WHEN THE CORPORAL RETURNS TO HIS Grocery Store

★ Today, the Corporal works for the biggest "grocery store" in the world... the Quartermaster Corps of the United States Army. His storeroom is a jungle clearing. His customers are khaki-clad G-I fighters. But, his merchandise still includes many of the items he used to handle at home.

In this far-off place, the steady arrival of goods from home has given the Corporal a new "slant" on transportation. He'll tell you, "our existence depends on a continuous flow of supplies... and if the stuff is late, we start worrying about our next meal."

When steaming jungles are just a memory and the Corporal re-opens his corner store, he'll appreciate the full importance of transportation in his everyday work. He'll continually depend on the railroads to fill his shelves with goods from all over the nation.

When he calls on the Baltimore & Ohio, with its 70,000 workers and 11,000 miles of track, he'll find rail service fitted to his desires for convenience, speed and safety. In all ways, the Corporal will enjoy finer B&O service than before he went to war.

Red Cross Notes

The success of the Red Cross is primarily due to the humanitarian spirit and sense of responsibility on the part of the men and women in 3,756 Red Cross chapters and 6,084 branches, covering every country and hamlet throughout the nation. At the Red Cross Institute held in South Bend last week, Mr. Carney Smith, regional director, presided at all sessions held, every morning and afternoon throughout the week. Miss Hannah Hubbard, home service Field Representative, conveyed firsthand information to volunteers working in this department, having just arrived from national headquarters at Washington, D. C. Mr. Rexford L. Shaffer, chief, claims and benefits of Home Service, and a splendid speaker, said, "What Red Cross has done is just kindergarten compared to what is before us."

Under Red Cross activity: On August 21, the armed forces began flying to Europe daily shipments of typed whole blood being currently collected by the Red Cross blood donor centers of New York and Washington. Army and Navy request is for 6,000 pints of whole blood a week and is in addition to the 100,000 pints weekly required for blood plasma. Thus making a total of 106,000 pints Red Cross must obtain weekly from donors. Air shipment of whole blood to Europe has been made feasible by new strides in preservation and transportation techniques. Basil O'Connor, newly appointed chairman of the American Red Cross, said that the surgeons general emphasized that their request for whole blood, while urgent, is fully matched in importance by the continuing need for plasma: as our armed forces advance, more donors are needed. A pint of blood is the most important contribution any American at home can make. Emphasizing that whole blood would be used in base hospitals to supplement plasma administered in the front lines, the surgeons general said that plasma is "the foremost lifesaver of the war" and pointed out that its prompt administration has been largely responsible for saving the lives of 97 out of every 100 wounded Americans. Blood donors will leave Syracuse next Wednesday, Oct. 4th, at 9 o'clock in the morning to go to the blood bank at Ft. Wayne.

Production of surgical dressings is improving. Monday, 12 volunteers came and worked all day, having a recess of one hour to partake of a delicious pot luck luncheon each brought. A commendable amount of work was turned out and helps reach our quota of 30,000, but we still have 20,000 to make. A few hours of your time each week folding the surgical dressings might help save the life of one of our boys in this community! Who knows? Production rooms open Monday and Wednesday afternoons 11:30 to 4, and Friday evenings 7:30 to 9:30.

Mrs. John Myers of Richmond, Ill., visited Mrs. Dorothy K. Harris and her mother two days last week.

If you do not attend church services elsewhere, we invite you to worship with us at the Friendly U. B. church, located on the bank of beautiful Syracuse lake.
