4-H Club News

4-H CHATTER

Dear 4-H'ers: This week I'd like to chat about a 4-H home economics project added within the last five years to the five basic projects — baking, clothing, food preparation, food preservation and home improvement.

This relatively new project is crafts. Certainly this is an enjoyable one in which talents in use of color and design could be developed. Because crafts do not directly contribute to homemaking activities it is a policy in this county that 4-H members enroll in one of the basic five projects in addition to crafts.

To date there is no instruction bulletin for the crafts project from the State 4-H Club Office—only a mimeographed record book. There are available, however, from our County Extension Office mimeographed sheets of instruction on textile painting, spatter painting, block printing, candlemaking, glass etching, felt work, hair pin lace, Italian drawn work or hemstitching, modeling in metal, Swedish darning, and weaving. These may be had for the asking.

A few of the suggestions of the standards committee I'd like to pass on to you. One was to "read carefully and follow the project requirements and stay in one group. If you take one craft in Group II — all three must be in Group II". Be sure to indicate in your record book what year in which Group you are enrolled in. An older girl should begin in the year and the Group which challenges her to learn something. Thus she need not begin in Year I, Group I.

In regard to textile painting, the "tube paints will be acceptable but should be more than just an outline." This gives 4-H members an opportunity to express oneself and develop abilities.

In "embroidery, three articles are to be done—mixed if you desire as to kinds. That is, one article of the three might be Swedish darning, etc."

For any other suggestions of the standards committee the entire list can be found in the composite standards for all projects which each 4-H home economics family has.

At a recent adult leaders meeting there was a display of several designs in articles. Some points emphasized were that good decorative design follows or emphasizes the structural lines; that a vari-colored crocheted edging on an embroidered articles vies for attention thus proving that a white simple edging or plain hem would have been better; that a textile painted bath towel was shown to be an example of a design interfering with practical use of the article.

Yes, crafts can be done. In fact, usually 4-H Camp is a good place to learn new crafts. Are you planning to attend camp this year? G'bye now.
