as second-class matter.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., APRIL 7, 1894

A BUTTER trust has been organized in Illinois, with a half million capital. It will doubtless be a strong affair.

THE Indianapolis chief of police is going to run the "mashers" off the street corners in that city. This of course doesn't refer to the mashers on the police force.

MIDST the gloom that has fallen over the Democratic camp as a result of the spring elections throughout the country, there comes one flash of welcome light to brighten up the scene. Arkansas went Democratic without opposition.

SOUTH CAROLINA is maintaining the reputation of the state for refusing to abide by the laws. The spirit of nullification which made its first big demonstration half a century ago is yet strong in South Carolina. It caused that state to be the first to attempt to secede from the union and it was the last of the Southern states to become "reconstructed" after the war.

It is said of large cities that it is possible for men to live a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" existence for years without fear of discovery, but one Chicago man has found out that a dual life will surely be exposed on one who ventures into politics. One of the defeated candidates for alderman in Tuesday's election is openly charged after the election, too —with having a wife and children on one avenue, while living with another woman on another avenue, and the paper in question welcomes it as a rebuke to "Breckinridgeism."

SPEAKER CRISP refused the appointment of senator from Georgia to succeed the late Senator Colquitt, evidently figuring that to accept would be going from bad to worse. Patrick Walsh, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, was then given the appointment. He is a representative of the rapidly developing sentiment in the South favoring protection, is a close personal friend of Senator Hill, and an avowed opponent of Hoke Smith. His appointment makes it possible that the new tariff measure is still further away from passage than ever.

ZELLA NICOLAUS, the young woman who became possessed of George Gould's $40,000 check and who flew away to Europe after a sudden termination of litigation regarding the check is firmly convinced, no doubt, that she is under the ban of the subsidized plutocratic press because a show manager would not pay her $150 a week for the reason that the newspapers were ignoring her and thereby failing to advertise her. Zella would not be any more unreasonable in her statement that Gould has subsidized the newspapers than are many of the misfit men in this world who are constantly asserting that the press of the country is subsidized by the plutocrats.

THE Democrats already have a larger majority in the house of representatives than they know what to do with, but continue to increase it by unseating Republicans and giving their places to Democratic contestants. The party is not any nearer united in this work than in anything else that has been undertaken at the present session of congress, and in one case, that of O'Neill against Joy, three of the Democratic congressmen from Missouri voted against O'Neill, the contestant, and the Democratic committee in the disputed district protested against the unseating of Joy, claiming that he had been fairly elected. As a rule, however, the Democrats are but little different from the Republicans in contests for seats in the house. The contestants whose party has control of the house is usually sure of carrying his point whether he has a good case or not.

COXEY's army, in its numbers and composition, is a ridiculously small affair, and its reception by the people is therefore all the more significant. Undoubtedly it is the idea the army is intended to represent that the people applaud. A staff correspondent of a Chicago newspaper writes that he has stopped making predictions about the commonweal, because the whole thing is so utterly improbable that no one can tell what will be the outcome. "I am beginning to feel," says the correspondent, "that the movement has some meaning, that it is a manifestation of the prevailing unrest and dissatisfaction among the laboring classes." In Pittsburg and Allegheny City Coxey and his grotesque army were warmly received by the labor unions, but it is preposterous to suppose that the workmen sought to pay tribute to the band of tramps and cranks; it was the idea of making a demonstration of protest to Congress that caused the toilers to testify their approval. The correspondent quoted above says there is no doubt of the earnestness and warmth of the receptions everywhere, and the movement has more meaning than either Coxey or Browne imagines. It would not be surprising if the growing demand of the industrial classes for more and better recognition by the lawmakers should yet be triumphant, and thereby make Coxey a sort of John Brown, though, as said above, he in himself and in his army does not truly represent the industrial classes.

The Chicago newspapers have prevailed on the postoffice department to start another early morning fast mail train out of that city. This time it is to reach Iowa points. Several years ago these newspapers united their varied influence and caused the department to start fast trains an hour or so after midnight in several directions that they might place an early edition of their paper in the hands of the people at points several hundred miles away by breakfast time.
Of course there is no necessity for these trains to carry ordinary mail, because letters are posted by evening and go out on the regular night trains. The New York newspapers have done the same thing but they have been less frank about it. They insist that it is to benefit the New York business men, as if the business men remained up until midnight to avoid mailing their letters to catch the evening trains so that they could leave New York seven hours later at 2 o'clock in the morning.

THE universal desire of Indianians outside of Indianapolis to hold their various state gatherings elsewhere than in the capital city has been gratified to a large extent in the past two or three years, but a reaction has set in and no doubt Indianapolis will again be the undisputed place for all conventions and assemblies of whatever character. The reaction is not due to the subsidence of the feeling of disgust for the capital city's porcine proclivities, but simply because the location is far and away the best of any city in the state. The Royal Arcanum, whose state council was held here Thursday, returns to Indianapolis next year because it is cheaper and more convenient to meet there. Delegates from nearly every point in the state can attend a meeting at Indianapolis and lose but one day from their private business, whereas to come to this city, to go to Fort Wayne or Evansville, delegates from some localities are obliged to be absent from home two days.

THE reports of the Breckinridge trial are the nastiest that ever appeared in the daily newspapers of this country.
But one daily newspaper that The Mail has seen has refused to give space to them. This newspaper is the Indianapolis News and whatever may be said of its "newspaper sense," nothing but praise is its due for its motive. It is an old topic, that of the good or harm that is done by the newspaper publication of the details of the conduct of the wicked in this world. Too often, go doubt, the newspaper makes virtue an excuse for its course in handling these unsavory affairs and yet there are some ways of looking at the matter by which it may be seen that there is possible good to be done by the publications. Whatever may be the fact and truth as to this mooted question one thing has been made plain in this Washington instance, which is that both the man and woman have enjoyed the opportunity to exhibit their alert intellects and wits on the witness stand. Their conceit in this respect was so overwhelming that the sense of decency became secondary in what they said and did.

WHY is it that no sooner does a prominent judge decide a question favorably to the laboring interests, in any litigation before him, than his usefulness is ended by nominating him for the presidency. At Omaha, this week, Judge Caldwell, in the Union Pacific wages schedule overruled Judge Dundy's decision in the matter, and gave a decision that is more pronounced in favor of labor organizations, and farther reaching in its effects than any heretofore rendered. And the first thing we hear is that he "has earned the nomination of the laboring world for the presidency." The decision is a just one, and is all the more appreciated from the fact that United States judges have of late seemingly gone out of their way to protect the interests of corporations at the expense of their less influential employees. But how does a man "earn" a nomination to the presidency by one decision, or any number of them, given because he believes they are in accordance with law and justice. It was just such talk as this that put the presidential bee in Walter Q. Gresham's bonnet long ago, and by the putting destroyed a fairly good judge and made a poor presidential candidate. By certain decisions in which he took occasion to make stump speeches in the interests of the laboring men, he was soon looked upon as the laboring man's friend, and when his name was before the Republican national convention the Republican machine that happened to be in charge of the Chicago government turned out all the Italians on the public works, with tin buckets, to show Gresh-am's strength with the people. It availed him nothing, however, and his usefulness as a judge was ended. Judges who earn presidential nominations had better beware of the fate that befell Mr.

Gresham.

It is the stock in trade of many individuals to rail at the law and lawyers, condemning the one as devised for the protection of criminals, and at the legal profession as one calculated to defeat justice, and there is some ground for the complaint when the case of Prendergast, the Chicago assassin, is considered. Here is a man convicted of a heinous crime, and who, if as crazy as alleged by his lawyers, is crazy enough to hang, and yet a judge was found willing to stretch the law to fit the particular case, and who, after setting aside Supreme court rulings, allowed the miserable wretch to escape the fate he so richly deserved. This week the same judge extended the stay of execution in that case until July 2. It is quite likely that when July 2 comes further technicalities will be discovered by means of which justice will again receive a setback, and so on indefinitely until the matter grows out of the public mind. A little judicious mixture of common sense with law would bring good results in our justice, and no better place to try it can be found than in the court that is assisting Prendergast to escape his sentence.

Hoberg's special exhibition Monday and Tuesday of Wrappers, Tea Gowns, Negligee Gowns and House Robes should be visited by every lady of Terre Haute, as special orders will be taken. Garments thus made will cost about two thirds regular price.

Goodman & Hirschler are still kept busy unpacking new Spring Clothing.
They never had so many pretty styles as this season. Men's Boys' and Children's Suits in great variety, for less money than has ever been known before. The Tailoring Department of Goodman & Hirschler is a real busy one.
They have a good many orders for Spring Suits ahead, and are constantly receiving new styles of foreign and domestic woolsens.

Eiser's for Ice Cream Soda.

Wulschner & Son, 640 Wabash Avenue, have a novel display in their east window that attracts much attention. It is a Henry F. Miller Separable Upright Piano, separated, showing the complete mechanism and make-up of a piano.
The piano is especially adapted for removal, and can thus be taken up narrow stairs where otherwise an instrument could not be handled. Unlike many other pianos this case is of solid material, without veneering, and by this being separable all possibility of deception is avoided. It is an unique window display, and should be seen to be appreciated.

The Spring has come, gentle Annie, and the demand for spring suits is on the increase. If you want to be in the head set, go to Kiewit & Holler's, 649 1/2 Main street, and leave your order for a new suit from some of the elegant patterns they are displaying. They will give you a first class fit, from the newest designs, and at prices that will surprise you at their lowness.

New Chemical Cleaning Department.

We are having remarkable success in treating fine fabrics of delicate colors, such as silks, satins, evening costumes, rippled and unrippled dresses of all kinds, without in the least affecting the colors or changing the shape.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS. The effect of our new Chemical Cleaning process on silks, satins, brocade and damask curtains, portieres, window draperies, etc., etc., is wonderful.

HOUSEKEEPERS SHOULD NOT FAIL to have us do this class of work. Chemical Cleaning can be applied with equally good results to rugs, druggets, mats, etc., etc.

your residence or made any change in your business or location lately? If so call or drop a postal with full information to directory office, room 8, Beach Block, so as to get it corrected if not already corrected by us. Attend to this immediately or it will be too late. Re-

Take your work to the New Method.
It is the only laundry in the city that does their work soft finish, which is a big saving on the linens. We give you your choice of either the Polish or domestic finish. We attend to all repairing and replace wornout neckbands with new ones free. Goods called for and delivered promptly.

NEW METHOD LAUNDRY CO., 725 Wabash Ave.

If every man in this city who smokes cigars would make it a point to buy nothing but union made cigars, employment would be given to a great number of cigarmakers at good wages and every branch of local trade would be benefitted thereby. If you are a smoker why don't you do your share towards such a condition of affairs by insisting on having nothing but a blue-blue cigar. If your dealer doesn't keep them he will do so if you insist on it. Patronize home industries, help your own people, and therefore help your own city.

"Beechwood" at Naylor's next Friday evening.

Have you seen the "Soft Finish" on laundry work as turned out by the New Method Laundry Co.? It is the very latest thing in this line, and every person who sees it falls in love with it. Can be given either in domestic or high gloss, and the New Method Laundry is the only one in the city that does it.

Uniform Rank Fair at Castle Hall, week of April 30th.

For the liberal patronage accorded the hotel in the past, I desire to thank and to assure the public that when reopened August 1st, the hotel will be one of the most complete in the state. N. FILBECK.

The art of getting something for nothing is one of the lost arts to us. The art of good cooking is not a lost art, neither is the art of making good cook stoves.
But too much strain after the artistic in cook stoves stimulates what should be one of the lost arts, namely, the art of an artful salesman to get from an artless
