CORN, SOYBEAN FIELD DAY WILL BE HELD

Corn and Soybean Field Day will be held at Purdue University September 21, 1939.

Every year a few farmers from Kosciusko County attend the field day at Purdue. Some of the high lights of field day this year are 200 dent corn hybrids and varieties, in breds and single crosses, and early, medium and late hybrids planted at five dates from May 1st to June 15th. There is thirty-three bushels difference in corn yield, due to soil treatment and limiting soil fertility factor in corn production and its remedy.

Corn and soybeans in rotation with other field crops. They have seventeen commercial varieties of soybeans and sorghum compared with corn for ensilage.

On Friday, September 22, is the annual Purdue Swine Day. Last year 16 farmers from Kosciusko County attended Swine Day. The meeting will start at 10:00 a.m., at the experimental swine farm, 3 miles north of West Lafayette. Some points of interest in the feed lots are: Supplement C on pasture and supplement 5 in dry lots have been the best in past tests, but some new mixtures are giving them real competition this year. Hybrid corn and open pollinated corn are on trial for palatability and feeding value.

At 1:15 p.m., in the livestock pavilion at the University farm, Howard Greer will explain how the packer determines the price that he can afford to pay for live hogs. The experimental feeding will also be discussed.

1940 DODGES, PLYMOUTHS ON DISPLAY HERE

Demonstrators of the new Dodge and Plymouth automobiles are now on display at the Syracuse Auto Sales display room, according to manager Fred Hoopingarner. Both cars are featuring several improvements this year.

Dodge, featuring new color tones, full-floating ride and greater economy is expected to be one of the best sellers in the low price field this year. Plymouth is well described by the expression, "you never saw such Style and Economy in any low-priced car." It also features Luxury Ride and greater beauty.

Mr. Hoopingarner has one of each of the two cars for his friends and patrons to look over; the Dodge a bright shade of maroon without running boards (this being optional to the buyer) and the Plymouth, a beautiful shade of green. Both cars include several improvements over last year's models.

A large Persian cat, valued at $250, jumped from the car of tourists at Brooklyn, Ia., and the family stayed over two days until it was found.
