FRESHMAN NEWS

Who's Who Of The Freshmen
The Quick Recovery Hospital located across the street from my apartment was having a Hospital Charity Ball. Hearing the sounds of "Slowpoke" played by Ralph Flannigan's orchestra and sung by Dinah Shore, I decided to go over. I'll always be glad I did, for there I saw a girl who had attended Syracuse High School.

She is brown-haired, brown-eyed, Alice Jane Godshalk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Godshalk. Jane, as she is known to her friends, was born in Syracuse on April 12, 1937, is 5' 2 3/4" tall, and weighs 113 pounds. While in school she participated in Boy's and Girl's 4-H Clubs, Band, and G.A.A. (her favorite sport was basketball.) Jane stated that her favorite food was still Southern Fried Chicken. We began talking over our "school days." It was then Jane told me she had joined the Class of '55 in 1950, when she was then an 8th grader. She also said she had fulfilled her ambition to become a nurse, her decision being made when she was a Freshman at Syracuse High. Best of luck, Jane!

The second Freshman to be interviewed for our "Who's Who" column this week is blond, blue-green eyed, Dolores Annette Mock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Mock. "Dee" as she is commonly called, is 5' 3" tall and weighs 135 pounds. She was born January 13, 1936, and started to Syracuse schools in the first grade. Dolores lists her favorites as "Sin", Guy Lombardo, Louie Armstrong, fried chicken, and hiking. Her hobby is collecting pictures. Her plans after graduation are indefinite but ShS wishes her the best of luck, always!

SENIOR NEWS

The Seniors held a class meeting last week and voted to send the Syracuse high school annual in to a year book house for publication.

The Seniors would like to wish a very Happy Birthday to: Linda Troup, Feb. 1.

JUNIOR NEWS

The Junior Class has decided on their class play to be presented on March 21. It is a three-act comedy, entitled "Grandad Steps Out."

Jerry Clark, Junior class president, is now making a three weeks tour of Florida. While he is gone, vice-president John Morris will act as president.

BAND NEWS

The Syracuse band will put on a program Saturday night for the Mentone game to be played here. They will come onto the floor in a four-man line and seven lines deep. As they reach the center of the floor they will form a star and play the National Anthem. From this they will maneuver into a flag and play "Stars and Stripes" in commemoration of the month of February. Following this they will make an "M" for Mentone, and play the Mentone school song, "Anchors Aweigh." Then after counter-marching they will form the letters F I T E and play the "Fite Song" which will be followed by an "S" for Syracuse and the playing of the Syracuse School song.

Be sure to come and see the band and back the team!

Jackets Defeated

The Yellow Jackets dropped their first game since the County Tournament, after being defeated by the Concord Minutemen last Friday night at Syracuse, 62-64.

The Yellow Jackets will play two games this week. They will play the Etna Green Cubs, Kosciusko County Champs, Friday night, Feb. 1, at Etna Green, and the Mentone Bulldogs, Saturday night, February 2, at Syracuse.

Though the Yellow Jackets made the first field goal, they could not maintain their lead. At the end of the first quarter Concord led 19-12. Eldridge led the Minutemen with 7 points in the first quarter. The Yellow Jackets came back to outscore the Minutemen, 14-7, to tie the score at half time, 26-26. Both teams had an outstanding offensive game the third quarter. Syracuse scored 23 points to Concord's 21, to come back to lead at the end of the third quarter, 49-47. Martin led Concord with 9 points the last quarter to give the Concord quintet the victory of 64-62.

Joel Bates led the Yellow Jackets with 18 points. Both Shock and Kroh had 12 each. Moss and Martin led the victors with 19 and 12 points respectively.

The Little Jackets also lost their game, 24-37. Concord led throughout the game. Stahly led the Jackets with 9 points, and Livergood led the Minutemen with 11 points.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

It is common knowledge that the task of creating a European army has gone ahead more slowly than was hoped and, in many quarters, expected. There have been delays, setbacks, frustrations. Some have been the result of material and training problems. Others have been due to basic differences between the allies and in a number of cases, suspicion and discord. Others still seem to have stemmed from a sort of lethargy—a reluctance to go all-out in building defenses against communism.

This last is by far the most important. It has its roots in two kinds of ground. First, there is Europe's economic situation, and the natural desire of peoples to use their energy and resources to better their living and working conditions, rather than in preparation for another war. Second, revulsion at the very thought of war is undoubtedly much more intense abroad than on this side of the Atlantic, and for obvious reasons. The European nations have been bombed and occupied, their cities razed, their industries destroyed and expropriated. They have known much more of the horrors of war than we have, they have been involved in wars for much longer periods of time, and they have taken far greater casualties. Indeed, two generations of Europe's young men were largely blotted out in the two wars.

This is not to say that the record of the proposed European army has been entirely one of failure. That is not so by any means. Much has been done — both in groundwork, and in building the forces that will have to do the fighting if war comes. Eisenhower's popularity is tremendous, and he has a splendid staff, representative of every Western power, small and large. But it is true that progress has been and remains low.

The situation is further complicated by the position of England. When the Labor government was in power, Minister Bevan argued that Britain must cut back, rather than increase, her armament program. Now Mr. Churchill says much the same thing, though his reasons are different. This has led to many questions. Norman Thomas posed some of the big ones, in an open letter to President Truman, when he asked: "Has Churchill become convinced that Europe can be defended with a far smaller military establishment than we had assumed? . . . If so, what reason does Mr. Churchill see for America's being more worried than the European people? Why should we send ground forces to Europe if so stalwart an opponent of Stalin as the British prime minister is content to accept Nye Bevan's estimate of what Britain can and should do?"

These are not questions which are easily answered, but no one can doubt their importance. Then there is one more phase of the problem which must be given far more attention than has been the case so far. Sumner H. Schlichter put it this way in an Atlantic article: "Rearmament must be regarded as only a secondary part of the program to defeat Communism. Men will not refrain from embracing Communism or from sympathy with it simply because they are protected from attack by Russia. Communism appeals to men who see little or no hope for better living standards. Hence, a rearmament program that weakens men's hopes for better living standards is self-defeating. It plays into the hands of the Communists."
