THREE YOUNG MEMBERS OF THE GIANTS WHO WILL BE RETAINED

ARNOLD STATZ (OUTFIELDER), BILL RYAN (PITCHER) and WILBUR HUBBELL (PITCHER) mighty good to McGraw. He is a player that can be relied upon to do his share of the work where it comes to a pinch. Hubbell has been doing some pretty good pitching, but just the same he's quite a distance away from the spotlight. Give him a chance and he'll come through, just as the rest of them have.

BLUFFTON YOUTH BREAKS RECORD

Shortstop of Boston Americans Play in 534 Consecutive Games.

By Associated Press: BOSTON, April 26.—Everett Scott, shortstop for the Boston Americans, will break all major league records for playing in consecutive games when he takes the field against the Philadelphia Nationals today. With today's game, Scott will have participated in 534 consecutive league contests. Luderus, of the Philadelphia Nationals, set the record at 523 games last season, but he has not played this year. Scott started his continuous playing on June 20, 1915, with the Red Sox, and he has not missed a game since. Actually, Scott had previously outstripped Luderus through participation in 11 world series games in two years, but these post-season contests have not been considered in the consecutive records for regular games. The Boston shortstop has to his credit also for two years what is said to be the highest fielding average for any shortstop playing the full season in either major league. His mark of .976 made in both 1918 and 1919 is the highest on record. Scott's home is in Bluffton, Ind.

YANKS PULL NINTH INNING RALLY; WIN

By Associated Press: NEW YORK, April 26.—An exciting ninth-inning battle enabled New York to defeat Washington here on Monday, 3 to 2. With the bases full in the ninth, two out and New York leading one run, the Yankees pulled off a comeback to the outfield trying to catch Boile napping and Meusel scored the tying run. A base on balls to Peckinpaugh again filled the bases and Boile scored the winning run when O'Neill fumbled Pipp's grounder. Second baseman Pratt, of New York, felled 16 chances per force.

Frankie Mason Says He Has Two Things To Take Care of Friday

Frankie Mason said Monday night that he was going to do two things Friday—first, assist Mayor Schrieber of Toledo in opening up the American association baseball season by taking part in the opening ceremony; second, beat Carl Tremaine in the evening in a 12-round bout which will be staged in the historic auditorium where he fought Wilde. It will be remembered that Mason and Tremaine fought the semi-windup to the Dempsey-Willard fight, at which time the fight favor gave the decision to Tremaine, although the crowd favored the local youth. Ward Job, Frankie admits that he will have a tough job on his hands to dispose of this Tremaine boy, but the promise of another crack at Jimmy Wilde in event of a victory over the Dempsey boy has lured him even the thought of losing. Mason is training for this bout, not straining as he did for the Wilde bout. He will have no weight to worry about, as Carl will weigh 18 at 3 o'clock, which means a few added pounds when they step into the ring. Frankie will weigh not more than 114. A number of South Bend fans will accompany him to Toledo, Monday night he rode the goat at the Elks but came out smiling and announced that he suffered no injuries.

IN THE BIG OUTDOORS BY GUSTAV J.T. MEYER

It is probably a good time to call to attention of the angler some set rules of importance which bear directly on the future of the sportsman when in the field and upon the streams and lakes. The angler who employed at his favorite pastime must invariably trespass upon the ground of some one else. While he is so trespassing he should bear in mind the fact that those who will be compelled to follow in his wake must do likewise. If he was well come by the landowner let him so conduct himself as to give the land owner the impression that those who follow are likewise gentlemen in every respect and that he may cultivate their acquaintance with some assurance of safety. Let every sportsman take it upon himself to see that the land owner is amply protected. They should not walk directly through any field where there is a crop growing and when walking along a stream adjacent to new plowed ground they should stay to the unplowed creek bank, no matter how difficult it is to do so. He should not climb fences where there is danger of doing any damage.

There is it is reasonably convenient here should never fail to first ask permission to enter upon another's ground. If by chance he should be fortunate in procuring a large catch he should think of the land owner when it comes time to divide the catch. There are many other civil and obliging favors which he may show the owner of the land upon which he must do his fishing which will have a tendency to retain for him and others as well the favor of trespassing in following the angling game.

The fact should not be overlooked by the angling public that it is always the generous disposition of the land owner which assures the angler of the liberty to trespass on his land. When the city angler takes an inventory of his rights when on a fishing trip he will find that he is unfortunate indeed, investigation will convince him at once that the circumstances are not even complicated but on the other hand they are very simple and inventory has will be found to have as large an opening at the bottom as it has at the top with nothing on the inside to get snagged to.

What would be a perfect equipment for a black bass fisherman? Rather a large question when we stop to consider that there are hundreds of dollars worth of rods, reels, baits and seemingly everything else under the sun displayed in glass cases before the eyes of the ardent fresh water fisherman every time he enters a sporting goods store. And unless he is thoroughly familiar with the game it will prove to be a dazzling proposition. But what is one to do? Buy and try out every one of the things shown, spending a small fortune in the effort? This is just the routine most of us goes through and in the end realize to our sorrow that we have made a serious error. We go into a store ostensibly to get a few hooks and emerge loaded down with a dozen or more new highly colored rods. A short time later we find them tried out and find that there is absolutely no advantage over the preceding ones. This does not happen only once but sometimes keeps up for a year and as it is with baits so it is with rods, reels, and all the rest of the paraphernalia. We try them all just because we think that by using something else there is a chance that we shall get more fish.

But those who have been of some 40 years as a fisherman and if I am to give you an honest, straightforward statement regarding this question I will have to advise the coming angler to tie himself hard to fish propagation and better sportsmanship. Let us call your attention to a few things that may have a tendency to open the eyes of the new angler and likewise a few old ones. The uncertainty of rearing of the black bass in the open waters is not well understood. The bass when nesting in open waters has many destroying elements to combat before it sets its young to a size where they will be able to care for themselves.

Once a bass has its nest cleaned ready for depositing its eggs the combat begins. The worse that can happen at this time is a sudden freshet or a rise in the stream with roily waters. If the eggs have been deposited they are destroyed. And freshets during the bass spawning time are very frequent. The process of building a nest and setting the hatch off usually requires about 10 to 15 days. If by any chance there should not come any high waters and the parent fish does get the eggs to give up the baby fish successfully then it is soon aware of the fact that its young are surrounded by an endless number of its enemies. The snail, shiner, large mouth chub, water snake, turtle, crawfish, the green heron and numerous other enemies make it very uncertain for the baby bass. A nest of bass reared in the snarling stage in a hatchery, worth fifty in the open water. We will do well to lay aside the equipment, all of us, and take the matter of rearing more fish first.
