New Non-Fiction

"Wind, Sand and Water" by Antoine de Saint Exupery. A French aviator who followed the profession of airline pilot for 8 years, takes you in his own magic world. The trail he covers is wide, ranging from the Sahara and Libya, to South America and back to Europe and Spain. Along that trail are moments of breathless beauty, of adventures that tauten nerves to the breaking point, of thirst and privation and danger in a dozen guises. There is a headlong crash in the desert; a hurricane of incredible ferocity. An unusual book, exciting and intelligent.

"The Penthouse of the Gods" by Theos Bernard. The Penthouse of the Gods—sacred city of Thasa in the mountains of Tibet—await Theos Bernard at the end of his journey up over the Himalayas to the age-old Buddhist Kingdom. The Lamas welcomed him into their stupendous structure, the Potala, Tibetan holy-of-holies. There in the innermost temple, he is probably the only white man who became a Buddhist monk. As a travel story alone, it unfolds with a vivid, compelling sense of reality, the hazardous journey by mule and pony from India over the wastelands, the great plateaus and steep passes of Tibet. In Lhasa, he mingled with the priests who are also the high officials of government; was allowed, because of his religious standing, to visit and in some cases, photograph the sacred shrines. The religious festivals, in which he par-

DRIVE TO HELP FARMERS
SELL MORE EGGS

Indiana now ranks with leaders among states in value of egg crop. Aim is to increase consumption.

The Hoff-Brau Brewing Corporation of Fort Wayne is inaugurating a special educational campaign to help farmers move Indiana's enormous egg crop and to stabilize market prices by encouraging increased public consumption.

Indiana farmers produced 1,165,000,000 eggs in 1938 at a total value of $20,000,000.

All told, the annual income from chickens and eggs produced in Indiana averages 18 per cent of the farmer's total cash income. It is twice as great as the farm income from truck, nursery and greenhouse products and five per cent more than the total income from livestock and livestock products, and only slightly less than the total income from field and forest crops.

To carry out its campaign, the Hoff-Brau Brewing Corporation is now distributing counter displays, featuring raw and hardboiled eggs as an inviting and nourishing food with beverages. These cards are being displayed wherever beer is sold.

"Egg and Beer for Health and Cheer"

The above slogan will be extensively featured in all newspaper, billboard and radio advertising—and every tavernkeeper will be personally instructed to display a large bowl of prepared eggs on the counter and back-bar where they can readily be seen by every customer. Eggs will be featured for daily consumption by both young and old. Eggs for lunch—eggs with meals—eggs possessing the greatest food value for the least cost—also contain most of the vitamins our systems need.

This cooperative effort by the Hoff-Brau Brewing Corporation, in aid of the farmer, will continue throughout the remainder of the year, and is expected to lead to advantageous results—not only to the farmer, but to the general public, which naturally will be influenced to a better understanding of the real value of eggs, from the standpoint of nutrition as well as taste.
