

Syracuse-Wawasee
Journal
With Which Is Combined
The Syracuse News

The Only Paper Published in the Syracuse-Wawasee Lake District.
A legal paper for all Kosciusko
County, Township and Legal notices.

Published Every Friday

Entered as Second Class Matter
at the Post Office at Syracuse, Ind.
under act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

For Year $1.50—in Advance.

J. B. Cox, Publisher

Invest your CHRISTMAS
savings in Uncle Sam's WAR BONDS. Keep on
Backing the Attack.

Keep on EATING

It's a sure bet that birds
that won't eat won't fly!
Step up the appetite
of birds "off feed" with CHEK-R-TON, mixed right in the mash. Also helpful in killing large roundworms, reducing
intestinal inflammation,
returning bowel
action to normal.

Stiefel Grain Co.

PHONE 886

Syracuse Indiana
SEE US FOR YOUR NEEDS

25 Years Ago...

From the Files of The Journal

Jan. 2, 1919.

The following letter from Harry M. Riddle to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Riddle, tells of his routine: 6 a.m., leave out and get ready for chow, 7:30—school, 10:30 to 12 drill, 1 p.m. school until 5 p.m., 6:30—chow and liberty until 10 p.m. Saturday no school. Captains inspection. Liberty from 1 p.m. on Sat. to 8 a.m. Monday.—Harry M. Riddle, U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Mass.

The following grocery stores will be closed from now until the first of April at 6 p.m. every day except Friday, Saturday and payday.—F. W. Launer, Seider and Bergner, Kindig & Co.

F. O. Richcreek had an attack of stomach trouble Thursday from eating beefsteak.

The controversy is on regarding the taking of marl from Lake Wawasee and the statement is made by the restorers that the lake will be destroyed. The very presence of the marl indicates that the lake is gradually filling up. Many of the older citizens can remember the days when the present marshes were all deep water. Part of this town is built on land that was once a portion of the lakes. If the marl is not removed and kept off the lake bottom, then as surely as the sun rises and sets, Lake Wawasee will fill up and be no more.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gantz, who have been residing at the Milton Woods farm east of Syracuse, moved into town last week, and

FRESH BAKED GOODS DAILY

XMAS FRUIT CAKES
All sizes especially wrapped for Service Men's Boxes.

Special Orders
For PARTIES, CLUBS,
WEDDINGS or BANQUETS
Given Special Attention
FRESH BAKED GOODS
From the
Huffman Bakery, Nappanee
PHONE 80 or 474

SWARTZ GROCERY
Syracuse, Ind.

are now occupying the Catherine Bushong property.

Jan. 1st of this year marked the 55th anniversary of the celebrated New Year to which pioneers take delight in referring. A remarkable drop in temperature came Jan. 1, 1864. On Dec. 31, 1863, the evening was warm, but the mercury began falling New Years day, and registered 28 below zero, a drop of 65 degrees.

Millard Hile, who is stationed at Hampton Roads, Va., at naval electrical training school, spent an 8-day furlough here with relatives and friends, returning on Friday.

Wm. G. Connolly delivered a sewing machine Tuesday to a customer near Mishawaka.

Postmaster Hooplogarner is in receipt of a letter from W. D. Bishop, deputy treasurer of the national war work council of the Y. M. A. C., stating that the association has had returned to it, for better address, a soldiers remittance which was sent from France. The remittance was addressed to Mrs. Sarah Howard, Syracuse, Ind., and was sent by Roscoe C. Howard, 1st Co., 2nd Motor Mch. Mr. Bishop was promptly notified by Postmaster Hooplogarner that this piece of mail could be delivered and gave the proper instructions.

Postmaster Hooplogarner is in receipt of a letter from W. D. Bishop, deputy treasurer of the national war work council of the Y. M. A. C., stating that the association has had returned to it, for better address, a soldiers remittance which was sent from France. The remittance was addressed to Mrs. Sarah Howard, Syracuse, Ind., and was sent by Roscoe C. Howard, 1st Co., 2nd Motor Mch. Mr. Bishop was promptly notified by Postmaster Hooplogarner that this piece of mail could be delivered and gave the proper instructions.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• A "code" in the head the past two weeks has just about stopped production at our office. We actually were ashamed of the make-up on last week's paper. But "flu" is no respecter of persons—Dr. Landis and his wife both had it—and Dr. Fosbink's wife also.

• We've had so little real old-fashioned winter here, that some folks think that now we will get by easy. We've had just one spell of zero weather—no high winds and very little snow. It's too good to last.

• The lakes have been just perfect for ice skating this season. Large numbers of young folks—and several not so young—are making good use of it, too.

• "We recommend that you see

"Claudia" at the Pickwick theater, starting Sunday. It's plenty good entertainment.

• Local merchants report business of 25 to 50 percent above normal during December. Almost everybody's got money and wants to spend it.

• Part of the program was omitted.

At the close of the program the Christmas committee served dainty refreshments.

The club will meet in two weeks with Mary Hoy.

Ladies of
The Round Table

Mrs. Olive Miller was hostess to members of the Ladies of the Round Table Monday evening, Jan. 3. Seventeen members were present.

During the business meeting officers for the coming year were elected:

Mrs. George Rex, president.
Mrs. Leonard Barnhart, v.p.
Mrs. V. V. Hammer, secy.
Mrs. Orville Carr, treas.

As part of the program, Mrs. Hilary Bachman gave an article on "Negroes in the Entertainment World," mentioning Marion Anderson, Duke Ellington, Cab Calloway, and others.

For a sketch of a famous negro Mildred Hammer chose George Washington Carver.

Both subjects were very interesting and were greatly enjoyed by all.

This evening happening to be our hostesses birthday, she treated the ladies to delicious cake and coffee.

AROUND TOWN

(With J. B. C.)

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his circus life, but did not detract from his interest in them. He probably has worked in every newspaper office that has operated in Syracuse. He also did several "stretches" in cities. He loved to fish and spent a great deal of time on the lakes here. His jovial disposition, genuine friendliness, a knack of telling good jokes and historical happenings, endeared him to hundreds of people here.

• This week we write "thirty" for Ira Howard, veteran newspaper employee and a former publisher. Born in Syracuse, he spent his early life here. While a young man he joined a circus and did odd jobs, ran side shows and finally became a clown and tight rope walker. This last trick was the means of bringing him back to Syracuse. He fell from a tight wire which was stretched between the second stories of two buildings in a southern Illinois town. A broken leg resulted. That ended his