We Make Our Bow

Herewith the first of what we hope will be a fairly regular series of columns by the editor. We presume there should be a reason for such columns as this, plus a particular reason for launching this one at this particular time. There is. It happened to be next on our list of things to do that we "finally got around to."

There are a number of things left on this list, such as fixing up our windows, installing new lights (we are now at a distinct disadvantage sparring with our customers over the counter after 4 p.m., since they can see us but we can't see them), and finally getting out and shaking hands with people, and maybe even trying to sell some space in this paper.

This is a thing we have studiously avoided up until now for three reasons: (1) We were too busy to leave the office, (2) We didn't want to ask a potential customer to buy a product that didn't meet our own standards, and (3) We were too busy to leave the office. But having now emerged from the darkness of our nether regions to the faint daylight of the front office, we think it only a matter of days until we can find the courage to face the bright sunlight of outer space, and the time in which to do it. We have another long list of "things we hope to get around to," which will not be explored at this time.

There is also a very good reason for having a column such as this at all. This commentator admits to certain eccentricities, one of which is that he has a very definite opinion of what the position of a newspaper in a one-newspaper town should be. He believes that, despite the fact that it is privately owned and enjoys certain monopolistic advantages, its policy needs to be erected along lines similar to that of a civic or quasi-civic institution. It must serve the needs of the people who read it and the community which supports it. It must be truthful, and it must report news accurately, and not in a biased manner. However, it must also be ready and willing to act as the collective voice of its supporters, or when there is an issue, as a sounding board for both sides.

There must be some place in the paper where readers can find out what "this newspaper" thinks and believes in. And this column is that place. It is hoped that the column will serve other, not necessarily lesser purposes, such as providing a sales platform from which worthy causes can be promoted, providing a showcase to display the inner workings of the "mind" of a newspaper, and furnishing an outlet for the righteous indignation which, upon occasion, courses through the veins of this commentator.

On another page the same facilities are provided for readers. We fondly hope that the heading "Readers Write" will always contain a bouquet or two, but if this is not to be, we do not wish it to be devoid of cabbages.

What Will the End Be?

The August 23 issue of Life magazine contains a photograph of a field of circular tents in Texas. They are on sterilized earth and "inflated" with 1,600,000 bushels of grain each. It is hoped the grain will keep five years and qualify for price support loans.

The warehouses over the nation are full of grain, old ships are being cleaned out and filled with grain, and now tents are being erected.

Foreign nations are taking over our export grain markets. And still the taxpayers put up the money to maintain an inflated price for raising more grain than can be used.

How crazy can a nation get? Sometimes we get a little upset over this sort of thing. However, we now have an answer to our minds: we're not alone. We can produce a lot more papers here at the Journal plant than we do now. But we would have difficulty in selling them. If we can find the right form to fill out, we could go on producing excess papers and let the government pay us to store the surplus.

Land of the Free

The following reflection comes to us from our correspondent, Jo Serra, in Portland, Oregon. It's worth its weight in gold:

"This 'land of the free and the home of the brave' slogan of ours needs some scrutiny. We been taking it for granted. But when you look close there are some leaks showing at the seams. The 'freedom' part of the slogan looks dubious when you say to yourself, 'I reckon it would be a good idea to have a little speck of gold in the sugar bowl for an emergency.'"

"Since 600 B.C. when the King of Lydia first minted some coin, there has been just one world-wide item that has always had value—gold coin. And before that time, gold nuggets, hammered gold or what had you in gold came first and always the desired possession. And this leads up to why our 'land we grind, new spark plugs or something. We are the clickin' just right. This notion of 'freedom' gets a crimp and you get the jail house, if you are caught with a couple 10 buck gold pieces in your denims."

"Regulation and regimentation has been heaped upon us for 20 years—we would hardly know freedom if we met it down on Main Street. Other countries—world wide—let their citizens possess gold if they choose, but for us 'enlightened' folks here in this 'land of the free,' 'taint so. It is time to slow down and check our oil."

Drum and Bugle Corps Journeys To Wolcottville

Wawasee Post No. 223 Drum and Bugle Corps will go to Wolcottville, Ind., Monday October 11, when they are to put on an exhibition drill in honor of Governor George Craig, who will be speaker at the Republican Rally, to be held in the Community building.

The Wawasee Post was selected for the honor by the District Committee, Ralph Jones of La Grange.

The Post's most recent exhibition was done at Warsaw, for the Warsaw-Alexandria football game. They received much commendation for their precision and were invited to return next year.

The Zollner Pistons management has invited the Corps to put on an exhibition in the Fort Wayne Coliseum this winter, for their basketball and hockey games.

Commander Wawasee Post American Legion, Syracuse, Indiana

Dear Sir:

May I express to you and the Drum and Bugle Corps of your Post my sincere appreciation for their unusually fine performance at our game Friday night. The precision marching and playing was superior. This group must be a source of considerable pride to your Post.

ERIC LARSON ENTERS U. OF HAWAII

Eric L. Larson son of Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Larson, entered the University of Hawaii, 20 September. He had left Syracuse, 25 July 1953, working at the Kapiolani Super Market, Honolulu about one year, taking his senior High School work at night school and received his diploma the first of June this year.

Prompt cooperation of Glenn Longenecker, principal of schools here, assisted in his acceptance for night school and the University.

Larson had joined the Hawaii Air National Guard earlier and is Airman Basic with the 199th Fighter Interceptor Squadron as apprentice clerk. He receives $35 per month, drills each Monday night and one Sunday a month has actual on-the-job duty. He is provided with free transportation to the Hickam Air Force Base at Pearl Harbor.

The experience gained in the National Guard; learning the use of all office machines and office procedure, he felt would aid in future jobs while advancing in rank for his ultimate time in service.

The "better job hunting," however, went "by the board" as the urge for higher education spurred Larson to investigating ways and means of entering the University, and with some money saved—a small financial gift—board and room for working—and a job part time for cash, he applied for admission—passed the exams, and he claims, "one of the happiest days of my life when I was accepted into the University of Hawaii."

Mr. and Mrs. Galen Neer, Longenecker, Syracuse, announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ann to Hugh E. Neer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Neer of Syracuse. Along with other Navy and Marine Corps student pilots he completed nearly twenty months of intensive flight training to earn his wings.

Tomorrow Is Republican Nat'l Precinct Day

Based on the premise that "knocking on your neighbor's door" will win the 1954 elections, a brilliant, new chapter in American political history will be written Friday (Oct. 8) with observance of Republican National Precinct Day.

A year's planning will be climaxed Friday night when President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon address party caucuses across the nation on the biggest TV-radio hookup ever used politically. The half-hour simulcast will be carried over an augmented CBS-TV network of 158 stations and the NBC and Mutual radio networks of 534 stations.

Broadcast time is 9:30 p. m. EST, with a delayed broadcast to Pacific Coast states beginning at 9:30 p. m. PST.

Precinct day begins at dawn Friday when GOP Congressional and local candidates begin meeting new and old party workers at small "powwows" in neighborhood homes.

Kosciusko County Women will participate in the National program by holding a pow-wow at party headquarters tomorrow night. A meeting of committeemen, committeewomen, county and township candidates is scheduled for Monday night at county headquarters at the Hayes Hotel in Warsaw, according to Earl Himes, county chairman. Attending from the three Syracuse precincts will be committeemen Ernest Bushong, Ernest Buchholz, and Stephen Freeman; and committeewomen Mrs. Lena Bauer, Effie Emmaus, and Mrs. Ernest Bushong. In addition the following candidates will attend: Calvin E. Beck, Trustee; Fred Nolan, Justice of the Peace; Ralph Hoover, Constable; and Earl J. Darr, Charles W. Kroh, and Charles W. Zerbe, Advisory Board.

Emphasizing the importance of recruiting new workers at the new workers at the powwows, Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said:

"This election will be won by knocking on your neighbor's door."

"National Precinct Day sets the stage for two vital goals: recruiting workers who will help us get out again the 34, 000,000 voters who selected President Eisenhower and a Republican Congress in 1952, and signing up in Republican ranks the 3,000,000 voters who failed to cast their ballots for Congressional candidates of either party in 1952."

The President is expected to speak out directly to urge election of Republican candidates, following up his Hollywood Bowl address of September 23, when he called for renewal of the 1952 lead and vigor of GOP campaign organizations.

Republican National Precinct Day was originated last winter by the National Federation of Republican Women.

Bloodmobile Unit Will Visit Mentone Oct. 14

The Bloodmobile Unit will visit Mentone, Thursday, 14 October, at the Methodist church from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The philosophy of the National Blood Program, the giving of blood, combines idealism with humanitarianism. Giving of yourself, of your time, of your efforts in any possible way to relieve and prevent suffering, is the philosophy upon which the Red Cross is based.

The giving of blood—for anyone who may be in need of it—embodies the same spirit that prompted the founding of the Red Cross. Giving blood means more than obtaining blood; it is giving something infinitely precious, something that cannot be manufactured, something that may mean life itself for others. It is an expression of neighborliness without thought of personal reward.

The giving of blood is imbued with the psychology of peace for it leaves its humanitarian mark in the hearts of those who give for their fellowmen.

Notice To Servicemen and Their Families:

The American Legion, Wawasee Post No. 223, and the Journal are happy to continue their joint offer of a free subscription for any man in the armed services. However, it is difficult to keep the mailing list up to date and in the years during which this program has continued many servicemen have come home or changed their addresses without notice from which the list could be corrected. We are therefore planning to ask for confirmation every six months that the address we have is correct and the newspaper is wanted by the man to whom it is addressed. At the end of one month from this notice we shall remove from the list all names from which we have received no response, or from whose relatives we have received no confirmation of address.

Upturn Seen In Real Estate And Building

Real estate and construction were seen as leading America's economy through a general upturn that is proving a "major stimulant" to other fields of business activity, according to a statement made by Dick Denzel, local real estate man who recently attended the Indiana Real Estate Association State convention at Evansville.

It is predicted that two thirds of America's families will own their own homes by 1960, compared with about 50% at present. Construction is the largest single production activity nationally. Real estate and building provide economic nourishment to production and employment in so many industries and businesses that there is a cause-and-effect situation at work that has built greater confidence in the business future all down the line," said Denzel, who is president of the Warsaw Board of Realtors.

All of the conditions are present for a 1954 that will close with high levels of production and employment and usher in another good business year for 1955. Personal savings are the highest since the war years, and employment is holding at sustained high levels. A convincing indication of business confidence in the advance of the national economy is a high volume of expenditures for new plants and equipment, which is running close to peak levels and there is also a significant rising trend in machine tool orders.

Town Board Considers New Town Hall Site

The Syracuse town council met in the council room of the grade school building Tuesday night. Regular monthly bills were passed.

James Connolly, fire chief, with William Hess and Laurence Firestone, attended the meeting and requested the purchase of several new fog nozzles for the town fire truck, to improve the efficiency of the department. The request was granted. A report was also made on the campaign which the fire department is making to secure funds in the rural and lake areas through private gifts to enable them to fight fires outside the town limits with a larger supply of water. Negotiations are under way with an Indianapolis firm for the purchase of a truck and tank. Purchase of six new loudspeakers for use of fire department members in their homes was also ordered.

Discuss Land Purchase

The council has started preliminary talks with Mrs. Jesse Sargent for the purchase of her property in Syracuse, just across the street from the present town hall and former fire department. The fire department has outgrown this building and is now using the Hoopingarner garage building which is rented from the Hoopingarner estate. The building which houses the pumping equipment of the town and town hall is in a bad state of repair and since it overlies the outlet of the Syracuse channel, cannot be enlarged.

The town now owns property just across the street and should the Sargent property be purchased, when the need arises in the future, a town hall and fire department headquarters could be constructed there.

The town clerk, Ernest Buchholz, reported that the county tax board had cut the town tax rate for next year a total of 14 cents, bringing it down to $1.47, which is lower than the present rate. This was made possible by some outside sources of revenue which were not figured in the published budget.

All board members and Town Attorney R. Leon Connolly were present.

Fall Open House Days To Be November 4, 5, 6

Dinner for the Syracuse-Wawasee Chamber of Commerce will be held Tuesday night at Howard's, announced President Lee Fisher yesterday. A family style chicken dinner with "all you can eat" is planned. No speaker has been scheduled, since the subjects to be discussed: Fall Open House, and the possibility of attracting new industry to Syracuse, are expected to take up all the time available.

Plans for a fall "Open House Days" similar to the open house of last April were announced following an informal meeting of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce board of directors last Thursday night.

November 4, 5, and 6 have been selected for the fall merchandising event, and the merchants committee of the chamber is already at work on details of the program.

Further discussion of the desirability of bringing new industrial plants to Syracuse indicated a necessity for a program which will (1) study the needs and resources of the community in order to attract the type of concern which will be most beneficial to the local economy and (2) provide the Chamber of Commerce with a fund to be used for this purpose. In this connection, President Lee Fisher pointed out that the Journal article which reported the recent regular meeting of the Chamber was misleading in that it indicated a potential payroll of 40 or 50 would be provided by the industry under consideration, whereas actually, this plant planned to start out with 40 or 50, which figures would be stepped up to several hundred as soon as full operation was reached.
