Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl 18 years of age. I have been going with a young man of the same age. We went together for about two years. I love him very dearly and he says that he loves me. Until last year, when I went away to school, I thought that I loved him well enough to be his wife, but since we have been parted for the last seven months my love for him has died.

I am in love with another man whom I like much better than the first. He has never told me that he loved me. The other young man still says that he loves me and I receive letters which I only want to answer as a friend. What do you advise me to do?

BROWN EYES: Don't devote all of your time to one young man, my dear. You are too young to do that. You see, you don't know your own mind, do you? Have both young men for friends.

You are too young to think of them so seriously. Wait until you have finished school.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a young man of 20, and I am

THAT ASTONISHING FAD FOR EARRING "EXPRESSION"

SUSETTE—Those long dangling earrings with jet-beads supporting the crystals, look charming on you. But I'm greatly perplexed over how to express my personality best. Should I have old-fashioned portraits in my earrings or long blue beads to match my eyes? They're both very smart—the earrings, I mean!

deeply in love with a girl of 18. She loves me as much as I do her. I have been seeing her almost every night since I have been going with her, as it is her wish. But it seems that we disagree on petty matters very often. Do you think that is proper?

Is there any way that I can test her love for me? Is it right for me to see her as often as I do? I am inclined to be a little jealous. What can I do to stop it? A READER.

A READER: Can't you control the situation so that you simply will not allow anything unpleasant to enter into the conversation? It takes two to make an argument, you know.

The only way to test the young lady's love for you is—if you are in a position to do so and love her—to ask her to marry you and see what she says.

Every night would be too often to call on her even if you were engaged. Don't you think so, yourself?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: We are two sisters, 19 and 21 years of age. We love two young men very dearly, but our mother does not want us to go with them.

They are nice young men, and are thought well of in this community. We both have finished our schooling so why aren't we allowed to go with them?

Mother does not want us to go to parties at all. We are only allowed to go to church.

Our young men friends want us to run away with them and get married. We want advice.

ALVADA AND LEVADA.

ALVADA AND LEVADA: You would be very foolish to run away and get married. Surely, you owe more consideration to your mother than to do a thing like that, my dears.

You are young, and there is lots of time for you to go out and have a good time. Your mother's judgment is the best for you to consider. Remember everything she does or thinks of is for your happiness. It may seem hard now, but some day, and that may be soon, you will be thankful you followed her advice.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Revelations of A Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

THE WAY MADGE CONQUERED HERSELF AND DICKY LEFT.

Dicky was going to see Edith Fairfax! This was the thought which made me stand motionless for a breathless second or two after I had, at his request, turned out his light. Indeed, I was incapable of motion, for the sound of the girl's name, the by recanted my cheerful casualness at parting.

"I may stay days," he said, as we drew up to the station.

"There's no reason why you can't stay as long as you like," I responded promptly. "Everything is going on swimmingly at home now, and we really don't need you."

"So Long, Dear."

"Oh, you needn't rub it in that I'm only a sort of fifth wheel around the wheel," he started with a cross intention which made me suddenly remorseful, but not enough to make me alter the tactics which I was sure were best with my volatile spouse.

"You're the whole four wheels, and also the steering gear," I returned lightly. "But here comes the train. Have a nice trip, and give my love to Her Fluffiness, Edith and Lella."

Into Dicky's eyes sprang a malicious little gleam.

"I'll just do that little thing," he said. "And I'll kiss 'em all around for you in the bargain. Well, so long, old dear. Take the best of care of yourself."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, JULY 20.

The fiery and aggressive Mars again holds sway, warning against all manner of turbulent and violent deeds. It will be necessary to keep in a cool and controlled attitude, avoiding all disputatious and quarrelsome conduct if the business is to be saved from destructive forces. If matters can be quietly and deliberately manipulated some permanent good may be looked for under the auspicious rule of Saturn true Luna. Domestic affairs are also under a prosaic or finharmony.

Those whose birthday it is, if they would reap the solid benefits of auspicious configurations, should keep cool, deliberate and harmonious. They should avoid law and quarrelling, and attend quietly to business. A child born on this day may be inclined to be rash, headstrong and quarrelsome unless carefully trained.
