CHICAGO STOCK SHOW TO OPEN NEXT MONTH

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—Heading the schedule of events on Chicago's fall calendar is the International Live Stock Exposition and Horse Show, which will be held here this year November 26 to December 3.

Stockmen and farmers from many states and Canada have already sent entries for live stock and crops they will exhibit this year in the competitions of this largest of the continent's live stock shows. Cash prizes will total over $100,000 in contests featuring 30 different breeds of horses, cattle, sheep, and swine.

Climaxes Show Season

Ever since the first International show in 1900, the exposition has opened on the first Saturday after Thanksgiving, a calendar position that has made it both the close and climax of the continent's agricultural fair season.

Since a majority of the herds and flocks that are exhibited at the Chicago exposition have been prize winners at county and state fairs and sectional expositions, held earlier in the year throughout this country and Canada, the International Live Stock Show has long stood as a court of last resort where winning animals are accorded the highest honor that the show ring can bestow.

The exposition will be held in the new International Amphitheatre at the east entrance to the Chicago Stock Yards. The building covers six acres of exhibit area and was built to meet the special needs of the show after which it is named.

Farm Crops Featured

This year will mark the 20th anniversary of the International Grain and Hay Show, a department of the live stock exposition. The crops show is the largest competitive exhibition of its kind in the world, and farmers from nearly every state in the union and province of Canada are expected to take part in this event this year.

According to B. H. Heide, the show's secretary-manager, the advance entry of both live stock and crops is the largest in its history, and plans are being made to receive approximately 14,000 head of live stock at the 1938 exposition.
