

Students To Have All the Milk They Can Drink

Consumption by Indiana school children of as much milk as they can drink at a cost of two cents per half pint or even less is provided for in an agreement signed here today by Wilbur Young, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Earl Butz, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

The purpose of the program, Young explained, is two-fold. First, it will supply nutritious and palatable fresh Grade A milk to Indiana school children at a very nominal cost. Second, it will attack the problem of dairy surpluses at the source.

Until the school milk program was altered by the 1954 United States Congress at the request of President Eisenhower, school children had been receiving powdered milk food as a part of the school lunch program. The new agricultural act is intended to provide the fresh milk to the pupils without the necessity of processing it.

Indiana is one of the first states to take advantage of the new act, which was signed by the President on August 28. Dr. Butz, a former Purdue University agriculture expert, recently joined the United States Department of Agriculture.

Under the new setup, an Indiana school child can drink as much as a quart of fresh milk each day for less than a dime, Young said. Thus more than a million and a half gallons of this milk will be consumed during school hours by Indiana school children during the present year, with resultant mutual benefit for the children.

Indiana farm leaders have hailed the program as the first realistic and economic step toward handling the milk surplus which has resulted from present-day efficient management of Hoosier farms.

Young urged Indiana educators to avail themselves immediately of the program, details of which are now ready at his office.

The program will be in operation in hundreds of Indiana schools shortly after October 1.

Young is enthusiastic about the program also because it makes Indiana produced milk available to Indiana children, instead of being diverted into American handouts to foreign nations.

The program is entirely voluntary, but most schools and most parents are expected to avail themselves of the opportunity of getting this food at the schools each day.

Ernie Pyle Hall To Be Dedicated at I. U.

BLOOMINGTON—Indiana University's new journalism building commemorates two of its journalism alumni, Ernie Pyle and Don Mellett, both of whom were killed in the line of newspaper duty.

The new building, by vote of the University's board of trustees, will be known as Ernie Pyle hall. One of its principal rooms will be named for Don Mellett, whose memory has been perpetuated since 1935 by a room and plaque in the University's Union building.

Mr. Pyle, newspaper columnist and war correspondent, was killed by a Japanese sniper's bullet on Ie Shima in 1945 while reporting the war in the Pacific. Nearly 20 years earlier, in 1926, Mr. Mellett, editor of the Canton (Ohio) News, was assassinated as the result of his vigorous editorial campaign in which he fought against collusion of the underworld and police department of his city.

Each during his days at the university served as editor of the Indiana Daily Student, campus newspaper.

The new building will have at its main entrance the Ernie Pyle plaque, which was dedicated last October by the professional journalism fraternity of Sigma Delta Chi. The Pyle Memorial collection made by the Indiana University Foundation and now in the University union will be moved to a special room in the building.

The action of the university's trustees in naming the building for the Hoosier columnist was taken on recommendation of the journalism faculty, headed by Prof. John E. Stemple, and the university chapters of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism society, and Sigma Delta Chi.

Dedication of the building is planned for October as a feature of National Newspaper Week and the Indiana press sesquicentennial. The structure is the University's former stores and service building, remodeled with additions to house the journalism department, Indiana Daily Student, and publications division, including printing plant and duplicating service.

The song of the month, Day is Dying in the West, was sung, followed by Safety Remarks given by Mrs. Cora Atz on Fall Driving Hazards. Response to roll call "A Halloween Frank I Remember" was answered by 19 members and 2 visitors.

New officers were elected during the business meeting, for the coming year. They are as follows: President, Mrs. Karl Weinart, Vice-Pres., Mrs. Roy Miller, Mrs. Joe Thornburg and Mrs. John Runyan, Treasurers.

Says Turnpike Will Bring New Payroll Industries

Indianapolis, Ind., September 16 How would you like for a new $20,000,000 industry to move into your home county and eventually establish a $10,000 to $15,000 annual payroll?

"You'd be fighting for it and that's exactly what the proposed North-South Toll Road would offer for the nine counties it would traverse in Northern Indiana," Albert J. Wedeking, executive director of the Indiana Toll Road Commission, told the Caravan Club at its weekly luncheon in the Murat Temple today.

Wedeking noted that toll road critics in Indiana are attempting to slam the door shut on industry that can put scores of Hoosiers to work on a permanent basis.

"We ought to recognize the business potential that toll road construction and operation can bring to our state," he asserted.

The Hoosier toll road official then related how certain commercial interests in Pennsylvania have openly endorsed the Pennsylvania Turnpike as a business builder.

Wedeking quoted extensively from a letter received from Zimmerman which lauded toll roads in general and the Pennsylvania Turnpike in particular.

Zimmerman told of how his motel facilities have grown from a 20-unit operation near Somerset interchange on the Turnpike in 1938 to 90 and 60-unit motels near Harrisburg, concluding that "this could not have been possible if it had not been for the traffic on the turnpike."

MRS. LEVERNIER IMPROVES

Mrs. Martin Levernier is at the home of her cousin, Mrs. B. F. Swanson, and Mr. Swanson, Minneapolis, Minn. Mrs. Levernier had gone to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, on advice of Dr. Fosbrink, as to the necessity of an operation, two weeks ago.

Two specialists were called for consultation, and gave Mrs. Levernier a thorough examination, she told her family, "they did not miss a thing". It took four days to go through the Clinic, and then Mrs. Levernier went to the Swanson home, for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Swanson then took Mrs. Levernier back to Mayos last Tuesday, for more tests to determine if an operation is needed. The doctors' decision was that with proper care, caution, and their directions, an operation would not be necessitated, unless "much trouble developed or severe pains." High blood pressure has always been a factor in the condition.

Mrs. Levernier will remain with Mr. and Mrs. Swanson, until she is able to make the trip home, to Sunset Point, Wawasee Lake.
