Missing Bank Messenger With Most Of $50,000

SOUTH BEND YOUTH TURNED OVER TO AUTHORITIES BY HIS UNCLE.

SOUTH BEND, Nov. 14 (UP)—James Wennermark, 17, messenger for the First National Bank here, missing since Nov. 3, along with nearly $50,000 of the Institution's funds, has returned with most of the money.

"The youth, son of a Mishawaka minister, returned from Chicago under the custody of an uncle who turned him over to authorities. Albert Smith, 13—also of Misha- waka, Wennermark's companion, sur- rendered previous to Wennermark's return, and turned over $2,000 in cash and approximately $10,000, in Travel- er's checks.

According to Smith, the pair parted in Chicago, and he phoned the Rev. Wennermark that he was coming home and asked the minister to meet him at the station.

Rev. Wennermark met the Smith boy and took him to the bank where the youth turned over part of the loot which he said the bank messenger gave him. Banking officials released him, but Mishawaka police arrested him as he stepped from the bank. He was permitted to visit his parents af- ter giving the authorities a sworn statement.

Smith said he and Wennermark spent only a small portion of the $50,000 although they visited New York, Florida and Havana.

CRATER STILL ACTIVE
CATANIA, SICILY, Nov. 14 (UP)—Mount Etna continued to threaten the countryside today as the Lava flow, which already has caused millions of dollars of damage, swept on towards the Sea.

The Central Branch of the main stream, which had been quiet since Friday, resumed its flow yesterday, proceeding at a rate of three meters an hour.

The advance engulfed the second highway between Messina and Catania and caused further traffic tieups. Motor lorries and freight carriers had been using this road but henceforth all traffic now must be by sea between the two cities.

* Other parts of the lava arched and quieted somewhat and at the little city of Nuzunziata, where the lava reached the outskirts and bowled over many houses, the stream was reported quiet this morning.

There have been no reports of additional deaths—with the toll now standing at two—but one accident yesterday almost led to the death of Professor Gaetano Ponte, director of the Catania Volcanological Institute.

He was observing the Volcano from an airplane piloted by Lieut. Zanelli. When the plane reached a position about 70 miles from the Crater, it dipped and was seemingly out of control. Zanelli, managed however, to right the craft and prevented a landing.

GAS PLANT IMPROVEMENTS ARE COMPLETE

ADDITIONAL SUPPLY OF GAS AVAILABLE FOR GREENCAS-
TLE THROUGH ADDITIONS

OFFICIALS HERE WEDNESDAY

Rotary Club Told Of Improvements
Which Have Been Put Into Effect This Week.

Officials of the Greencastle Gas Plant were guests of the Rotary Club Wednesday and T. J. Kelly general superintendent of the Southern Division of the Northern Public Service Company spoke on the improvements his company has recently completed here.

The additions to the gas plant have been finished and the plant is now in full operation, and there should be no shortage of gas here- after, as 60,000 cubic feet additional space has been provided for. The gas is also of better quality and with stove adjustments, there should be no shortage in the future.

Mr. Kelly said in part:

We were very much pleased to re- ceive the invitation from Mr. Rariden to speak before the members of the Rotary Club relative to the improve- ments to the gas plant at Greencas- tle. A couple of months ago, when the Greencastle plant was turned over to us for operation, we made a trip down here and after a superficial inspection and a talk with Mr. Burckhalter, the local manager, re- lative to conditions in Greencastle, we were very much surprised that the local company had any customers. The Gas Company at Greencastle had not progressed with the rest of your city.

In driving about, we found homes the equal of home in any town in which we operate. The spirit of pro- gress was in evidence everywhere ex- cept with the local gas company. We found that the former policy of the company was that the manager be in other businesses in addition to the gas business. Our company believes that if we center our efforts on giv- ing the citizens of Greencastle gas service equal to that which is enjoyed by the citizens of Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Fort Wayne or any other large city in Indiana, that the furniture and other dealers will be able to take care of your requirements in their line of business.

We found many things lacking and necessary before you could have what is known as bang-up service free from interruption. In the first place, re- pairs had not been kept up at the plant. At considerable expense we have had some of our best engineers from our larger properties here in Greencastle for weeks past, assisting Mr. Burckhalter in putting the manu- facturing plant in shape.

Another matter that required im- mediate attention was that of a reli- able gas supply. The gas storage in Greencastle was inadequate for the needs of your community. We im- mediately let a contract with the Stacey Mfg. Co. of Cincinnati for the erection of a tank for the storage of gas. This tank is now about complet- ed. It is 20 feet in diameter, 70 feet long and will store approximately 60,000 feet of gas. This is a full day's supply for your town. It would be well worth anyone's time to go down and take a look at this mammoth tank as you can scarcely visualize the proportions of same from a mere de- scription and figures.

We also found that the distribution system of pipes was inadequate for Greencastle. The system was prob- ably old at the time when Greencas- tle was more or less of a village, and when DePauw had a couple of hun- dred students. This required immedi- ate attention. We have laid some new gas mains and repaired others and know that today we are in posi- tion to give you a service such as you have never enjoyed before, but I might say in passing that while we feel that these improvements have put Greencastle on a par with other towns, we also feel that when the citi- zens of Greencastle become acquaint- ed with the fact that they have a sufficient supply of gas at any time during the day and every day in the year that they will turn back again to using this superior fuel which no doubt some of them gave up in the past because it was not there when they wanted it. Greencastle is a town that should have double the number of gas consumers that it has at the present.

To aid in increasing the consump- tion of gas in the city of Greencastle, the Greencastle Gas Company has filed with the Commission a new rate which we expect to have approved within a very short while. This new rate, which is optional, will not in- crease any customers' bills, but will tend to materially decrease some of the bills. As an example, in most of the towns in which we operate, the average domestic consumer uses approximately 2500 cu. ft. per month. Under the $1.85 rate which Greencas- tle has had in effect in the past, this gas would cost $4.63. Under the new rate, which includes $1.00 Service Charge, this amount of gas would cost $4.00, or a reduction of over 20c per 1000 cubic feet. To all customers who take advantage of water heating and space heating, it would mean a further reduction. As an example, 6000 feet of gas under the old rate costs $11.10. 6000 feet of gas under the new rate would cost $7.50. You will note that this rate is put in to encourage the use of gas in Greencas- tle for the many modern purposes for which it is now being used in other cities.

Your local gas company is now owned by the Midland Utilities Co., which supervises the operations of numerous gas companies in the state of Indiana. Having worked for this company since its formation, I know that it is their policy to see that the customers of their subsidiary com- panies have a service that is not ex- celled by the services rendered to the customers of New York or Chicago, and that they do not leave a stone unturned until they are satisfied that the local company is rendering this type of service to their customers.

The citizens of Greencastle may rest assured that in the future, they will have this type of service from their company—that all that will be ex- pected of them is to render co-operation to the local manager in advising him of any local trouble and tell their neighbors of improvement in gas ser- vice so that we may regain that which is of untold value, namely the confidence of your community. The company must ask you however, to bear in mind that no matter how splendid its general service may be, there necessarily will be times when gas appliances in some homes will get out of adjustment for one reason or another and some times condensation or rust in the interior of the pipes may partially close off the opening in the service or house pipes, there- by causing poor service in some par- ticular house when the gas service in general and in neighbor's houses may be 100 per cent. good.

We are therefore asking that at any time that any of the gas service and supply may be poor or inade- quate that you be good enough to call the Gas Office, to the end that the trouble may be promptly reme- died.

While this company in the last cou- ple of months has spent upwards of

ENGLISH GIRL DEBATERS WIN FROM D'PAUW

POPULAR VOTE 414 TO 220

Visiting English Girls Approach Subject By Philosophical Method. De-Pauw Girls On Statistics.

Probably no debate won in DePauw's illustrious debate period ever aroused more interest or attracted a better audience than the debate which was held in McHerry hall last night. The affirmative team representing British universities was the first British women's team ever to come to the United States. This team defeated the De- Pauw team by a popular vote of 414 to 220.

Approximately 1200 persons heard the debate. Some of the men were heard to say, half humorously, that it was not the "subject" but the subjects that attracted them; the young women were very attractive.

The English girls used the more philosophical method in developing the broader principles of the subject. The DePauw speakers based their arguments more upon statistics. The audience was delighted with the brilliant repertoire of the English argu- ers.

The British team was composed of Miss Nancy Samuels, Miss Leonora W. Lockhart, Miss Margery Sharp, and the DePauw team, of the Misses Lillian Dale, Helen Stokes, and Gwendolyn Hautau, who spoke in the order mentioned.

Question of Faulty Paving On South Indiana Discussed.

At the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening a petition signed by Daniel C. Brackney and Sarah Brackney was read in which it was asked that Spring Avenue be opened from Melrose Avenue to Hig- gert street.

Considerable discussion followed and Councilman Earl Harris stated he was opposed to the proposition unless the street was opened and improved to Franklin street. Councilman Wal- ter Brown moved that the petition be tabled pending investigation and this was seconded by Mr. Harris. The vote on the motion was unanimous.

A permit was granted Gilbert G. Ogle to erect a 20 apartment house on Lots 26-27 in the Eastern Enlarge- ment of the city on east Washington street.

Claims were allowed including $3,685 due on the new Studebaker fire truck.

Totals on the final certificates for the improvement of Washington and College Avenue were read by city clerk Gwinn Ensign. These totals are College Avenue, $4,132.45, and Wash- ington street, $4,573.27.

The question of a section of paving on South Indiana street was brought up for discussion. It is said that water stands in the street and the council plans to determine just who is at fault, whether it is the contractor, Mr. A. E. Dorsey or the engineer.

Two members of the council, W. P. Sackett and Frank Allee were ab- sent.

TO PROLONG VISIT

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 13. (UP)—President-elect Hoover had about decided today to prolong his visit in the south on his return from his South American tour until just be- fore his inauguration.

Previously he had considered pro- posals that he return home by way of Florida, stopping for a few days there, and proceeding by easy stages back to Washington. After further consideration, he has come to see the advantage in setting up winter head- quarters in the South and planning his administration at some restful place.

The possible places where he might establish himself include Florida, Pass Christian, Miss., where Woodrow Wilson spent some time, and San Antonio.

In addition to avoiding the slush and snow of a Washington winter the president-elect would be farther from office seekers who haunt Washington, particularly on the eve of a new ad- ministration.

Not the least of the advantages of a southern stay would be the oppor- tunity of mixing with the southern- ers and making contacts of future po- litical benefit in that section which gave him a tremendous vote.

Hoover is giving serious attention to the break in the Solid South, a break which belied the predictions of most political prophets. He and his political lieutenants are thinking of ways to capitalize it, realizing its im- mense importance in the future of the Republican party.

Public Expenses Are Increasing Miesse States

TIME TO SAVE MONEY IS BE-FORE IT IS SPENT HE DECLARES.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—That the necessity for close scrutiny of public expenditures did not end with the election is the declaration of Harry Miesse, secretary of the In- diana Taxpayers' Association.

This year has shown a tendency to- ward increased cost of government," said Mr. Miesse. "Our association has noted this in many cities and towns as well as in county and township busi- ness. There is a growing disposition to include additional items in the gen- eral taxation program. There is but one time to save the people's money and that is before it is spent. Pretext: at tax paying time are too late. The moment to act is when budgets are prepared and levies made.

Local levies have been fixed for the coming year except where appeals taken by the citizens are pending be- fore the State Board of Tax Commis- sioners. The public needs now to turn its attention to the coming session of the Indiana general assembly. The citizens back home have to pay what- ever amount the legislature appropri- ates and for that reason it would be well for them to get in touch with their senators and representatives immediately and make their opinions known.

"At this time all of the state officials, hear's, commissions and depart- ments are estimating the total amounts of money they will need for the next two years. These figures go to the state budget commission for action after which they will be in- corporated in the appropriation bill. However, the bill may be amended in the house or senate and it is here that money can be saved.

If the people are opposed to great in- creases in governmental costs, higher state salaries and the like they should tell their senators and representatives so now. These men can be trusted to vote as their constituents wish. With- out an emphatic expression from the folks at home there often is a ten- dency in legislative halls to permit ex- penditures to run wild."

GOV. SMITH IN POLITICAL VALEDICTORY

DEFEATED DEMOCRAT CANDI-DATE FOR PRESIDENT SPEAKS
OVER RADIO HOOKUP

URGES HOOVER SUPPORT

Today For Vacation Trip In Mississippi.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (UP)—Just before stepping from the political arena in which he has played so con- spicuous a part, Gov. Alfred Smith delivered a "message to the Ameri- can people" last night, calling upon the Democratic party to "carry on." The address was broadcast over a nation-wide hookup of radio stations. He urged the party to look for- ward and plan a constructive program of accomplishment which would con- stitute a firm foundation for the 1932 presidential campaign.

Complete co-operation with presi- dent-elect Hoover would be the duty of every member of the Democratic party, he said, pointing out that way would be the way of all good citi- zens. Hoover is now the leader of the nation, not just of the Republican party, and he is entitled to fair chance to plan and carry out a na- tional program, Smith said.

Smith said his own defeat in no way indicated that the Democratic party lay crushed and broken. On the contrary it was alive and vigor- ous and now stood in a position to more successfully than ever solicit the confidence and support of the American people, Governor Smith said.

Though the radio speech was, in a sense, the final word of the nominee to his party, Smith declared that he was as intensely interested as ever in the principles of the Democratic party and that he not only would stand for them but "battle for them." He had previously announced, however, that he would never again be a candidate for public office.

Touching upon the bitterness in the campaign which just closed, he urged that it all should be swept aside and forgotten and the people set their faces with common enthu- siasm to the nation's welfare.

"It would be regarded as a con- structive achievement if the Demo- cratic party at Washington were to formulate a program, adopt it, offer it to the congress of the United States, and there defend it. A re- fusal on the part of the party in power to accept it or their inability to bring about party unity for the solution of these problems would then fix responsibility and make a record on which a successful campaign can be waged four years from now."

Pointing to his tremendous popular vote, Smith told his audience—both radio and the 200 friends and relatives gathered to hear him in the WEAF studio—that such a policy must be adopted if the party wished to keep faith with the millions who voted for him Nov. 6.

Accompanied by friends, Governor Smith plans to leave at 10 a. m. today for a two weeks vacation at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel near Bil- losi, Miss. He said that he was anxious to put the cares and worries of politics far behind him.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee; Wil- liam F. Kenny, in whose private car the trip will be made; and James J. Riordan will be Smith's companions on the southern journey.

$20,000.00 to improve service in Greencastle, it will not stop. This has been their policy in all the towns in which they operate. All that the company wants is to be considered a part of your community. We desire to grow with you and to mutually benefit from the growth of Greencastle. In other words, we are part of you. You might say we are the hewers of wood, we are your servants, we desire to merit your praise as the suppliers of fuel for all of your fuel requirements where you want a quick hot fire for cooking, heating of water, space heating or any other of the thousand uses to which gas may be put, for we urged the citizens of Greencastle to keep in mind at all times that "if it is done with heat you can do it better with gas."

"THE SINGING FOOL," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picturiza-tion of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, the singing waiter and song writer at Blackie Joe's New York night club, is discovered by Marcus, the famous Broadway re-voice producer. Al insists on helping Molly, the ballad singer at Blackie's, because he loves her. Molly marries him, not loving him, and he pulls her up the ladder of fame. Meanwhile, Grace, the cigar-ette girl at Blackie's, who loved Al without his knowing it, is left be-hind. Molly has a baby. After her return to the stage her romantic interest in John Perry, Al's best friend, is revived. Al becomes part owner and master of ceremonies at the fashionable Club Bombo. On the third anniversary of their mar-riage he slips a jewel case under a napkin on her reserved table. Molly is in her limousine with John Perry on the way to the club. He pleads with her to throw over Al for him and suddenly kisses her.

CHAPTER XIII

Brimming over with affection, Al greeted Molly as she entered the Bombo Club. Then he turned to Perry and said whole-heart-edly: "Awwfully good of you, old man, to take care of Molly while I'm working." Perry had turned away to see if any vestiges of Molly's face pow-der still remained on his coat. Satisfied that he was safe, he turned his coat, hat and stick over to a check girl and acknowledged versary of our marriage and—I want you all to congratulate us and be happy with us."

With that, Al suddenly slipped his arms about Molly, drew her close and kissed her. The roar of applause was deafening, twice the volume Molly had received by herself. As she stood, with Al's arm around her waist, bowing again and again, there were in-sistent cries from the crowd that she give them a song. Molly nod-ded amiably.

"Will you sing for them, honey?" whispered Al.

"Yes, I don't mind." Al tucked his arm comfortably under Molly's and led her toward the orchestra platform. The crowd waited silently, giving her every attention. At the table she had left, John Perry sat with his elbow on the table and his chin in his cupped hand, staring after her re-treating figure. A vague smile played across his features. When the song was finished and Molly returned, Perry rose and said:

"That was splendid, Molly! I never heard you in better voice. You held them in the hollow of your hand."

"Thank you, John," said Molly quickly, but with pretended indif-ference. Then she turned to Al: "Can't you sit down and stay with us a while. Must you always be circulating among the customers?" "I'll be back in a moment," whis-pered Al. "You know I want to be with you every moment I can. But, after all, I'm master of ceremonies."

Molly shrugged her shoulders as he moved off. She had made her play for him to stay, but she was pleased he had gone off. Now she could talk to John.

"And you say you need him?" came Perry's whispered exclaima-tion across the table.

"What do you mean?" "Well, you heard the applau-se you got. You don't need him at all."

"Sh!" Molly drummed on the table-top without further words. The pink, polished nails of her white, be-ringed fingers went up and down with incredible rapidity. Too many rings on those slim fin-gers, too many glittering gems to be in the best of taste! How strid-ently they proclaimed her wealth and success! Molly glanced down at the brooch Al had just given her, as it reposed against the satin bodice of her gown. A few days before she had mentioned casually that she wanted a new brooch. Now—presto!—it was hers! But now, a few moments after Al had given it to her, it became just an- other costly ornament to add to her rich collection; the significance of the gift was lost on her.

A half hour passed, and Al re-turned to the table. Another half hour, and John Perry rose to go.

"You're leaving us?" Molly ex-claimed in dismay.

"Fraid so," John answered. Now he was the one who thought of caution; he wished she wouldn't show her feelings so plainly before Al.

"Why?" she insisted. "I thought you'd run home with us for a while."

"Well, it's late for one thing. Besides, Molly, this is your anni-versary. I know you and Al want some time alone together."

Perry spoke with the utmost gravity, but Molly thought she de-tected a sardonic gleam in his alert eyes. He was making fun of Al, and of her, too! For a moment she hated him for it. But a mo-ment later, when Perry had gone, she hated Al for creating the situ-ation. Her thoughts, which had been bewildered, turned bitter. An-niversary indeed!

The Rolls-Royce sped rap-idly toward home, with Molly keep-ing silent the whole way. Al, be-lieving she was tired, remained mum, too, out of deference to her mood. When they entered the re-ception hall of their apartment Molly curly dismissed the maid and Al rushed off to the nursery, to see if Junior was sleeping.

The eyes of the young song-writer lit up with love for his baby son as he tiptoed across the nursery floor and surveyed the child, tucked safely away in bed. What a lovely picture Junior made, his mass of curls framing his de-licate young face, his toy woolly dog nestled beside him on the pillow.

As Molly entered she was struck by the scene. The expression on Al's face told more plainly than words his complete love and utter devotion to Junior. For a moment she remembered her behavior of the evening and a throb of misgiv-ing shot through her. She was un-worthy and she couldn't hide it from herself. Only a great, un-selfish love could give Al's face the expression of radiance it held now. She knew she could not achieve such a love and, suddenly the realization brought a surge of furious anger within her!

Al introduces his wife to the guests.

Al's thanks with an appearance of sincere cordiality.

They passed into the main din-ing room, Al leading the way. As they moved toward the reserved table, bewildering and contrasting thoughts flickered through Molly's mind. What a strange whirlpool of emotions had struck her down!

She felt the light caressing kiss that Al had given her in greeting still on her lips, but behind it, and much more intense, was the recol-lection of John Perry's embrace.

Now Molly and John Perry were seated at the table, while Al re-mained standing, watching his wife with intense curiosity. Why did he do that, she thought. Did he suspect something?

Al was waiting for her to lift her napkin. When she leaned back in her chair and made no move to do it he pantomimed defi-nitely for her to look under the tiny square. Molly raised the napkin, saw the jewel case and card, and gave a cry of delight.

"Oh Al, this is wonderful of you!"

With eyes sparkling she tenderly lifted from the padded silken interior of the box a magnificent diamond brooch. She drew it close, held it at arm's length, studied it carefully—while Al's face was radiant at her expression of delight. Then she passed it to Perry for inspection.

A moment later she was pinning the expensive brooch to her dress, while Al turned and drew the at-tention of the crowd toward him. "Folks," he said, "we have with us tonight none other than Molly Winton, the celebrated star of the 'Merry-Go-Rounders.'"

Then, with a proud gesture, he indicated Molly. Rousing applause was the answer of the crowd—a tribute to the girl's popularity. But Al raised his hand.

"Wait, folks!" he cried. "You ain't heard nothing yet."

He seized Molly's hand and pulled her reluctantly to her feet. While she stood smiling and bow-ing to the audience he continued:

"And for the benefit of those of you who don't know it already, I want to say that Miss Winton is in private life my wife! Tonight we are celebrating the third anni-

Improvements in Gas Service Demonstrate Our Faith in Greencastle's Future

Expansion of Local Gas Facilities Under New Management Promises More Adequate and Dependable Service and Assures City's Unhampered Industrial Development

Important improvements in the local gas storage and distribution systems looking toward increased efficiency of service to our customers have been completed.

Affording a more ample and dependable supply of gas for all immediate and future needs of the city's homes and industries, these betterments reflect the responsive and forward-looking attitude of this company's new management.

Among the major improvements now completed and in operation is a new type of high-pressure gas storage tank, 71 feet long by 20 feet in diameter, which adds a total of 50,000 cubic feet to the company's present holder capacity, thus providing at least a 24-hours' reserve supply. To insure continuously reliable pressure in all mains in the system a new compressor also has been installed in conjunction with the storage cylinder. In addition to these improvements many important trunk line mains throughout the city have been interconnected by new four-inch lateral pipes which will provide customers with more uniform pressure. The new mains, aggregating one mile in length, have been laid in Crown street between Elm and Berry streets and in Berry street from Crown to Indiana street. Another section of four-inch main was recently laid in Wood street from Seminary to Washington street.

Through this expansion and improvement of its gas service facilities, this Company has placed Greencastle on a favorable footing with communities of many times its population and industrial prominence.

It is believed that the greater availability and convenience of gas service in Greencastle made possible by these improvements will be factors of ever increasing importance in the further economic development of our city.

GAS—the Ideal Modern Fuel for Home and Industry

Of all the great gifts which science has brought to the home and to industry, Gas is one of the most valuable. Through research and invention, hundreds of uses have been found for this ideal modern fuel.

Nothing can equal an up-to-date gas range for cooking and baking appetizing food. Instant heat means quicker cooking — less waiting for things to warm up — a great saving in time and fuel bills. Cooking with gas is more economical because you use only what you need; there is no waste. An oven heat regulator relieves you of constant "watching" and insures better results.

A plentiful and continuous supply of hot water is a necessity in every modern home. The self-action gas water heater guarantees a ready flow of piping hot water for every need day and night.

GAS for House-Heating

Gas, too, is the ideal fuel for house-heating. It does away with soot, smoke and ashes and the drudgery of less modern heating methods. It furnishes healthful, dependable warmth in all weather without care or attention.

The special low rates for gas house-heating now available to Greencastle customers place this superior heating service well within your reach. We shall be glad to furnish, without obligation, an estimate of the cost of gas heat for your home.

Check up on your home and see if you are getting the full share of comfort, convenience and satisfaction made possible by modern gas service and the use of these and other labor-saving appliances.

Haines was marvelous in "Slide Kelly, Slide," and "Tell it to the Marines." You'll never forget "West Point" and "Telling the World."

You'll say he was never funnier than now as the "small-timer" of vaudeville who shows he's a headliner in Life's variety show.

AT THE VONCASTLE

Small time vaudeville leading to big time love and drama.

That in a sentence is "Excess Baggage" one of the most interesting and successful pictures of the year which will open at Voncastle, Thursday for two days.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has done everything humanly possible to insure this production of being great screen entertainment—and they have succeeded to the limit of their desires.

The picture is adapted by Frances Marion, one of the best known screenwriters, from the stage play by John McGowan, which scored a sensational success all over the country.

It was given to James Cruze, of "Covered Wagon" fame to direct and he chose William Haines for the star. Haines is today considered the most human personality on the screen.

For a supporting cast M-G-M selected Ricardo Cortez (the lead in "Helen of Troy"), Kathleen Clifford, formerly a very well known featured player, Cyril Chadwick, the noted English actor, Neely Edwards, a former Orpheum headliner, and others of nearly equal note.

The screen story is remarkably well knit and never flags in interest from start to finish.

comedy has become the habitual role of the diminutive Clyde of late. Once again he plays the protector in "Pay as You Enter," the Warner Bros. comedy at the Granada Thursday only. Myrna Loy, exotic beauty, has an important part in the story. And again William Demarest is the leading menace.

This is the fourth of a series in this group of stars, their previous appearances being in "Simple Sin," "A Sailor's Sweetheart," and more recently, "Five and Ten Cent Amie."

In "Pay as You Enter," which Lloyd Bacon directed from a scenario by Fred Stanley, Cook and Demarest run a street car and are rivals for Miss Fazenda, who "slings hash" down by the car horns. It is an unusual and fertile locale for the character comedy of these exceptional players.

Firestone Built Tires at New Low Prices!

Firestone's victory in the long fight against foreign rubber monopoly now makes possible new low prices on Firestone Tires.

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone makes this new valuable contribution to the cause of American motorists. These new price reductions mean a tremendous saving to car owners everywhere. They place Firestone quality, extra mileage and dependability within reach of EVERY PURSE. You can buy Firestone Tires at prices that give you more for your money than has ever before been possible.

You will be amazed at our new low prices on the famous Oldfield Tire, which Firestone has taken over from the Oldfield Tire Company. For more than four years these tires were sold by Oldfield dealers as the foremost quality tire, securing higher prices than for any other high grade standard tire. Now you can buy it for less than any other tire of such quality on the market.

Courier Tires and Tubes are other great Firestone-built values that are reduced in price. These over-size tires, with tough non-skid tread and rib-protected sidewalls are the outstanding leaders in quality in the medium price field.

Airway Tires are our special Firestone-built bargain offer to owners of small cars. Our new low prices cannot be duplicated.

Remember, too, that reduced prices also apply to the de luxe Firestone Gum Dipped Balloon—the tire that holds all world records for speed, safety, endurance and mileage. Come in today.
