To the voice of the public:
Now that another Halloween is past, I protest the obnoxious custom of Treats or I'll Trick.

Why should perfect strangers be expected to answer their door bell every few minutes after a day of toil, when the time and opportunity to rest is valuable. This happens for nights and nights—even as often as twenty to thirty times each night. Why pretend it is cute or ideal child teaching?

I'm not complaining about the trifling cost of the treats, altho it far exceeds the amount many give solicitors for worthy causes such as the drive made by the Red Cross or Salvation Army. Mothers and neighbors formerly entertained in the homes and when the party was over the children returned home happy and satisfied.

Sure hope no parents in Syracuse took their children in cars to neighboring towns to BEG as some did from New Paris, Milford and Ligonier.

All parents of small children should think this over and decide it is bad training for youngsters.

A number of children would throw perfectly good apples (costing $3.00 bushel) in the yards after one bite. Others made remarks, "Among my loot, I got enough candy to do me until Christmas."

Signed: A Citizen.

"B" TEAM YELLOWJACKETS WINS 48 TO 27 VICTORY

LaMar Kilmer, making the first field goal of the game in the first few seconds of play, continued to mark up points for the local squad giving him a total of eight field goals and three out of five free throws for 19 points. With two minutes and 23 seconds gone from the first quarter, Webster's free throw put the Trojans ahead seven to six. However, the Yellowjackets pulled ahead early in the game and with little fear, continued to beat out points, ending the game with a 48 to 27 victory.

Social Side Of Basketball Game by Miss Sandy DeGroff

Dick Beck, first team coach, and Coach Eldon Ummel, may feel proud of the Yellowjackets, who played their hearts out in Friday night's game at Webster, altho the varsity experienced a 44 to 43 defeat, as Larry Mauzy sunk a beautiful shot in the last 10 seconds of play.

There's quite a mix-up, says cheerleader Judy Jones. Four gals, Judy, Dian Alfrey, Sue Herdrich, and Sandra Swenson, led cheers during both games. Seems Brenda Stabler has been forced to give up cheering because of ill health, reports the yelling squad.

Brenda will be replaced by Carolyn Barnhart, who with Sandra Swenson, will cheer on the "B" team of fighting Yellowjackets.

Carolyn, who was elected freshman cheerleader earlier, will be replaced by Linda Byrd, who led a close second during the election.

Speaking of cheerleaders, first team gals are wearing Bermuda skirts again this year. There is a difference. They're gold and blue this year instead of white and blue. Fancy gold collars and lettering on blue sweaters set off their outfits.

Gold longer skirts and similar sweaters will be seen on Sandra and Carolyn this season.

Dian Alfrey was unable to lead cheers during the entire game. Sickness had taken a hit at the booster group too. Hope you're feeling better, Dian!

Webster's pep band really beat out "go-go-go" music at Friday night's game. Their marching band also put on a performance between the two games.

Four stripes on Cheerleader Sue's sweater gave fans a big question to discuss. There's an answer. Sue is only a junior, but led cheers one year for the Jr. High and this is her third year as varsity cheerleader.

"Say Jackets," a popular Yellowjacket yell last year, is back again with boosters saying, "Let's do 'Say Jackets' again!" Quite a yell agrees other schools and parents.

Did you notice John (student manager) Cripe's bright yellow cord pants? And right where he seats himself it reads, "Seat of Learning" which brought a lot of laughter and the comment, "Dig John's pants!"

Altho first team Jackets suffered a loss, and a close one, their spirits are still high, fans still
