

PENETRATES NORTH TO GET PICTURES

Epitome of Fur Trade to be Revealed in Series of "Movies."

WINNIPEG, Man., April 22.—Moving pictures pronounced by connoisseurs the most remarkable ever taken in the Canadian north—pictures that are an epitome of the fur trade and set forth with life-like realism the romance of the far country—will be exhibited at free performances in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria during the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Hudson's Bay Co. in May.

The pictures were filmed by an expert, who spent seven months in the wilderness with expeditions sent out by the Hudson's Bay Co. One of these expeditions under Capt. Mack covered Labrador and all the country about Hudson Bay, Hudson Strait and James Bay. Another under Capt. Tom O'Kelly traveled through a vast extent of territory in the Athabasca and Great Slave lake region.

The expert went into the wilds in June and came out in January. He suffered intensely from heat on Hudson Bay in the summer. When winter came, he was in the northwest, facing death in blinding blizzards and snapping his pictures in cold degrees below zero.

With Capt. O'Kelly he "mushed" behind dog teams into regions where a camera had never clicked before. The party became lost in a blinding storm and had to cut and dig its way through ice and snow for 135 miles before reaching shelter.

Frozen in by a blizzard, their supplies ran low and they faced starvation. Their halfbreed drivers mutinied. Wolves killed their best dogs.

With Capt. Mack, the expert took pictures at Moose Factory, Albany, Rupert House on the bleak Labrador coast, in far Ungava, at Wostenholme on Hudson Strait, and at Cape Dorset in Baffin Land north of the strait.

He brought back moving pictures of the picturesque life at old Hudson's bay posts, in Indian and Eskimo villages and among the trappers far out in the wilderness on the hunt for furs. Every phase of trapping is pictured—the baited ambushes, animals captive in steel jaws, curing the pelts in lonely cabins, the homeward journeys of fur-laden dog teams and pack-trains. The pictures of wild animals in their native haunts are said to be among the best ever obtained.

HUGO, Okla., April 22.—J. H. Millar, railroad man, today advertised for his lost wife. Ten dollars is offered the man who will return her.

CHICAGO.—Paul Stevens told his wife he had a sinful past, was known as a desperate man. She was granted a divorce on the strength of his story. Police investigation showed Stevens had been A. W. O. L. once from the navy.

POLICE AND "DICKS" MEET IN DETROIT

Twenty-seventh Annual Convention Will Open June
7 to Last Four Days.

DETROIT, Mich., April 22.—Armed with all the accoutrements of the profession from the latest thing in "muzzies" cameras to the newest thing in steel bracelets—and grimed with ideas tending toward greater efficiency in methods of crime reduction the leading police and detective talent of the country will concentrate in Detroit June 7.

The occasion will be the 27th annual convention of the International Chiefs of Police and will last four days.

Such men as William A. Pinkerton, Maj. Richard Sylvester, J. M. Quigley, president of the association; Inspector Joseph Faurot and Chief William Copeland will discuss the finer points of tracking and convicting criminals. The range of topics to be taken up in the sessions will cover every phase of police work, from traffic direction to legislation affecting police activities. Many city and state officials from various parts of the country are on the program. Former Prest Taft, Judge K. M. Landis and Charles M. Schwab are among those invited to address the convention.

Four hundred delegates, bringing with them an entourage of 300 wives, public officials and newspaper men are expected to attend.

PUBLICITY MAN OF CHAMBER RESIGNS

Burr N. Darling for the past four months publicity director of the Chamber of Commerce, has tendered his resignation to take effect at once and is preparing to leave for Nashville, Tenn., where he will spend a short vacation before embarking upon a new line of endeavor. Mr. Darling was formerly city editor of the Laporte Argus, which is edited by his father, Harry Darling. During his connection with the Chamber of Commerce he has directed the publicity work and acted as editor of "South Bend Today," the official organ of the chamber.

Mr. Darling has several offers under consideration but has made no definite decision as he expects to take a trip through the south and east for the next few weeks.

GASOLINE SHORTAGE IS RELIEVED HERE

The shortage of gasoline was relieved in South Bend Thursday morning when five tank cars, containing 50,000 gallons arrived in the city. The shipment arrived over the New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois railroad. This gasoline was received by the Gaffill Oil Co., which has the largest individual gasoline storage place in northern Indiana, the various tanks holding 225,000 gallons. No restrictions on the sale of "gas" have been placed by the Gaffill company at any time during the shortage.

The "Overall Craze"

And What It Means To You

We Americans are quick to take to anything that appeals to our sense of humor. The latest American fad—the "overall craze"—did this and many people immediately purchased overalls to show that they were up-to-the-minute dressers.

We Americans become tired of a fad as quickly as we take it up. The "overall craze" is but a passing fad and is very likely to be discarded within a very short time.

The Results—

Those who have bought overalls will wear them only a few times and lay them aside, perhaps, never to be used again. There has been a useless waste of four or five dollars.

Already the price of overalls has increased since the fad hit the country. The workman—the one who absolutely needs overalls—has been forced to pay this increased price for what to him is a necessity, because somebody else is buying all of the available supply as a luxury—it amounts to nothing else.

Should the fad, by any chance, continue, it will be necessary for the overall manufacturers to secure more help and, undoubtedly, the first people they will turn to will be those who are now employed by the large tailoring houses. To get them it will be necessary to pay them high wages and overall prices will suffer another increase.

Then, there will be a scarcity of labor in the garment manufacturing business. The demand will exceed the supply more than ever and clothing prices will go even higher than they are now.

The Real Remedy—

Give the manufacturers of clothing a chance to catch up with the demand. Lack of production in all lines is responsible for the high cost of living. Speed up production in your line. It will help to bring down the cost.

—and when you buy clothes, buy good clothes, such as Ardmore Styleclothes—tailored exclusively for young men.
