country Club, Champaign-Lakes, with 43 men qualifying in the various classes which will begin the process of elimination on the same course tomorrow. Two South Bend players, Harry Elmore and Daniel Sanders, were tied in the 36-hole qualifying round for first honors, each turning in a score of 173. Elmore with 84 and 89, Sanders with 88 and 85.

Forty-six players entered this year's tournament, the second of its kind. A. W. Campbell of St. Joseph was forced to withdraw because he was unable to remain to finish the 36 holes, after he made 165 on his first 18. F. Cunningham and W. A. Weid did not get started until too late to finish.

Beginning tomorrow morning, the 43 who finished yesterday will begin 18-hole competition in three classes, championship, Class A and Class B. The eight men eliminated on the first round in each class will make up consolation flights, in each of which prizes will be given as in the main events. Play must be completed in all classes by Tuesday evening.

INDESTRUCTO NINE TO MEET GOSHEN GREYS

The Indestructo outfit of Mishawaka, one of the fastest amateur nines organized there in recent years, will play at Goshen today. They will play the deciding game of a three game series. In the other two games played the Indestructos won the first 5 to 3 in fifteen innings and lost the second game by a score of 2 to 1 in a contest that went fifteen innings.

The players will make the journey over the Interurban lines, leaving Mishawaka in plenty of time to don their uniforms and get set for the game. Paul Frankel, the peppery manager of the Indestructos, stated Saturday night that his team would come home with the deciding game of the series tucked under their belts. He is now busy arranging another game with a Chicago team. If he can get proper arrangements and a sufficient guarantee, he will again take Capt. Vic Morse and his crew over to the windy city.

Scores of ball fans will accompany the Indestructos on their Goshen trip.

TOLEDO WINS, 4-1

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 29.—Indianapolis bunched four errors today and gave Toledo the last game of the season between the two clubs by the score of 4 to 1. The visitors got 12 off McCall, but fast fielding shut out many runs. Manager Hendricks used a patched line-up again, sending Rehg to first base and Pitcher Cavel to right field. First Baseman Covington is ill with influenza at a hotel. Score: Indianapolis, 000 000 001—1 12 4 Toledo, 001 102 004—4 7 3 Crum and Leary; McCall and M. Kelly.

Hold Boxing Show at Springbrook Park Labor Day, Rain Or Shine

MEL COOGAN.

Monday's boxing tournament which is to be staged at Springbrook park will be held rain or shine according to a statement given out Saturday by the directors of the Twin City A. C. A. canvas 60x40 covers the roped arena, while most of the spectators will sit in the grandstand. Arrangements have been completed to take care of 8,000 people, Walter Eckersall will referee the bout.

Adair, who is better known in the middle west than Coogan, appears to be the favorite among Chicago fans who are coming down here in large numbers to watch him work.

He has been putting on the finishing touches to his training in Kid Howard's Arcade gymnasium in Chicago. The fact that Coogan has been in the navy for 18 months during which time he did little or no fighting seems to the windy city fans, sufficient assurance that Adair will shade him. Jim Mullin, former manager for Eddie McGeary will be in Adair's corner.

Fans will be down from Laporte, Hammond, Gary, Elkhart and Goshen to watch the mill.

Enter "Big Wheel."

When Coogan and Adair face each other it will mark the entrance of South Bend into the realm of first class sport cities, or the "big wheel" as it is known in the parlance of ring followers. This boxing exhibition is the first of many more which will come during the winter months to warm the hearts of boxing fans.

The semi-windup which calls for eight rounds between Red Gardner of Gary and Clarence Willard of Elkhart is about as expensive a preliminary as will be seen anywhere on Labor day. Willard is a willing mixer and able to take a lot of punishment, while Red Gardner is looming up over the pugilistic horizon. He is fast and shifty, has a punch

Trap Gun and Rod

"The Evil Spirit of the Plains!" Applied by Indians to Dr. W. F. Carver, scout, guide, trapper, hunter, plainsman and all round rifle and wing shot.

The writer having shot a series of races with the doctor, appreciates his skill and accuracy. Dr. W. F. Carver (Evil Spirit of the Plains) and W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) at one time were inseparable friends. A friendship and confidence built upon a foundation of dependent association, when working "side-kicks," as government scouts in times of continuous danger. A friendship eventually disrupted by a trivial incident, while working as a scout's most dependable associate.

Indian knowledge, education in woodcraft and ability to shoot quick and accurately. Carver, as a shot, was much more accurate than Cody. At the cessation of Indian hostilities, when order was restored by capture and treaties, on the west, then popular means of life. Finer specimens of American manhood it would have been impossible to find. Speaking the Indian language, knowing the noble red man's peculiarities, they were ever useful in handling the warriors. Stared for the saw-dust arena was a duo shoot-off in which they officiated as assistants to each other.

Riding gracefully around the ring, on non-gun shy horses, blessed with an easy going gait, they essayed the breaking of composition balls, tossed in mid-air, with a single bullet from a repeating rifle. Loud and long were the plaudits at their every appearance. Friendly rivalry developed into a streak of latent jealousy.

On one occasion Carver was riding at an easy canter, tossing tar balls in mid-air for Cody, (who prior to the performance had been entertained by some convivial friends) attempting, without success, to throw them into a zone where Cody was scattering shot. Carver finally became disgusted, threw the basket containing the balance of the "tar balls" into the air, then riding for the dressing tent, followed by Cody. They never again appeared in the arena together. This faux-pas disrupted a friendship established when they were daily flirting with death and depending upon each other for personal safety.

How He Got His Name. Crier told me why the Indians dubbed him the "Evil Spirit of the Plains" as follows: "After a hard winter of successful trapping in the Shoshone mountains, with 'Spike' Moran, my trapping pard, we hailed our pelts, packed them on the backs of our 'mountain canaries,' heading for the Missouri river, enroute to market. On our trip down the 'Big Muddy' we experienced a succession of exciting incidents. Arriving in St. Louis, we sold our furs on an excellent market. There I saw and purchased my first magazine or repeating rifle, an unheard of innovation in the far west. Trouble was always brewing between Indians and trappers. Traps again developed upon our return to the Shoshone trapping fields.

I was hunting near the foot of Cedar mountain, following a narrow trail through the woods, when I was fired upon from ambush. The whistling bullets caused me to drop upon my stomach, then crawling behind a log, unhurt. Quiet prevailed, but I was not deceived, consulting to take observations in an attempt to locate. A feather war-bonnet, which I knew was supported by a stick, appeared above an adjacent log. An Indian trick, which I understood.

Surprise For Redskins

Thinking my gun shot but once, they could draw my fire, at the bonnet, before I could reload, they would rush me to a finish. Bang! Four Indians jumped from the brush, heading for my log with blood-curdling yells. Without removing the rifle from my shoulder, I pumped away, three copper skins 'biting the dust.' The fourth, with a protracted war-whoop, introducing serpentine gyrations, headed for their village. It was impossible for me to intercept him, although I landed several bullets near him. Arriving, he recited marvelous stories of a gun which never quit shooting and killing, describing the 'long haired operator' 'The Evil Spirit of the Plains'."

All Foreigners Out of Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—All danger of the 1913 national turf tennis singles championship going abroad at the end of the season was removed here today with the elimination of the last of the foreign competitors in the thirty-eighth championship tournament of the National Tennis association. The competition of the fifth round found three eastern and one western racket expert still in the running and given fair weather the new titleholder will be evolved from among William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, Wallace F. Johnson, William T. Tilden, both of Philadelphia and R. Norris Williams of Boston.

Of this quartette two are previous holders of the national titles. Williams won in 1914 and 1915 while Johnston was crowned champion in the 1915 tournament.

Studebaker Nine Defeats Singers

Saeger batting for Ring in the 11th inning of the Singer-Studebaker baseball game held at Singer park Saturday afternoon nearly defeated the Studebaker nine when he drove a homer far out into the outer gardens scoring a man before him. The rest of the nine didn't follow up the rally, and Singers lost by the score of 8 to 11. This makes an even break for the factory nines, each team having won one. The game was featured with heavy hitting by both outfits.
