COOK DITCH CASE AGAIN

COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS TO DISCUSS THE MAKING OF AN APPROPRIATION FOR THE REPLACING OF THE BRIDGES REMOVED BY THE DREDGING COMPANY.

QUESTION OF DAMAGES ALSO UP

Dredge Company Offers to Compromise the Damages Demanded at the Sum of $4,500—Originally Wanted $9,000.

Pursuant to a call the County Council met last Saturday in special session. The council was called to discuss matters pertaining to settling the now notorious Cook Ditch case.

The Commissioners were present and explained to the council, that when the ditch was begun the dredge company had proposed to tear out the bridges, as the company stated on the witness stand, "like so many old men." This would have rendered the bridges worthless, and would have cost the county to replace them some $12,000 to $15,000. The commissioners took the matter through the courts and finally compelled the company to remove the bridges in a careful manner so that they could be replaced for approximately $1,200, the company removing them at its own cost. The council was asked for an appropriation covering the replacing of the two bridges.

Attorney James addressed the council and stated that the recent decision of the Supreme Court had left the county without precedent in the matter. The court held that the county was not in any way responsible for bridges wholly within any township. The county could not protect such bridges in the courts and was not responsible for their destruction nor liable for their rebuilding.

If the county so desired it could make a gift to the township of the money to replace the bridges, but it was not bound so to do. After hearing this statement the council passed a motion authorizing the appropriation of $1200 for the replacing of the bridges, and providing that the commissioners advertise for bids and accept the lowest.

The matter of the claim of the dredge company, doing the work on the ditch, for damages was next taken up. It was stated that Putnam County had secured an injunction preventing the company from tearing down the bridges. That the company had reached the Parker bridge, then laid up its dredge and waited 180 days without doing any work. Later, while the injunction was still in force, they lowered some of the framework of the dredge, passed beneath the bridge and began work on the lower side and have been working ever since. The company asked its attorney's fees and $100 per day for the 180 days. Later they came down to $9,000 and still later offered to compromise on $4,500. Attorney James stated that he believed this was too high. He held that the injunction did not restrain the company from working, but only from tearing down the bridges. They could have gone under at the beginning as well as at the end of the 180 days. Mr. James felt that the county owed the company its attorney's fees and damages for the time and money expended in getting the dredge under the bridge. This sum would be some $2,500. He was not in favor of giving more.

Mr. McCammack, of the board of commissioners, showed that with the payment of the damages and for replacing the bridges the county would still be some $6,000 ahead of where it would have been had no legal action been taken to prevent the destruction of the bridges as originally intended. As it is the Parker bridge has not been touched and the other bridges can be replaced in good condition for $1200. The entire expense to the county, on the basis of the present proposition to compromise will be less than $6,000.

It was expected that a representative of the dredge company would be before the council today to make a statement. In the morning, however, he notified the auditor that it would be impossible for him to be present. As a result the council, after discussing the matter of making an appropriation for the compromise laid the matter on the table till the regular meeting in December.

TAGGART NOT A CANDIDATE

He Will Not be in the Race for United States Senator—The Sentiment Of the Democratic Party is Almost A Unit in Support of John W. Kern.

OPPOSITION WITHOUT MUCH HOPE

Hon. Thomas Taggart has formally announced that he is not a candidate for senator, and as a consequence the friends of John W. Kern are jubilant, as they took Mr. Taggart's announcement to mean that Taggart and his followers will support Kern. Taggart's support of Kern, they say, practically assures his election, as Taggart has considerable influence with the members of the legislature.

Mr. Taggart's decision followed a conference he had with Mr. Kern yesterday in Mr. Kern's office. Mr. Taggart arrived in Indianapolis from French Lick and stopped at Kern's office on his way to the Denison Hotel. Mr. Taggart and Mr. Kern had a long talk behind closed doors.

In his statement to the press Mr. Taggart expresses deep gratitude for the support his friends have offered him, but says he will be better satisfied to remain in the ranks and assist the Democratic organization.

FELL DEAD IN A PASTURE

John Berry, Living Four Miles North Of Town, Dies of Heart Disease While in the Fields at Work.

DEATH AT 11 O'CLOCK TUESDAY

John Berry, a farmer living about four miles north of town on the Bainbridge road was stricken with heart failure last Tuesday and fell dead in one of the fields near his home. Mr. Berry had gone to the pasture to see about some cattle. He did not return, and search revealed the fact that he had fallen dead while on his way to the field.

Coroner E. B. Lynch was notified and taking Dr. Gillespie with him drove to the scene. It was decided from the position in which the body was found that death had been instantaneous. Dr. Gillespie believed that death was due to organic heart trouble.

IS SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Case of Charles F. Pegg Against the Estate of Mary J. Allen, Deceased, Is Compromised After the Jury is Ready to Hear the Proceedings.

Wednesday, after the jury was in place, the witnesses present and all the preparations for the trial complete, the case was compromised. It was to have been a hard-fought case, as there were many witnesses on both sides to be heard.

The compromise was made on the following basis. The plaintiff is allowed $200 on his claim. Attorneys fees of $75 are allowed on both sides of the case, and all the costs are to be paid by the estate.

The sudden ending of the case made the presence of the jury unnecessary and the jurymen were dismissed for the remainder of the week. They are to be present again Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

CHARLES YOUNG SENTENCED

Brazil Plasterer Accused of Assault With Intent to Kill at Roachdale Last Summer Pleads Guilty Before Judge Rawley.

FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULT ONLY

Monday morning Charles A. Young better known as "Ab" Young, of Brazil, was before Judge Rawley in the circuit court charged with assault and battery with intent to kill. Young is the Brazil plasterer who stabbed his partner with a knife in a drunken brawl in Roachdale last summer. The man who was injured has recovered, and this morning this fact was reported to the court. The plea of not guilty made when first arraigned was withdrawn. Prosecuting Attorney J. P. Hughes moved the noie passing of the intent clause of the charge.

This left the charge simply assault and battery. To this the prisoner pleaded guilty. He was, therefore, found guilty by the court. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, and to be confined six months in the county jail, and all the costs were assessed against the defendant. The jail sentence was suspended during the good behavior of the defendant.

GREAT NEED OF A CHANGE

The Election Law of Indiana is Proven by Past Experiences to be Weak, Ineffective and Lacking in Qualities That Insure Honest Returns.

TIME FOR LEGISLATIVE ACTION

Nothing need be added by way of comment on the unsatisfactory condition of our election law. Certainly one of the things that the next Legislature should do is to reform it altogether. There should be provision for prompt returns under severe penalties, and these should apply all the way along for every duty beginning with the opening of polling places at the precise time designated by law, and having everything in complete readiness. But the curious situation developed by the present election affords, however, an opportunity before the meeting of the Legislature for the Governor to convince the people that he fulfills the constitutional duty to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed." There have been mistakes in the election returns apparently of many kinds. It should be demonstrated that these are considered to the utmost and rectified to the last degree of possibility. Fraud has been alleged. However doubtful the charge may be, the allegations should be proved to the bottom.

There is no question about the governorship or the Legislature. At most there is involved what seems like a curious variation in the result concerning a few state officers. The Governor should see to it that the whole evidence on the subject is brought to light and that everything is done to convince every citizen that the laws have been executed faithfully. This is of more importance to the State's good name than the election. That the election showed that our people vote intelligently. They discriminated. They meant to do certain things and not to do other things or to elect candidates of one party and equally to elect candidates of the other party. To give effect to this intelligent action is of the greatest importance and there ought to be, as we believe there will be, such action as shall convince all that everything possible has been done to arrive at the precise result intended. Then for the future there ought to be no disagreement in having an election and exactness.—Indianapolis News.

MOTORCYCLE SCARES HORSE

Horse Breaks Loose From Post and Runs Down the Sidewalk Demolishing the Attached Buggy and Scattering the Crowd.

ANIMAL ESCAPED ALL INJURY

An exciting runaway occurred on the north side of the square Wednesday about 11 o'clock, when a horse frightened at a motorcycle, and breaking from its fastenings ran down the sidewalk. Mr. Wallace had hitched to the telephone pole in front of the Hamilton Hardware store. The motorcycle came from the north and stopped in front of the horse. The animal reared, broke loose, and started directly for the cycle, which it barely missed. The horse then started down the sidewalk in front of the Haspel meat market, leaving the buggy top in the cellar-way south of that building.

A number of buggies had been lined up along the outside of the walk by the Brothers Livery stable. The running animal collided with the first of these and knocked over the whole row, and was finally stopped by Ab Hensley in front of the livery stable door. The vehicle attached to the horse was wrecked, but none of the over-turned buggies were injured except the first which had its wheels smashed. There was some tall scrambling for safety by men upon the walk at the time of the runaway.

THE PARTY IS IMMORTAL

The Democratic Party is the Champion of the People's Rights and Stands for the Greatest Good to The Greatest Number, Says William Jennings Bryan.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR FUTURE

Declaring the Democratic party can not die and has accomplished more out of office in the last twelve years than the Republican party has in office, W. J. Bryan bids his supporters not despair. In the current issue of the Commoner he speaks of the election results and discusses the future. He says:

"The election of 1908 is over and the returns disclose a signal victory for our opponents, but the principles for which our party contends, these are not dead.

"Does any one believe the American people will permanently permit secrecy as to campaign contributions? Does any one believe the American people will permanently permit the will of the voters to be thwarted, as it is now, by the election of senators through legislatures?

"Does any one believe the trusts will be permitted permanently to exploit the masses? Does any one believe the consumer will permanently permit the tariff to be written by the beneficiaries of that tariff? Does any one believe the public will permanently tolerate an estrangement between labor and capital? Does any one believe 15,000,000 of depositors will forever permit their savings to be jeopardized as at present? Does any one believe the extravagance of government will go on forever unchecked? Does any one believe our Republic will permanently consent to colonial policy with its humiliations and its financial burdens?

"During the last twelve years the Democratic party has accomplished more out of office than the Republican party has accomplished in office, and this is a sufficient reward for those who fight for the righteous cause. It would have been pleasant to have been able to reward worthy Democrats with official positions. They are looking for good government, and they labor unselfishly for the promotion of good government.

"As for myself, let no one worry about my future. The holding of office is a mere incident in the life of those who are devoted to reforms. The reform is the essential thing. If one can advance reforms by holding office, then holding office is justifiable; if one can best advance reforms as a private citizen, then holding of office is undesirable.

"The world owes me nothing. I have been abundantly compensated for what I have been able to do. My life will not be long enough to repay the people for their support and for the confidence they have expressed.

"With an abiding faith in the triumph of truth and an unfaltering confidence in the righteousness of our cause, I speak this word of encouragement to those who call themselves friends. I shall keep step with them and march on. If we are right, as I believe we are, it will vindicate us; if we contribute, as I believe we are contributing, to a cause that is founded on justice our efforts will weigh in final victory."

SPECIAL FINDING OF FACT

Judge Rawley Files Paper in the Case of E. B. Lynch Against the City and Upon the Facts Therein Set Out the Final Argument Will Be Made.

DAY FOR ARGUMENT NOT SET

Judge Rawley Monday filed a "Finding of Facts" in the case of E. B. Lynch against the City of Greencastle for damages done his property by the sewage flowing down Walnut Street. Judge Rawley heard the evidence in the case the last days of the September Term of Court. He finds the facts to be as follows:

That E. B. Lynch owns a house and lot on the north side of the Walnut Street fill, just west of town, and property on the south side of the fill. That in the property south of the road there is a spring of water that is the source of a stream flowing under the road and through Mr. Lynch's property on the north side of the street.

That the City of Greencastle, about 1872, constructed a system of drains and open gutters that collected the water west from Vine Street, south from Washington Street and north from Poplar Street and carried it all down Walnut Street. Before that the water had found its way down Madison and Washington Streets. The increase in the amount of water passing down Walnut Street Judge Rawley finds, however, did not damage the property now owned by Mr. Lynch.

Later tile were put in from Gillespie Street west to the spring branch under the Walnut Street extension by the county commissioners and the city acting together, and later still a line of sewer tile on each side of Walnut Street west from Indiana was connected with the tile first laid. This also failed to damage Mr. Lynch.

Later tile were put in from Gillespie Street west to the spring branch under the Walnut Street extension by the county commissioners and the city acting together, and later still a line of sewer tile on each side of Walnut Street west from Indiana was connected with the tile first laid. This also failed to damage Mr. Lynch.

Some six years ago certain property owners and corporations in Greencastle, with the knowledge of the city, but without its authority, connected sinks and cesspools with these drains, and as a result the outlet of these tile at the west end of Walnut Street became offensive. The odors reached Mr. Lynch's residence, annoyed him and his family and materially decreased the rental value of the property. Further the spring and spring-branch on the property south of the street were contaminated and the water rendered unfit for the use of cattle.

The connections of the cesspools and the sink drains were covered and not visible. They were not made by the authority of the city, but seemingly with the knowledge, at least in some instances, of the city.

Such were the facts Judge Rawley finds to have been proved. The attorneys in the case will now argue the law as related to these facts, and after hearing the argument Judge Rawley will give his final decision in the case.

WAS A TEST CASE ONLY

Prosecution of Oscar O. Dorsett Was Without Political Feeling and for The Purpose of Establishing the Status of Such Voters.

GOOD MANY WITNESSES TESTIFY

The trial of Oscar O. Dorsett, charged with illegal voting in Cloverdale Township, which was begun in Circuit Court Monday afternoon, continued Tuesday. It was stated by several persons from Cloverdale Township, men of both political faiths, that the case was simply a test case to determine the standing of such voters. It was not backed by any animosity or personal feeling, at least that is the story that comes from the seat of the trouble.

It is charged that Oscar Dorsett moved to Terre Haute and took with him his household goods. He claims on the other hand that he had declared his intention of holding his residence in Cloverdale Township, and for that purpose had left certain articles behind him. It is maintained that the declaration of intent constitutes residence, so far as voting is concerned, and that Dorsett had declared such intent.

At near nine o'clock Tuesday night the jury in the case of Oscar O. Dorsett charged with illegal voting in the Township of Cloverdale, reached a decision, and found the defendant not guilty. The verdict was practically what was expected. The law of Indiana in regard to voting is so vague and depends so much on facts that can be proved as upon intent which is largely a matter of a man thinking and not to be proved one way or the other, that Mr. Dorsett was quite within his rights under the law. And since he voted with good intent and has an interest in the community he is quite within all right.

The case went to the jury shortly before supper on Tuesday, and the jury was not long in reaching a conclusion. It is to be noted, too, that ten of the twelve jurors were Democrats, which shows that no partisan feeling entered into the case. Two other cases are yet to try and it is not yet known whether they will be punished or not.

2 NEW REPRESENTATIVES ACED

Frank L. Grubbs, deputy secretary of state, is investigating the vote for legislative candidates at the recent general election in Cass and Fulton Counties, where the election of a representative is in controversy.

If it is shown that a Democrat was elected in that district, and it is believed there is no doubt this is true, the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, owing to a change in the vote from Fountain County yesterday, will be twenty, and the Democratic majority on joint ballot will be sixteen.

Yesterday Mr. Grubbs was notified by telephone message from Anson G. Madden, clerk of the Fountain Circuit Court, that the Democratic candidate for representative in that county had been elected instead of the Republican candidate, as previ-

THE LAW AS INTERPRETED VICTORY TO BE GUARDED

Is Satisfactory to Democrats and Assures Success in the Contests Filed By the Candidates for State Offices On the Democratic Ticket.

ATTORNEYS EXPRESS OPINION

While the defeated Democratic candidates for State offices are making preparations for the contest which they will make in the Legislature to get possession of these offices, they are also looking into the procedure to be followed. And they have found a way out of their trouble.

The law governing contests for State offices is of an uncertain character. It provides that a contestant shall notify the House of Representatives of his contest by filing with it his showing that he is entitled to the office. The contestee is then notified and the House and Senate each appoints a committee of seven members to hear the evidence and decide the contest. Although these committees are chosen separately they sit jointly and as one body for the purpose.

After hearing all the evidence in the case, this joint committee decides the contest and its decision is final, according to the statute. When the committee reaches a decision it files a report and all the Legislature can do, under the law, is to adopt the report.

But the question arose as to what would happen in case the Senate committee was composed of Republicans and the House committee of Democrats, and each side should make a report of its own. This would mean two conflicting reports, one to the Senate and the other to the House.

Each house would probably adopt the report of its own committee, and in such case the Democrats, it has been argued, would not be able to get anywhere with their contest.

It has been pointed out that this is about what will happen.

But the Democrats say they have found a means of avoiding such a situation as this. They have consulted attorneys, who have given them opinions as to the law of the case. These attorneys say the joint committee will have to report to a joint session of the House and the Senate. While the statute does not make a specific provision for such a joint session, the lawyers say it is the only way in which a report could be made by the committee.

It is held by these attorneys that a statute can not be so construed as to defeat itself. If the contest committee were permitted to make a divided report, as is likely in this case, they say it would be permitting the statute to defeat its own purpose. This purpose, the lawyers declare, is to decide contests and not to prevent such contests from being decided. Therefore, they say, the joint committee will have to make its report to a joint session.

In this case, of course, the Democrats would win, for they will have a majority on joint ballot. This would enable them to adopt the report made by the Democratic members of the joint committee and to reject the report of the Republican members.

This is a new construction of the election contest law, but the Democratic lawyers profess their belief that it is the correct one. Since it became known that the Democrats were taking this view of the law Republican attorneys have been looking into it, but they have not had anything to say on the subject as yet.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

On Wednesday, November 11, neighbors and friends assembled at the residence of S. A. Boone, west of Reelsville for the purpose of celebrating the 59th anniversary of his wife's birth. Besides members of the family there were present fifty-two guests to wish Mrs. Boone many happy returns of the day. An abundant dinner was served and all testified their appreciation of its goodness by the enjoyment and good feelings while partaking of the meal. A number of the visitors brought presents to Mrs. Boone and it may be said that none of the guests had any but the kindest wishes for Mrs. Boone and her family.

The Scheme Alleged to be Attempted By the Republicans to Secure a Legislative Majority by Contests in The Senate is to be Headed Off.

EYE FOR EYE, TOOTH FOR TOOTH

The fact that a United States Senator is to be chosen at the next session of the Legislature will lead to a number of contests for election in both Houses, it is believed. Already several contests for election have been filed in different parts of the State by defeated Democratic candidates for the House, and at least some of these have been filed under the direction of the Democratic State organization, which, it is said, wishes to protect itself from any political schemes in the Senate.

In the Senate the Republicans will have the majority, and therefore will have the advantage of seating members of that body. One of the possibilities that has been considered by the Democrats is that the Republicans, taking advantage of their majority, will temporarily seat enough Republican members in the Senate to cut a big figure in electing a United States Senator—possibly enough to throw the United States Senatorship to the Republicans. Color is given to this theory by the fact that the election of the three Democratic candidates for State Senator in Marion County has been contested.

To meet any such emergency as the wholesale unseating of Democrats in the Senate, the Democratic State organization, it is understood, is getting ready to look after its interests in the House. In the House the Democrats are in the majority, and, of course, the advantages the members in that branch would equal those of the Republicans in the upper branch. If then, the Republicans should attempt to seat temporarily in the Senate enough of their members to affect the senatorship election, the Democrats would attempt to seat temporarily enough of their members in the House to offset the action of the Republican Senate.

Several contests which look to the seating of Democrats in the House have been filed in different counties of the State. In the Decatur Circuit Court a suit has been filed in which it is alleged that 175 illegal votes were cast and counted for Jethro C. Meek, the successful Republican candidate for Representative. It is alleged also that seventy-five votes that were cast for John H. Deniston, the Democratic candidate, and which were rejected, should have been counted. Meek's plurality was 180.

Influence of the Chicago Stock Show.

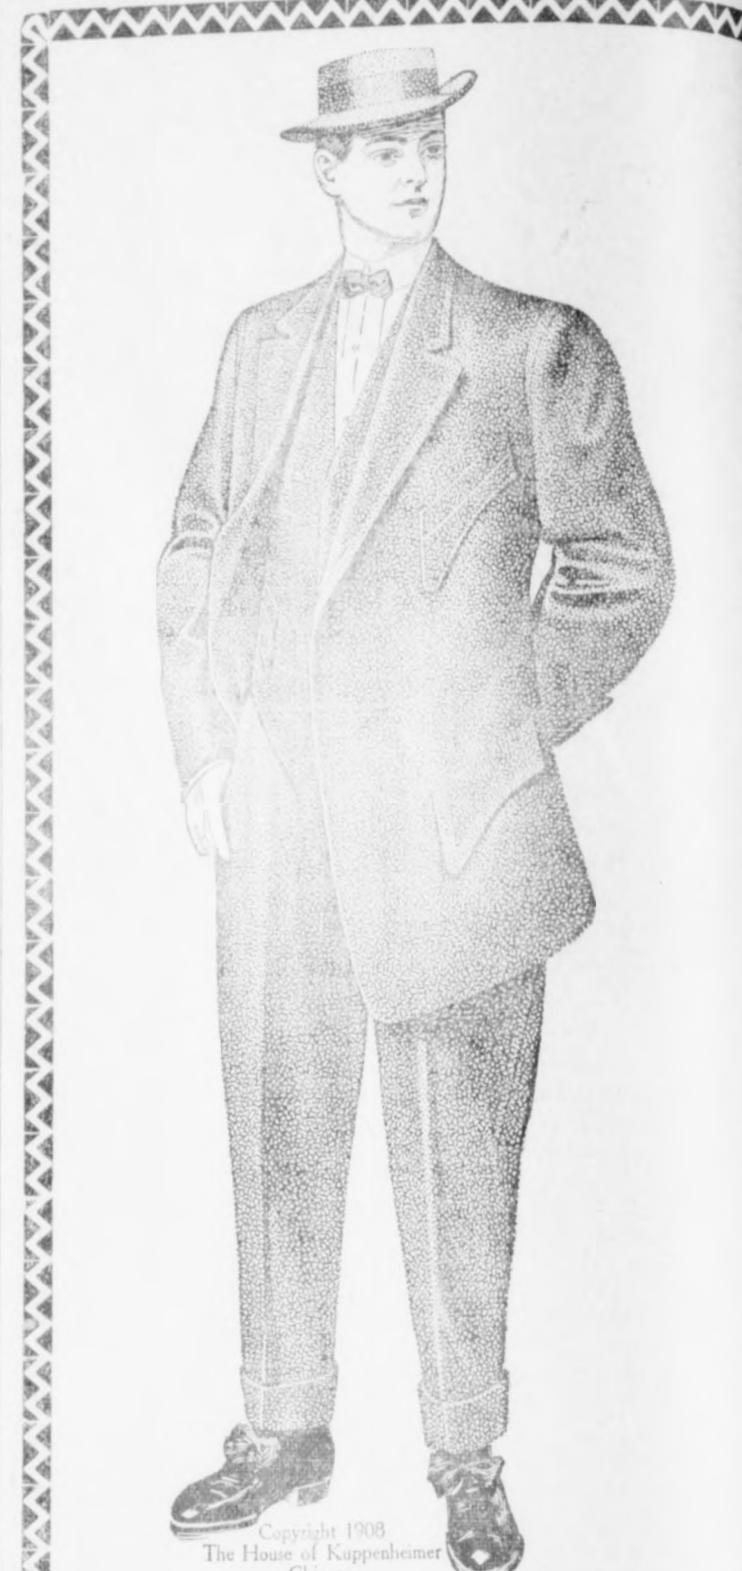

The International Live Stock Exposition, which will this year be held from November 28 to December 10 inclusive, has proved such a triumphal success, has made such phenomenal growth, has so widened its educational influence and has scored as such a popular attraction to all classes, that the management found it necessary to extend the dates, thus offering exhibitors greater opportunities, giving visitors more comfort and granting those most directly connected with the live stock industry more time for study and research.

The educational influence that radiates from this exposition cannot be overestimated, and as the live stock industry is the very life of agriculture and this great exposition its right arm, no progressive farmer or feeder can afford to ignore it.

The fate of the American farmer is, to a considerable extent, bound up with the success of his keeping live stock. The father owes it to his son to give him such training as will bring the best results, and the lessons taught at the "International" are of such a nature that they will not only create ideals, but also assure ultimate success; consequently, he should not overlook this opportunity, take advantage of the low railroad fares, acquire such lessons at this exposition as will prove beneficial to him in the performance of his daily labors, and also give himself and family a change, and perhaps much needed recreation.

OBITUARY

A Bud Transplanted

Remember friends as you pass by.

As you are now, so once was I.

As I am now so you must be prepared.

For death and follow me.

On the afternoon of November 16, 1908 after several months of intense suffering the angel of death visited the home of William and Anna Boswell and snatched away, Jacob Myson, aged 22 years. How mysterious are the ways of Providence, that one so young, so amiable should be called away. It does indeed seem a mystery that he should go but God doeth all things well.

Jacob had been sick several months of consumption. All that the physicians and family could do was done but in vain. The bud was snatched from earth to bloom in heaven. All through his sickness he was never heard to murmur or complain.

He leaves a father, mother, two brothers, four sisters and relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

His brother and sister, having preceded him to the better world, he will be greatly missed at home.

None but those who have given up their loved ones know how much he will be missed there. Everywhere you look you see something Jacob has done or touched.

His chair, his place at the table, there are so many things to remind us that the poor heart is bursting with grief and loneliness and it seems almost more than we can bear, but dear ones don't think of Jacob as dead, for he is not, he has only gone on before us to the better land.

Think of him in heaven so happy and not a pain nor heartache to make him sad. He is done with all that and the long, long days and nights of untold suffering are forgotten in his great joy and peace. Farewell dear brother, thou has left us to join the angels, but we will try to live as thou did true and faithful that we may meet thee again. We must not feel that he is dead for we are taught that a human soul never dies. He is only waiting for us on that golden shore in that city of God.

The funeral services were conducted at the Dunkard Church at Clinton Falls on Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock.

By Rev. Love and his body was carried by three of his brothers and three cousins, Carl Boswell, Clarence Boswell, John Hall, Earl Boswell, Joe Steggs, Oscar Boswell.

The remains were laid to rest in the Dunkard cemetery to await the call of Him who says, 'They are not dead but sleeping in the arms of Jesus.'

Mary M. Smith.

Mary M. Smith, daughter of Reuben and Lehr Smith, was born in Cloverdale Township, August 11, 1861, and grew to womanhood in that vicinity.

She was married to Lewis Kiser July 12, 1885. To this union were born two sons, Ray and George.

When death claimed husband and father and she was left to fight life's battles alone with her two little boys.

After a lonely life of nine years she was married to Lewis Neese, Nov. 10, 1894.

To this union were born four sons, two of whom died in infancy.

Four fourteen years Lewis and Maudie walked side by side, enjoying the blessings and helping each other to bear the burdens of life but oh how short these years do seem when death entered their pleasant home.

Nov. 19, 1908 and claimed her as its own and took her to the heavenly home to suffer pain and death no more.

She leaves to mourn for her husband, four sons, 3 step-daughters and five step-sons, two brothers, John and Peter Smith, besides a host of relatives and numerous friends.

For the consolation of friends we wish to say that "Linda" as she was called professed a hope in Christ in early life and has not only professed, but her life was such that her children and friends need not be afraid to patronize it.

Funeral preached at late residence by Rev. William Evans to a large crowd of people. Interment at Frederick Cemetery.

BAD FIRE AT WILLIAMSONS

Blaze Starts in the Basement and Only Prompt Work by the Department Saves the House From Destruction.

TWO STUDENTS ARE BURNED OUT

A fire that at first threatened to be very serious, and which did destroy practically the contents of the basement and one room on the first floor, broke out at the home of Mrs. D. E.

Williamson about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The fire department responded promptly and two lines of hose were laid, one to the basement and one to the first floor. The fire had originated in the basement and had reached the first floor through a closet under stairway. The fire was soon subdued, but not before it had destroyed the woodwork in the closet, weakened the stairway and ruined

the furniture of the room. The water completed the work of destruction.

The fire originated in a pile of waste paper in the basement, and communicated itself to a pile of kindling which in turn led the flames to the stairway. Mrs. Williamson saw the smoke and rushed to the basement and attempted, for a moment, to fight the fire herself. Seeing this was hopeless she called for help, but was several moments in

AS WAS EXPECTED.

Already the committee of the House which is gathering facts and figures upon which a revision of the tariff is to be based, are taking evidence. The witnesses are testifying upon the question of "a reasonable profit," as brought forward by the recent Republican platform. Thus far a considerable number of industries have been before the committee, and in no case has it been found that the tariff could be lowered. In many cases it has been found that it should be raised. The manufacturers have been able to show that they are not making "a reasonable profit," and that the schedule should stay as it is or be pushed higher. It is noticeable, also, that the consumer has no representation before this commission. The consumer will pay the tax, but he has absolutely nothing to say as to the rate of taxation. Thus, as has been pointed out by the Indianapolis News, in order to protect a half dozen camphor growers in Florida it is proposed to place a tax upon that commodity that will be a burden upon all the people of the United States. The consumer has not been asked whether he is willing. He is simply asked to pay. It appears to us that we have here some of the most unfair and radical of class legislation, the benefiting of the very few at the cost of the whole people. We wonder how long we will tolerate this condition.

SENATORS FROM THE PEOPLE.

During the campaign just past one of the points that received considerable attention, though not, perhaps, as much as it deserved, was the selection of the United States Senators by the people. Since the election the need of such a provision has been made very plain. In New York the selection of the man to take the place of Platt has practically been taken out of the hands, not only of the people, but of the legislature as well. Washington dispatches tell us that President Roosevelt and his cabinet are considering the matter of the proper man for senator from New York, Ohio and Connecticut. It is not a matter of the man the people desire, or that the party in the state desire, but of the man that is satisfactory to the Roosevelt administration. In Indiana we have an appeal from one of the candidates, for the decision of the people. He asks that the people express themselves and that the state senators and representatives listen to that expression. We believe the people are taking great interest in the election of senators because the senate of the United States, during the past few years, has been a menace to the people. It has been the stronghold of plutocracy, and legislation has been wrung from it only at tremendous expense of time, energy and money. This must cease to be, and the people will watch closely and resent ardently any attempt to foist a man they do not like upon them for six years as their representative.

THE PEOPLE'S PART.

As the days go by the fight between Democratic candidates for the United States Senate grows strenuous. All the candidates and their political friends are active. In a perfectly legitimate way, so far as we know, a most strenuous campaign is being made. This is perfectly right. Few men get things in this world that they do not, first, ask for and, second, work for. But there is another side to the struggle. The senators and representatives in the state legislature are by no means altogether free to decide for themselves in this matter. They are the representatives of their constituents. They are supported to do the will of the majority of their constituents if they can find what the majority wishes. It is when the will of the majority is in doubt that the representative falls back upon his own judgment. If he does not represent the will of the people he is not a representative. In the senatorial fight, if the people have any preference in the matter, it should be expressed. If the representatives do not know what the people want, the people and not the representative are to blame, if a man or a measure passes that does not meet with general approval. Let the people speak.

THE HENEY SHOOTING.

The shooting of Prosecuting Attorney Heney at San Francisco last Friday was the result of two things, lax law enforcement and desire for sensationalism on the part of Heney. It would appear that there was little need for the public exposure of the ex-convict who had found place on the jury. It sometimes happens that attorneys become callous and careless of the sufferings of others, and for effect make public denunciations that would accomplish the same results if made in private. This was true with Heney. But after all it is the failure of the law that we wish to speak of here. Ruef has been twice convicted. He has been twice freed by the higher courts. A jury has found him guilty of bribery and other infractions of moral and statutory law. The courts have released him because of minor errors in the drawing of the indictments. There was no doubt expressed by the higher court in regard to the guilt of the man. The court was simply vindicating law and its operation, a vindication that the layman would gladly see put by forever. What we want is not law but justice, and if law, as appears in these Ruef cases, is to thwart justice, then a little less law. It is, perhaps, not true, that the courts are behind criminals with money; but it is true that criminals with money can make such use of law and lawyers that conviction rarely follows. The people may be sure that the man is guilty, he may declare him guilty, he may himself confess that he is guilty, and yet the courts, by a skillful interpretation of the law, or errors in the law, will set him free, or order the work of trial to be done over again, which is nearly the same thing. In many instances law is not so much a matter of finding out the truth, of administering justice, as it is the playing of the game according to the rules. Some rules are doubtless necessary, but it appears to us that the ends of law are becoming completely lost sight of in the enveloping layers of rules and technical interpretations. And this was true in San Francisco.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Even the most ardent friends of temperance must admit the situation is now peculiar. The Anti-Saloon League has more than hinted that the Moore remonstrance law was out of date and no longer to be trusted. Eli F. Ritter, one of the strongest and oldest temperance workers in the state, has said the same thing and hinted that the present local option law would repeal it any way. The pages of the papers are crowded with letters from supposedly temperance people urging the repeal of the county unit law. Many wish it repealed to preserve the Moore law. Others take the vote of the state to be a rebuke to the law, either in itself or to the manner of its passage. We are free to confess that we can not see it in that light. We are confident that many people, themselves in favor of county option, voted the Democratic ticket, believing that the passage of the law took the measure out of politics and left other Democratic issues to the front. We believe that those who take the result of the election to show a wide-spread disaffection with the county unit law are mistaken. It should stand, either for good or bad, till it be tested. Repealed now, without trial, it remains as a subject to fight over in the future. Many have believed it powerless. Being upon the books it should be tried, proved, and its status established once for all, so that in the future there can be no question as to its effect in this state.

A STRAW VOTE.

The Herald desires to know the sentiment of Putnam County on the United States Senator. To ascertain this sentiment we are sending out, in today's paper, a blank ballot that any one wishing to express his opinion may make out and return to us. The vote as it comes in will be announced. It is hoped in this way to get some definite idea of the feeling toward the men who are now candidates for the high office.

If Mr. Taft should persist in following out the slight hint given in his recent speech, and should insist that the tariff be revised downward, what a blow that would be to the reviving confidence of Wall Street. It would be almost too much.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Thoughts from men of affairs upon questions of the Day.

The Tariff Curse Again.

The following from the Indianapolis News is worth reading and pondering over. Rarely has the tariff and its working been more clearly illustrated:

It was pointed out in the News of last night that the possibility of establishing the camphor industry in the United States would probably result in removing camphor from the free list. Thus it appears that the discovery of a new process, the development of a new natural resource or the creating of a new industry, is, or may be, an actual curse to the people. We are getting all the camphor we can use now, and at reasonable prices. But the moment it appears that more camphor is available we propose to increase its price and to make it as dear as it would be were the supply diminished. The more of a thing you have the more you must pay for it. So it is that the people would be better off without the new discovery or process. Thus the blessings of nature are taken from us. The natural man, unaffected by the protectionist logic, would rejoice at the opening up of a new natural resource because it would mean a larger supply of a commodity at a lower price. But this is not the way it works.

The new resource and the larger supply do not mean more of the commodity at lower prices, but less of it at higher prices. This may prove to be the case with camphor. In other words, we have adopted the theory that scarcity is a blessing, that high taxes are good things in themselves, and are quite convinced that it is proper for the Government to stand between the people and the gratification of their desires. We are wiser than the Almighty, who created a varied earth with various climates, with the idea that the different aptitudes and capacities of different peoples might supplement each other. We, on the contrary, nullify all these advantages by seeking to make all the world alike by imposing taxes, by "equalizing," as we say, conditions. We seek to make what we can do least as profitable as what we can do best, and deliberately rob ourselves of the advantage of enjoying the services of those who can serve us best. Doubtless camphor will go on the taxed list, with the result that we shall get less camphor for more money.

Preparing for the Worst.

The Springfield Republican is not hopeful on the subject of tariff revision. Yet it is likely to get all that it ever had a right to expect from the influences now in control of the Government. Our contemporary thinks that "there is strong reason for believing that not only the steel but the other tariff schedules have won immunity from any substantial reductions as a result of the election." The theory is that the country has "voted for industrial peace and an immediate restoration of prosperity." This, we are assured, "is to be the interpretation of the Republican leaders in Congress and made to exclude a downward tariff revision as hostile to the maintenance of business peace." The Springfield paper quotes the New York Journal of Commerce thus:

The situation is believed to be more unfavorable to any genuine tariff revision or currency legislation than had been anticipated, notwithstanding that very little along either

INTERURBAN LINE EXTENDED

The Gap Between Danville and Amo is to Be Closed at an Early Date, Giving Entry to Indianapolis via Danville.

PRELIMINARY WORK GOING ON

A special from Danville, Ind. says: It is understood from employees of the Indianapolis and Danville branch of the T. H. I. & E. traction line that the curve east of Danville is to be straightened by running a new line 600 feet north of the present right of way, and that this is preparatory to completing and closing the seven-mile gap between Danville and Amo, connecting with the main line to Terre Haute. Surveys have been made.

Rockville people believe the line from that city to Danville, to connect with the Indianapolis and Danville line, will be built the coming year, according to Howard Maxwell, defeated Republican nominee for Congress. He says when the State Tuberculosis Commission decided to place the institution in Parke County it was with the understanding that an east and west traction line was to be built near the grounds.

ROSEBUD MINE CASES SET

Suits for More Than $100,000 Damages, Venued Here From Clay County, to be Tried November 27.

Probably one of the largest suits for damages ever tried in Putnam County will come up before the court on November 27. The several cases against the Vandalia Coal Company, who operate the Rosebud mine, located near Seelyville, will be tried here on that date. The cases grew out of an explosion in the company's mine in 1906, when two were killed and twenty injured. Damages to the extent of over $100,000 will be asked.

The miners claim that the explosion was caused by dust in the mine, which the company failed to sprinkle according to law, and the company claims that the explosion was caused by gases.

Another case for damages which is on the docket for this term of court is the suit of Frances O. Jones against the Big Four Railroad. This case was brought to Putnam County on a change of venue from the Vigo Circuit Court and damages are asked to the extent of $100,000. The suit grows out of the Sanford explosion several months ago when a car of powder and dynamite exploded while standing at the side of a passenger train.

of these lines is looked for.

We need, so it is said, not so much to anticipate that the tariff will be revised downward as to fear that it may be revised upward, for this latter form of revision "may be demanded by protected industry with more imperative voice than ever in order to give reviving prosperity such as artificial stimulus as it received in the Republican's upward revision of 1897." The following is the conclusion:

Yet the industry of the country should know that permanent and genuine prosperity is not thus to be had. It should be warned by the disturbing effects of each recurring presidential election that business peace is not to be found with industry raised high on artificial props which every political blast that sweeps over the country will shake or break. Tariff reduction can not forever be postponed, unless we are permanently to accept a policy of comparative commercial isolation among the nations of the world. And if it is not to be effected in times of industrial prosperity, when then, if not in time of business adversity which has proved the ineffectiveness of high customs duties as a creator and protector of prosperity?

Excellent arguments before the election these are, but they have little weight after it. Why can not "tariff reduction be forever postponed" when all that is necessary to secure that end is to vote for the party which believes in "comparative industrial isolation"? Why should the Republican party want industrial and business peace when its strongest asset is the cry that it raises every four years that its defeat will involve the country in "industrial isolation"? "Industry raised high on artificial props" is very much to its taste, for it can pose as the special
