

COW TESTERS NEEDED BECAUSE DHIA GROWTH

By Purdue News Service

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 2.—Indiana's Dairy Herd Improvement Association activities have made remarkable progress during the past quarter of a century, according to G. A. Williams, Purdue University extension dairyman, who reports there are now 53 associations operating in 86 Hoosier counties.

When the work was first started in Lake county, there was only a few herds receiving the benefits of the improvement program. Today, Williams states, there are more than 15,000 cows receiving individual feeding and management attention given by specially trained cow testers, who visit the association herds at least once a month. The present scope of the program is the largest since its inauguration in the state.

Williams reports a keen demand for specially trained and experienced cow testers. Last year 20 of the 40 students enrolled in dairy production classes of the Purdue eight weeks' course in agriculture signified they were interested in doing testing work. Seventeen persons of that group are now in the testing vocation.

The University's next eight weeks' dairy production course will be held January 16 to March 10, says Williams. This course is designed to train persons as: dairy farm operators, dairy herd improvement association supervisors, and other vocations requiring a knowledge of dairy production. The subjects usually studied include: feeding, marketing, diseases of dairy cattle, testing of milk and cream, dairy bacteriology, and others relating to dairy farming.

PURDUE AGRICULTURE ALUMNI TO GIVE 5 RADIO PROGRAMS, DEC. 6 TO 10

By Purdue News Service

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 2.—Plans have been completed for Hoosier agriculture to go on the air with a series of five radio programs, all scheduled during the noon hour of the week of Dec. 5, to 10, Ed Menefee, chairman of the Purdue University agricultural alumni radio committee, has announced.

Forty-five-minute programs of "fun and fundamentals" will be presented over the following stations: December 5, WIND at Gary, 12:15 to 1 o'clock; December 6, WOWO at Ft. Wayne, 11 to 11:45 o'clock; December 7, WFBM at Indianapolis, 11:30 to 12:15 o'clock; December 8, WGBF at Evansville, 10:15 to 11 o'clock. Climaxing the week's farm radio broadcasting will be a 30-minute program Saturday morning, December 10, 7:30 to 8 o'clock over WLW at Cincinnati. All time is C. S. T.

County agricultural agents, Purdue specialists, Purdue alumni, Indiana's outstanding farmers who are cooperating with the University's many farm projects, and others will appear on each of these programs. Menefee said. Each program will be distinctly different and will present information of vital importance to all farmers.

Providing entertainment on these programs, Menefee has arranged with A. P. Stewart, Purdue choral director, for many of the state's outstanding county home economics choruses to sing songs popular with Hoosier rural folks. On the WLW program, music will be furnished by the famous Purdue Military Band and the Purdue Choral Societies.

NEW HISTORICAL SITES DEVELOPED FOR TOURISTS

Three more historical sites have been developed and opened for tourists during the past fiscal year, bringing the total of national parks to 144 which cover more than 19,000,000 acres in the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii, according to Bert Vanderwarf, head of the Chicago Motor club touring bureau.

The new parks include Olympic park in Olympic Peninsula, Washington; Saratoga National Historical park, New York; and the Salem National Historical site, Massachusetts, he said.

"Tourists to national parks number more than fifteen million at the close of the 1937 travel year September 30, 1937, but as ten national parks have been added since that time the parks' attendance record should be shattered by nearly a million this year," Mr. Vanderwarf predicted.
