The Law of the Typo

The Rocky Hill Tribune

"One of my newspaper friends relates that recently there was a discussion, with perhaps some ugly words, going on in his office concerning a 'typo.' A customer overheard some of the remarks and wanted to know what it was.

"The answer is that it is an abbreviation of the words 'typographical error'—an ugly mixing of letters or words in a line that is as annoying as it is unintentional.

"The Law of the Typo works like this:

"1. Most of the time, the typo will appear in a story or ad that is important. Typos rarely appear in stories or ads you don't care about.

"2. Typos are sneaky. Sometimes four or five will appear in one issue of a publication. After much swearing, checking, probing, detective work, you'll have the typos so frightened that they go away. You think they are gone for good. But they are not. When you've forgotten all about them, back they come.

"3. If you write a story about, say, Mrs. Winterbottom and her friends and it comes out fiends, you can be sure that after you have calmed Mrs. Winterbottom down and promised her that the typo was one of those one in a million years type of thing, the very next story you write about her will have another typo in it. Perhaps, something like her husband was seen looking at the new widow downtown will be the way you write it, only after the typo has crept in, it will read that her husband was seen looking at the new widow downtown.

"4. The typo has cousins and they are no improvement over the typo. One is the headline on the wrong story. It usually works this way—a very important local personality dies and over his obit appears this headline: 'Improvement Seen In Local Affairs.'

"5. Another cousin of the typo is the wrong outline under a picture. You'll run a picture of a pretty girl in a bathing suit and somehow the outlines will read 'The Humane Society Announces that this little pet is looking for a good home and a kindly master.'

"6. The typo is as much a part of American life as the mosquito and about as hard to kill."

AID GROUP MEETS

Mrs. Jesse Rex, Mrs. Ella Uru, Mrs. J. C. Bailey, and Mrs. Clarence Ruch assisted Mrs. Alva Nicolai last week when she was hostess to the Ladies Aid Society of the Calvary EUB Church. Mrs. Roy L. Miller, president, presided, and the devotions were given by Mrs. Ruch. Mrs. Mentor Herman closed the meeting with a prayer.

School Menu for Week

Monday: Weiner sandwich, buttered cabbage, fruit salad, cookie and milk.

Tuesday: Stew, pickle slices, fruit, biscuits, butter, jelly, milk.

Wednesday: Chili macaroni, tossed salad, apricots, cookie, bread and butter, milk.

Thursday and Friday: No School because of teacher's institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Yeager and son, John, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Schafer of Nappanee, and Mrs. Lurena Lemlar of Bourbon, were Sunday supper guests of Rev. and Mrs. B. T. Yeager.

Views and Reviews . . .

News has been received here of the marriage of Ernst Gallitzer, German exchange student who spent a year in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Mock several years ago. He and his bride are living in Wiesbaden, Germany. He is working at the present time but plans to continue his education at the university there where he wants to earn his Ph. D. degree in mechanical engineering.

A number of our readers have remarked favorably about the change in paper used for the Journal as well as the new Tuesday morning edition. We appreciate the response to these improvements and are always glad for comments about the newspaper.

There is still painting to be done at the scout cabin and helpers will be welcomed Thursday night. Anyone with an urge to paint and an hour or so to give may join the "gang" in order to finish the job to night.

Everywhere one sees, hears and reads about bowling which is fast becoming the all American sport. Here on Syracuse league nights, the twenty lanes at the new Wawasee Bowl are all in operation. League bowling is scheduled early in the evening so that by 9 o'clock some lanes are free for open bowling.

Adding to the adult leagues are the high school groups which take advantage of Saturdays. The boys' leagues bowl in the morning and the girls begin at noon. This is organized high school bowling. For an all around sport, it is said there is none better than bowling.

Halloween will creep up on us quickly but in the meantime the beautiful fall colors are bringing the week ends to the lakes. The haziness of fall adds to the picture and fancifulness of the approaching "spook" season.

Northern lights have been in evidence lately. They are much more spectacular and exciting to watch than Echo, although the circumstances of Echo taking its position in space add to its curiosity.

For an old fashioned cornfield in the shock, drive west past the Wawasee Bowl and Syracuse Ready-Mix toward's what the oldtimers called Vinegar Hill. There on the right side of the road is a small field of corn which modern machinery hasn't cut.

The white stripe on the edge of state highways as a warning when approaching turns or bridges is a welcome reminder especially at night when oncoming headlights tend to be blinding.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Long attended the American Baker's Association convention in Chicago last week and left yesterday for Hot Springs, Arkansas. This is the 54th consecutive year that Mr. Long has attended the ABA, an organization which he was instrumental in founding.

Among the back to work after a two weeks' vacation group this week are Louise Byland at the telephone office, Eva Rarig at Budget Loan and Ethel Bowser at the Library.

Off on a moose hunting trip in Canada (another sign of fall) are the Byler brothers, Bob and Rollie, with their usual crowd of hunters.

Elmer Stucky had the misfortune to break his arm last week while working at his store. He and Mrs. Stucky had been home only a few days from a vacation in Portland, Oregon, with son Ted and family.
