Golf Club has several assistants for much fall work in preparation for spring. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt will be in Toledo and Miami, later. Harold (Red) Wiley of the South Shore Country Club is planning to be ready for the Round Up there, 16 and 17 of October. Wiley says the grounds are always in good shape, but are kept that way the year round. "Keeping the grounds in good shape," indicates Mrs. Blanche Mason, manager, "necessitates much winter work," and added, "there will be some redecorating also."

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley and Debby Lynn will be in Los Angeles for the winter, where Mr. Wiley will play in 4 Tournaments. Mrs. Mason's plans have not as yet been disclosed.

State Chamber Warns Against Voters' Lassitude

If Hoosiers follow precedent, "unwise though it may be," many thousands of them will fail to vote in the statewide election November 2 "because this is an off-year," the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce pointed out today in its biennial pre-election publication, "Let's Talk Politics."

Attempting to "destroy the idea that citizens can regard 1954 as an 'off-year' and one in which it isn't worth while to take the trouble to cast their ballots in an election," the chamber pointed out that although no President, Governor or U. S. Senator will be chosen, in 1954 Hoosiers will elect:

Some 4,841 county and township officials to help run over $375,000,000 worth of local public business annually;

Five state administrative officials to help operate a state government to the support of which Hoosiers are paying over $325,000,000 annually;

Four judges of the state appellate court and one judge of the state supreme court whose interpretations of state laws will have an important bearing on all of us;

And "perhaps most important of all, 100 representatives to the State Legislature, 26 of the 50 state senators, and 11 Indiana members of the U. S. House of Representatives, who will make the state and national laws under which we must live at least for the next two years."

The new chamber publication, which lists all candidates for state and congressional offices and outlines duties to be performed by these and the county officials to be filled in November, cites statistics to uphold Indiana's reputation as a "pivotal" state politically. A table shows that of 37 men who have occupied the Governor's office, 16 have been Republicans and 16

School Boards Will Discuss School Housing

Approximately 300 school board members and superintendents from schools throughout the State of Indiana will participate in the fifth annual workshop of the Indiana School Boards Association on October 17-18. Butler University will serve as host for the two day meeting.

The central theme of the workshop is SCHOOL HOUSING FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW, and the school officials will be struggling with such questions as "what kind of schools should we build?" and "where is the money going to come from to build the right kind of schools for our children?" With buildings generally overcrowded throughout the state, the problems of this year's workshop are of immediate interest to administrators, board members and school patrons everywhere.

Dr. Walter D. Cocking, Editor of The SCHOOL EXECUTIVE, will keynote the work of the group on Sunday, and will summarize the results of the conference at the closing session on Monday. The SCHOOL EXECUTIVE is one of the outstanding publications in the field of public school administration and Dr. Cocking is well known throughout the country for his work in the educational profession. He has served in a variety of positions—State Commissioner of Education in Tennessee, Dean of the College of Education of the University of Georgia, and consultant to several federal agencies and contributes frequently to professional journals. In the school building field, he is known for the book SCHOOLS which he co-authored with Lawrence B. Perkins in 1949, and for his editing of AMERICAN SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY, annual publication devoted to school building design and construction.

Following the keynote session, the school board members and superintendents will divide into 12 discussion groups to consider in details specific problems connected with school building programs. Brief presentations will be made by experts in various phases of school building planning, followed by general discussion by workshop participants.

Mrs. Dale DeVee, member of the Indianapolis school board, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the workshop. The other members of the committee are John L. Bloxsome, Terre Haute, and Mrs. Sara Ronald, Portland.

One of the new features of this year's workshop is a session devoted to the problem of orientation of new school board members. Board members generally have complained that they do not really learn their job until their term is nearly over. With that in mind, an attempt will be made to find ways of giving the newly chosen board members a better beginning, so that they may reach full effectiveness earlier in their terms. O. H. Roberts, J., past-president of the ISBA, will make a presentation to this group, ably assisted by Fred Hums of the Mishawaka board as discussion leader. Superintendent Lee Eve of Crawfordsville will act as reporter.

The faculties of the four state institutions of higher education, Indiana University, Purdue University, Ball State Teachers College and Indiana State Teachers College are well represented among the "experts" who will make presentations or act as discussion leaders.

Faulty brakes cause one in three accidents due to mechanical failure in autos, says the Chicago Motor Club. Have brakes checked frequently, relined every 5,000 miles.

Democrats, Three Whites, one Jeffersonian-Republican and one Non-Partisan were Governors during Indiana's early days of statehood.

The non-partisan publication, carrying pre-election statements by the Republican and Democratic state chairman, is being distributed to State Chamber members, and through many local chambers, and is being purchased by many schools for use in teaching citizenship, the chamber said.
