MRS. S. A. HAYS PASSES AWAY ON WEDNESDAY

PROMINENT GREENCASTLE WOMAN'S FUNERAL TO BE SUNDAY

GRADUATE OF OLD ASBURY

Lifelong Resident of County Has Spent Most Of Her Life In This City

Greencastle friends of Mr. and Mrs. Silas A. Hays were greatly shocked Thursday morning to learn of the death of Mrs. Hays Wednesday evening. She had been in failing health for some time, but the serious nature of her illness was not generally known. Mr. and Mrs. Hays have spent practically their entire lives in this community and both are widely known. The death of Mrs. Hays was deeply regretted by the entire community.

Lillie A. Farrow, daughter of Richard Shores Farrow and wife Sarah Elizabeth Tatman, was born near Greencastle August 30, 1856. Coming to this city in early childhood she lived in this vicinity her entire life.

She attended the public schools and Presbyterian Female College of Greencastle, and graduated from Indiana Asbury University, now DePauw, in 1877.

She was united in marriage October 5, 1881, to Silas A. Hays. To this union four children were born, three of whom preceded her to the better land. Surviving are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Lillian H. Ector, wife of John Jay Ector, of Washington, one grandchild, Silas J. Ector, and a brother, L. B. Farrow of Miami, Florida.

Mrs. Hays united with the Methodist church in her childhood and lived an exemplary Christian life. Though active in every good word and work her church and her home meant more to her than anything else.

She was interested in all the religious and social activities of the city, holding at various times significant official relation in each of them.

She was a member of both the Foreign and Home Missionary Societies of her church, being president of the latter for several consecutive years. She was a member of the Woman's Club, the Over the Teacups, and Century clubs. She belonged also to the college organization, the A. A. U. W., and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Hays has been in declining health for a number of years, and passed from her earthly home to her heavenly one Wednesday evening, March 30, 1932.

The funeral services will be conducted from the family residence on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock by her pastor, Dr. Monger, assisted by the Rev. C. H. Taylor of South Bend. The active pall bearers will be members of the Sigma Chi fraternity of which Mr. Hays is a member. The honorary pall bearers are Fred L. O'Hair, Charles H. Barnaby, Russell Brown, Perry Rush, J. P. Allen Sr., Ernest Browning, Matt J. Murphy, Judge James P. Hughes, and R. A. Ogg of this city; Walter Hulet of Crawfordsville; Clyde Randel, of Terre Haute, and Judge John M. Rawley, of Brazil.

Captain McMahan To Give Address

"WORLD CONDITIONS AND RELIGION," TO BE SUBJECT AT LEBANON

Sunday morning the Presbyterian Men's Class at Lebanon will be addressed by Captain Bernie McMahan of Greencastle on the general subject, "How World Conditions are Affecting Religion." Special guests will be the members of the G. A. R., U. S. W. V., and American Legion.

Captain McMahan is a regular army instructor of the DePauw University R. O. T. C., and both he and Mrs. McMahan, who is a sister of the late George Lockwood, well known newspaper publisher of Muncie, have often visited in Lebanon.

Captain McMahan commended the last American troops that left Germany after the close of the World War and as the official representative of the United States interviewed President Von Hindenburg, then commander in charge of the German army. It is particularly significant that just at this time Germany is called upon to decide between Von Hindenburg and Hitler, and Captain McMahan in his talk will touch upon the present crisis in Germany.

LEAP YEAR BRIDES ACTIVE

A total of sixteen brides took advantage of a leap year to pop the question in March, according to a record of marriage licenses in the county clerk's office. Almost twice as many couples obtained licenses to wed in March this year compared with March of last year when only nine couples applied. The same increase in marriage licenses holds true for January and February this year, according to Miss Gertrude Oakley, deputy county clerk.

COAL MINERS TO QUIT WORK THIS EVENING

OPERATORS AND UNIONS FAIL AGREEMENT ON NEW WAGE SCALE

TERRE HAUTE Ind., Mar. 31 (UP).—Approximately 7,000 union miners were expected to take their tools home with them at the close of work today.

Scale committees representing the Indiana coal operators' association and district 11, United Mine workers of America, still were far from agreement on contracts to replace those which expire at midnight. Officials said there was no more than a remote possibility that a last minute agreement could be reached.

That the groups would not come to terms on a new wage scale before expiration of the present contract appeared more certain as shaft mine operators announced they would not seek another joint conference with miners.

Meanwhile Abe Vales, president of district 11, awaited replies from invitations he has sent to all operators in Indiana asking them to sign individual agreements to continue operations under conditions set out in the present contract.

Vales said he expected several operators to sign the individual agreements. Harvey Cartwright, secretary of the operators association, said he believed the organization would remain intact.

Strip miners reached an agreement with the operators last week. They plan to continue work on the present contract basis. If, however, shaft miners agree on a new wage scale, miners will automatically adopt it.

Two conferences have been held by the scale committees since their appointment a month ago. Both adjourned without promise of agreement.

Retention of the basic wage scale of $6.10 a day was the principle demand of miners for the 1932 contract.

Operators favored a drastic reduction in wages and payment of straight time for work after the eight-hour day, instead of time and a half, as demanded by the miners.

CHICAGO, March 31 (UP).—A 30-day suspension of work in Illinois coal fields was expected by mine and union officials to become operative at midnight tonight with expiration of the existing contract between operators and their employees.

The expected shutdown was described as neither a lock-out nor a strike by operators and union men. They said the period was necessary to complete negotiation of a new working agreement.

A committee representing the Illinois Coal Operators' Association may report today on a new wage scale. However, there is no possibility that the scale can be made effective before expiration of the old agreement.

Union leaders have agreed that any mine wishing to operate tentatively under the existing scale may do so. The principal conflict between operators and workers centers about a requested wage reduction.

Illinois mine owners contend they can not compete effectively with other coal fields under the present wage policy. After the committee drafting the new contract has agreed the proposal must be submitted to a vote of the union membership. At least a week would be required for the vote.

MAIL PILOT KILLED

CLEVELAND, Mar. 31 (UP).—An air mail pilot, enroute from New York to Cleveland, crashed near Bedford, a suburb, in a snowstorm today and was killed.

The pilot was Robert Malick, flying a Transcontinental Air Transport ship.

ALL I ASK KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT

SAID GENERAL NAT GREENE TO GENERAL ANTHONY WAYNE

YOUNG GEO. BLACK HEARD IT

Putnam County Men Took Part in Battle of the Thames Under Colonel Harrison

"Wayne," said General Nathaniel Greene, as he rode up to General Mad Anthony in a column of staff officers of the Colonial army, down in Virginia 151 years ago, "Wayne," he said, "we are going over to that Presbyterian elder's house for dinner, and, as an especial favor to me, please keep your mouth shut while we are there."

But, judging by some things that occurred later, Mad Anthony considered the advice of his commanding officer too good a joke on himself to keep, because, some seventy years afterward, an old man then living here in Putnam county related the incident to a friend of his, in Greencastle, who in turn, told it, some thirty years later, to a friend who, a short time ago, recalled it to the writer.

That old man here in Putnam county who first related the incident was Major George Black who was a fourteen-year-old son in the home of that "Presbyterian elder" in Virginia at the time of the visit there of Generals Greene and Mad Anthony Wayne. He was but nine years old when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

So, if Mad Anthony Wayne did tell the joke on himself, young George must have heard it and have treasured it in his mind until, possibly about the year 1855, he included it in his conversations of interesting experiences related to his young friend, Ezra W. Fisk, a Greencastle Presbyterian minister. Dr. Fisk, who had a marvelous memory for such things, recounted the incident decades later to his young friend, Dr. O. F. Overstreet, and it was the latter who recently interested the writer with it. Thus, a century and a half after it happened, the matter of finding its way into print, having been brought down through these full fifteen decades by tradition, only.

This George Black, when he was eighteen years old, emigrated across the mountains, with his father, from Virginia, into Kentucky, where he had some thrilling periods of fighting the Indians. Then he served in Colonel Richard M. Johnson's regiment of mounted riflemen for the War of 1812, returned to Kentucky and lived there until 1852, when he came to Putnam county and lived with his son, Alexander Black, on the latter's widespread farm immediately west of Greencastle, a part of which later became the home of J. W. James. The old house, mostly of log construction, is still standing. Some of the land is again in the family, having become the property of Andrew B. Hanna, a great-grandson of the old Major Black. The latter was the father of Andrew and Miller Black, also, and through his three sons he was the paternal ancestor of a large number of Putnam county people.

The Putnam Banner of September 24, 1859, told of Major Black's death "at the home of his son, Alexander Black, in the ninetieth year of his age."

Mr. Hanna recalled one bit of family tradition concerning this forefather of his (and of others here) which was typical of the hardy generations which peopled Kentucky and, in turn, Indiana.

"The old gentleman, at his Kentucky home, had a shelf of tools at the back of the front porch. Once, when he was having trouble with a tooth, he decreed it should be removed. A dentist was not available. The tooth, a big molar, resisted all efforts with the usual home tools used for such purposes. So, going to his shelf of tools, he selected a hammer and a big wrought spike nail. Sitting down on the porch, he put the end of the nail back against the tooth and hammered on the nail until the tooth came out."

Major George Black, when in Colonel Johnson's regiment of mounted riflemen, was in the battle of the Thames, in Canada, and related a thrilling chapter of that historical encounter in which, strangely enough, another young man was involved, in a heroic part, who, it is said, was the uncle of James T. Denny and others who were well known Putnam county citizens. It came about in this way.

This regiment found itself one evening among Colonel William Henry Harrison's troops on the Thames river, which evening, as it developed, was the eve of the critical battle of the war, and this Denny ancestor may be considered as the "entering wedge" which split the British and Indian forces apart and caused their disastrous defeat.

Colonel Johnson's men were ordered to lie on their arms that night but young Denny was so sympathetic with his young horse that he removed the heavy dragoon bridle which hurt her mouth. In the morning, when the men were ordered to mount for battle, the bridle could not be found.

"He" said Major Black to Dr. Fisk, "had a bandanna handkerchief fully a yard square. He folded it diagonally, tied one end around the mare's jaw, and mounted. Johnson's command was thrown into column."

"The column advanced for the charge, but Denny's horse got excited and tore right out of the column, ahead of the rest. The young rider made the best of the situation. Yelling to the British and Indians to get out of his way, and waving his arms for his comrades to come on, he swept down on the enemy. They were so dumbfounded by the audacity of the thing that they actually parted to let him through. But the rest of the Kentuckians were right behind him, and thus the British and Indians were hopelessly defeated five minutes after the battle started. The Indian chieftain, Tecumseh, was killed that day."

CLINTON TOWNSHIP YOUNG MAN DENIES CHARGE OF OFFICERS

Edgar Edward, nineteen years old, of Clinton township, arrested Thursday by Sheriff Alva Bryan and Deputy Sheriff Edward Eiteljorge, charged with altering a check, was lodged in the county jail to await arraignment before Judge James P. Hughes in the Putnam Circuit Court.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. TALBOTT ON THURSDAY

ONE OF LOVELIEST CHARACTERS OF CITY SUCCUMBS OF PNEUMONIA

WAS BORN IN KENTUCKY

Came to This Community When a Small Girl. Active for Years in Various Organizations

One of Greencastle's most beloved women, Mrs. Mary Pickett Talbott, age 82 years, widow of Charles O. Talbott, died Thursday morning at 7:10 o'clock, at her home, 412 East Hanna street, following a short illness of influenza and pneumonia.

Born in Falmouth, Ky., November 13, 1850, the only child of John P. and Ann Hathaway, Mrs. Talbott came to Putnam County at the age of 4 years with her parents, and had since that time lived in this community.

She has been described as the youngest old person in Greencastle, retaining a keen and lively interest in present day affairs up to the date of her last illness.

Her marriage to Charles O. Talbott took place July 13, 1870. He preceded her in death three years ago. To them was born five children, Frank and Harry, of Greencastle, and Miss Lelia Talbott and Miss Susie Talbott, both at home, and Thomas Talbott, who died six years ago. Several grandchildren and a host of friends also mourn her unexpected death.

Mrs. Talbott united with the Baptist church at an early life and lived a most useful Christian life. She was a charter member of the Putnam County chapter of the American Red Cross and also was an active worker in the Women's Christian Temperance Union. A great lover of home, friends and church, she gave unsparingly of her time to these.

Funeral services will be held from the home, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock The Rev. W. J. Crowder, pastor of the First Baptist church, and Dr. Salem B. Town will be in charge.

Public Sees New Ford V-8 Today

PRICE RANGE FROM $460 TO $650 ANNOUNCED. 4-CYLINDER $50 LESS

DETROIT, Mich., March 31.—The new Ford V-8 was shown to the public of 200 cities in the United States and Canada today.

Prices ranging from $460 for the roadster to $650 for the convertible sedan were announced for the new V-type eight-cylinder cars.

Prices of the new four-cylinder cars will be $50 less than those quoted on the corresponding eight-cylinder body types, the announcement said.

The prices of the eight, all F. O. B. Detroit, were announced as follows: Roadsters, $460; de luxe roadster, $500; phaeton, $495; de luxe phaeton, $545; coupe, $490; de luxe coupe, $575; sport coupe, $535; cabriolet, $610; victoria, $600; tudor sedan, $590; de luxe tudor sedan, $550; fordor sedan, $590; de luxe fordor sedan, $645; and convertible sedan, $650.

It was Ford's bid for "the end of the depression" forecast several weeks ago when he indicated he was going to stake millions on his belief the public would buy if offered value at the right price.

And the price was calculated to create a sensation in the automobile-manufacturing industry, because it places the eight cylinder automobile in a market where it undersells almost every other four, six or eight cylinder car produced.

The majority of the 8-cylinder models are only $10 to $25 higher in price than the corresponding models in the now retired Model A four-cylinder line.

WAR CLOUDS IN ORIENT AGAIN CAST SHADOW

CHINESE AND NIPPON FORCES REPORTED "DIGGING IN" AROUND SHANGHAI

MANCHURIA IS "HOT SPOT"

Guerrilla Warfare Continues in Newly Formed Far East Republic. Launch Offensive Against Irregulars

SHANGHAI, Mar. 31 (UP).—Military defense works were being constructed by Chinese and Japanese armies in the Shanghai area today despite assurances of leaders that peace negotiations were progressing satisfactorily.

The fifth and 12th Chinese route armies were building trenches along the west bank of the Tsingyangkiang River in the vicinity of Renli, where foreign residents of Shanghai hold an annual regatta.

Japanese troops constructed bulwarks in Kiangnan and other villages surrounding Shanghai, although commanders gave no indication of their purpose.

From Chinese sources it was reported that Japanese peace conferences desired an indefinite continuation of their occupation in four areas around Shanghai, the Woosung and Yangtzeo districts, in Chapei from North Sechechen road and in Hsiangwan eastward from the racecourse.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Mar. 31 (UP).—Chinese Generals led defenders of the Japanese-controlled city of Nungan today as a heavy force of guerrillas attacked from three sides amid bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

Arrayed at the side of Japanese troops, native commanders ordered a major offensive to begin tomorrow in an attempt to route the irregulars who are threatening security of the new Manchurian republic.

The Nungan siege was the biggest of many battles in which Japanese and their Chinese allies fought cowering ranks of Chinese "bandits" over far-flung districts of Manchuria.

Gen. Ma Chan-Shan, Chinese general who resisted the Japanese when the Manchurian campaign began last autumn, was among the defenders of Nungan, as was Gen. Chiang Hai-Peng. Both became allied with Japan in setting up Manchukuo. With Nangan located close to Changchun, capital of the Japanese "Puppet" republic, the battle was of first importance.

Japanese soldiers engaged in a four-hour conflict with 1,000 irregulars today between Ninguta and Hallin, according to reports from the Russian center of Harbin. Japanese have charged the Russians were silently active in the abortive guerrilla raids which have been continuing for months.

LINDBERGH IS SKEPTICAL OF NEGOTIATIONS

FAMOUS FLIER BELIEVES NORFOLK CLUE HAS NO SPECIAL SIGNIFICANCE

TEMPORARILY AT STANDSTILL

No Definite Progress Reported Today By Virginia Men Working On Kidnaping Mystery

NORFOLK, Va., March 31 (UP).—Local negotiations with men claiming to have Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., kidnapped March 1, appeared temporarily at a halt today.

Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, Rear Admiral Guy Burrage and John H. Curtis, acting as intermediaries for Colonel Lindbergh, have had no actual communication with the men claiming to be the kidnapers, or with their agent for several days.

Statements by the three indicated they have had great difficulty convincing Lindbergh the Norfolk men have the baby.

Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf has been quoted at Hopewell as saying Lindbergh thought the Norfolk "clue" had no special significance. Admiral Burrage explained that the aviator and his wife are "so distracted that nothing can convince them except the actual sight of the baby."

The admiral then admitted he was "not completely convinced" of the truth of the story told to Curtis by the man claiming to be the kidnapers' agent.

One of many rumors current in Norfolk said the ransom money has been deposited in a local bank, but Burrage said no arrangement had been made for payment of ransom.

Earlier in the day Dean Dobson-Peacock had solemnly read a statement to the public:

"If there is failure in the Norfolk negotiations, the kidnapers and they alone will know why."

It was learned yesterday Curtis' "mystery flight" last week end was to Philadelphia. He flew in a navy plane and registered at the navy yard as "Mr. Guy." Some close to him said he had continued on to Hopewell to see Lindbergh but Burrage said as far as he knew the Norfolk shipbuilder did not confer with Lindbergh.

Prof. Tilden Is Kiwanis Speaker

DEPAUW FACULTY MEMBER DISCUSSES POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC SITUATION

Prof. F. C. Tilden, of DePauw University, spoke most interestingly on the world political and economic situation at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club Thursday noon at the Christian church. Professor Tilden spoke in particular on Germany. He pointed out how that nation is opposed to industry and how the German people seemingly want a change from the Hindenburg regime but are afraid to try out another leader such as Hitler. He stated that Germany as a whole is bitterly opposed to the mechanical age with its efficiency, speed and mass production.

In his talk, Professor Tilden also touched briefly on the depression in the United States. The outlook is far from optimistic, according to him, unless some great leader can be found with an understanding and information broad enough to cope with the situation.

He quoted many recognized authorities in the various fields to emphasize points in his address and went on to show that none at present really knows just what is the right thing to do.

BELIEVES LOVE HAS

FALLEN IN VALUE
SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Love, along with most everything else is falling in value, Nicholas Kitsos had discovered today.

Where Kitsos, a safe owner, had figured the love of his wife was worth at least $50,000, the legal yardstick of Superior Court Judge E. P. Shortall fixed it at just $1.

Judge Shortall so decided after poring over Mrs. Kitsos' amorous diary which the aggrieved husband had submitted as evidence in his suit against B. A. Wheeler, salesman, for alleged alienation of affections.

"The defendant writes that he hasn't $50,000 to settle your suit," the Judge told Kitsos. "I'll give you a default judgment of $1. From this diary, I would take it that your wife didn't have $50,000 worth of love for you."

SEED

As we close the month of March it may be of interest to remind ourselves that it is the birth month of Andrew Jackson, the seventh President of the United States. This man, so ardently admired and so intensely hated, was the embodiment of so many faults and such strong virtues that he easily takes his place as one of the world's most interesting characters. His lowly birth in the backwoods of South Carolina, his poverty, the loss of his parents in early youth, the lack of all but the most meager school training would have handicapped a less determined character. He absolutely refused to be defeated by his handicaps. Not even Lincoln furnishes a greater example of dogged perseverance in the rise from poverty and obscurity. He capitalized his strong points and battled to overcome his weakness until he won his way to the Presidency. It is pretty well conceded that no President ever had so many powerful enemies. He won by dint of perfect integrity and an iron will. He was re-elected President in 1832. There were giants in that day: John Quincy Adams, Clay, Calhoun, Webster, and Hayne.

Professor Albert Heavin and wife very pleasantly entertained a number of guests, forty-four in all, including members of the Senior class, the faculty and their families and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hendricks at a party in the gymnasium last Wednesday evening.

The entertainment proved quite a delightful with a program as follows: A play entitled "Old Maids Club" was written and presented by Senior girls.

Mr. Thompson and a group of his music pupils gave an hours musical program.

Mrs. Weller at the piano and Mrs. Summerville, violinist gave several selections.

Games and contests concluded the evenings entertainment after which dainty refreshments were served.

All departed at a late hour voting Mr. and Mrs. Heavin ideal host and hostess.

LOCAL J. C. PENNEY STORE ANNOUNCES BIG MONTH DUE TO CELEBRATION

April 14th marks the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the J. C. Penney Company and the entire month will be devoted to the celebrating of this landmark in the growth of the organization, according to C. D. Chapman, manager of the store in this city.

Mr. Chapman came to this city in August, 1928, after having served his apprenticeship in the company at Salt Lake City, Utah, and Chillicothe, Mo. This is in line with the policy of the organization that all store managers must come up through the organization, learning every detail of the business before they are admitted to managerial opportunities.

Following the established policy of the company that managers should identify themselves with local organizations and take an active part in community affairs, Mr. Chapman is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis Club and local council of Boy Scouts of America.

Commenting on plans for the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary, Mr. Chapman said, "In the past it has been the custom for the company to celebrate an anniversary by having some special items which offered, what we called 'anniversary values,' but this year we will have not only an anniversary special for each day in April but we will also have a wide list of special items covering every department in the store.

"Many of these values will feature prices which have not been obtainable since 1912. They come as a result of many months devoted to planning for this anniversary.

Save!

Time—Only 1 to 3 hours at most is required to get a loan here.

Trouble—No signatures except your own are needed.

Expense—No charge for investigations or appraisal. No fees or extras of any kind.

Worry—Why fret over financial affairs, when a loan is so easily obtained?

Credit—Many a man's standing with his home town merchants has been saved by a timely loan.

Try It!

We lend $20.00 to $300.00 to the fellow without banking connections, to be repaid monthly or quarterly.

values to be shown in the April anniversary events will represent even greater decreases in price than those which have come about as a result of normal price changes.

"It is doubtful whether many people will be able to recall retail prices as low as those which will mark some of the most general used items of merchandise which we will have on our counters.

"Trade stimulation must come from a recognition on the part of the retail merchant, that people know what values can be obtained and are insisting on obtaining them.

"Half of the so-called hoarding of the past has not been hoarding, it has been the exercise of the defense of one's own pocketbook.

"Women are buying carefully and with a great deal of thought, but our own experience has shown that they do buy when the real bed-rock values show up over the counters.

"The anniversary work will start at the opening of the store on April 1, and continue until April 30.

DePauw Chapel

Prof. G. B. Manhart of the history department was DePauw chapel speaker Thursday morning. He discussed Briand, the famous French statesman who died just recently.
Prof. Manhart credited the less enimical feeling between France and Germany to the work of Briand and the German statesman, Strassmann, who was discussed in a similar fashion by Prof. W. W. Carson some time ago.
"Briand forsook an early ambition to be a sailor to become a lawyer. He was a strong socialist and for a time edited a socialistic journal. In 1902 he was elected to the chamber of deputies and his political career began.
In 1906 he became a member of the French cabinet and from that time his career was most remarkable," Prof. Manhart stated.
"Briand served on twenty-three cabinets, was premier eleven times and held many other important state offices. He was not in power at the time the treaty of Versailles was drawn up or the terms might have been less strenuous on the defeated.
He was criticised both by the extreme nationalists and by the internation-alists as well.
"He represented France at most of the important conferences and while standing strongly for the rights of France was willing to compromise to get half a loaf rather than no bread at all. He demonstrated his ability by ending bloodlessly a serious strike by calling the strikers into the army, using the army to man the trains and to put down their own strike."
In closing Prof. Manhart said:
"Briand will be remembered, not as a great socialist leader, not as a great war minister, not as a brilliant man in time of a crisis, but a man whose influence and work did much to bring a real end to the war between France and Germany that had continued even after armed hostilities had ceased."

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

"Is Industrial Democracy the Way Out?" This will be the subject of the address by Rev. A. A. Heist, at the Methodist Brotherhood dinner Monday night, 6:30 o'clock, April 4. Rev.
Heist is the social service secretary of the Columbia Conserve Company, an experiment in industrial democracy formerly owned by the Hagood Brothers. It is an employee-owned and controlled canning industry. What this method is, why it was adopted and how it has worked out, especially in times of depression, will be told by Rev. Heist. His address has an appeal to every one interested in business conditions, business management, and the humane, social and spiritual side of employee ownership.

Rev. Heist is a popular speaker at noon luncheon clubs and chambers of commerce as well as at church gatherings. He was for three years associate secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service and for five years minister of Denver's nationally known Grace Community church and president of Denver Open Forum. He has served as special lecturer on the church and industry at Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.; and is a member of the Committee on Industry of the National Conference on Social Work.

This will be a supper meeting at 6:30 o'clock and all who attend must make their reservations by Sunday evening. The meeting is open to any one in the community interested in the fellowship and the address and the forum that will follow.

CUTHBERTSON APPOINTED

INDIANAPOLIS, March 31 (UP)— Commissioner Harry K. Cuthbertson was appointed by Chairman John W.
McCardle, of the Public Service Commission, yesterday, to hear the Northwestern Indiana Power Company's petition for rate revisions extending over its north-central Indiana properties.

A similar petition was filed by another utility, also Insull owned, in the so-called "South System" case. It was approved temporarily by the commission pending hearings in each of the cities involved.

Cuthbertson is regarded as an advocate of the power loop plan and favored its use in the Martinsville case which was decided by a federal court in favor of the unit system of rate schedules.

The Northern Indiana Company serves 185 communities including Huntington, Noblesville, Rochester, Wabash, Clinton, Martinsville, Sullivan and Greencastle.

CHEWING TOBACCO

FOUND ON ZOO MENU

*LANCASTER, Pa., (UP)—Chewing tobacco forms part of the holiday menu at the municipal zoo here.

The tobacco is fed to a doe deer and its farm, now five months old.
The bear received a piece of pie and several apples; the coyote some turkey bones; the monkey, oranges.

FILM STUDIO'S ARSENAL

CHECKED UP BY POLICE

NEW YORK, (UP)—The gun cabinet in the property department of the Paramount film studio here resembles a veritable gangsters' arsenal.

One hundred and three revolvers, ranging from Lugers to "22's", hang on numbered hooks. Blank cartridges to fit every gun are found in a nearby drawer. Rifles and shotguns of every description can be found in another compartment.

The New York Police Department makes a check-up of the arsenal two or three times a month. One permit covers the whole collection, but every gun must be accounted for and a report made of its use when the inspector comes around.

RADIO OPERATOR GUIDES

FLIER 1,000 MILES AWAY

FORT WORTH, Tex., (UP)—A radio operator here probably saved the life of a New York-Chicago air-mail pilot more than 1,000 miles away.

Pilot Allen, flying through a fog before daybreak from New York to Chicago during a recent stormy period, was unable to communicate with the Chicago operator directing his course. He could hear Chicago but Chicago could not hear him.

Gentry Stuart, manager of an airport here, said he discovered Allen's predicament with his radio receiving and sending set and acted as a relay, transmitting messages to and from Allen and the Chicago operator.

JUNK DEALER PURCHASES

KANKAKEE'S CAR LINE

KANKAKEE, Ill., (UP)—Fourteen street cars, which were discarded by a public utility company when it received permission from the Illinois Commerce Commission to substitute buses, were sold recently as junk at an average price of $25 each.

The cars, in good mechanical condition, were purchased by a second hand dealer. He also purchased the rails and copper wire used for trolley lines and now he is fully equipped to run his own street car line providing he can get the power to operate it.

The dealer said he was undecided whether to junk the cars and sell the parts, or to try and interest some community in buying them.

LINDBERGH CASE RECALLS

KIDNAPING OF WM. SPORE
MEMPHIS, Tenn., (UP)—Kidnap-ing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., recalled to mind here the kidnaping 61-years ago of a two-year-old son of a wealthy business man.

The child, William Spore, was snatched from the arms of a nurse, supposedly by two strange men who had been seen trailing the maid and little boy. Spore, a wealthy fish merchant who had incurred the wrath of business rivals, believed enemies kidnaped his son.

He spent a fortune seeking the child, traveling through 44 states.

George Spore, still living here and a brother of William, said the family never solved the kidnaping mystery nor was William ever found.

News of the kidnaping was printed in newspapers in all parts of the country and accounts of the father's search were widely read.

TRAVELERS GET NEW DINERS

NEW YORK (UP)—Firm in the belief that people continue to travel and eat enroute during the coming "depression" year, a western railroad has approved the purchase of 14 additional dining cars, to be placed into service during the late spring.

NICKEL REGAINS PLACE IN SUN DURING SLUMP

DEPRESSION BRINGS SMALL COIN BACK TO PLACE OF POPULARITY

(By United Press)

Surveys of the cost of living throughout the United States today revealed the nickel has come back, apparently to stay.

One five-cent piece now will buy a large slice of pie in most of the principal cities for the first time since 1918. Other "good buys" for a nickel include a ham-and-egg sandwich, shoe shine, large loaf of bread and in a couple of large cities you can see a complete motion picture show for five cents.

A Boston barber advertised a free shave and shine, or massage and shine, with each haircut, but a New Haven competitor went him one better and came out with "A shave and haircut for one dime."

Food and clothing lead the dash for new low marks. One big Chicago clothier "liquidated" to offer men's suits at $1. Many others followed with two suits for the price of one, the average cost of a suit of clothes in Chicago being around $22.50, as against $45 four years ago.

Chain and independent restaurants alike in Chicago and New York offer ham and egg sandwiches for five cents, a plate of ham and eggs, buttered toast and coffee for 15 cents and a large plate of beans for a nickel.

Even the bootleggers have been brought to terms. Although the well-remembered sign boasting "Largest in town for a nickel" has not come back, the five cent beer has, with whiskey selling for 10 to 15 cents, the barrel houses serving it for a nickel.

In Buffalo a chain store tailor offers a booklet of 10 free shaves with every suit pressed at the new low price of 30 cents. In the Buffalo laboring district bread, slightly stale, is popular at three cents a loaf.

Recently, in Cleveland, a party of five crowded into a taxicab at the railway station and rode a mile to one of the hotels, where the driver collected exactly two nickels, all the meter read.

MURDERER SOUGHT

EVANSVILLE, March 31 (UP).—Clifton Bruce Claiborne, 27, mourned two days as the victim of a brutal murder, was sought today as the slayer of Albert Johnson, age 35.

After long dispute over the body of a man found slain near Mt. Vernon Tuesday morning, authorities decided it was Johnson and surrendered it to his family. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Claiborne, however, still protested that the slain man is their son. To support their contention, they offered the statement of Dr. William Jenkinson, Mt. Vernon, who announced he had examined the body and found there was no cataract over an eye. Johnson, according to his family, had been suffering with a cataract for four years and had almost lost his sight in one eye.

OPPOSES TAX SESSION

INDIANAPOLIS, Mar. 30 (UP).—Joe Rand Beckett, chairman of a senate tax relief group, has announced his opposition to a special tax legislation session of the General Assembly.

"If the relief plan drawn up by the citizens' relief committee was enacted," Beckett said, "it would mean an actual loss of $2,100,000 to Indiana taxpayers. While a huge saving is claimed in the program, the revenue that would be cut off far exceeds the amount that would be saved, resulting in a net loss."

The price on Zinc Stearate in the Fleenor and Owl drug store at yesterday should have read 19¢ instead of 10¢.

Roscoe Gibson Scott, Democrat, filed a petition as state delegate from the Third and Fourth Wards in Greencastle, with the county clerk Thursday.

The Citizens Trust Company of Greencastle was named administrator of the estate of Christian G. Hartman in circuit court Thursday. In another action Anna Callender, of Greencastle, was named administrator of the estate of Levi F. Aker, of Reelsville, who died November 10, 1918. The deceased left an estate of $2,104 in the form of a war insurance policy payable to Martha Aker, and the administrator was named to distribute this among four sisters, two brothers and two nephews.

GHOST CHASER KEPT BUSY

LONDON, (UP)—A modern piper, who lures ghosts instead of rats, has all the engagements he can handle these days.

He is Robert King, of Hampstead, and he travels about Europe ridding haunted houses of their wraiths, casting out devils and other such odd jobs. King modestly admits that he has a way with ghosts.

"First I diagnose the case," he said, "and if it is caused by a dead person, I attempt to cleanse the room. Disturbances can be broken up by a stream of concentrated thought that has the same action as a pin up a bubble. This stream is fortified by a religious ritual."

King recently was called to a house, where, one of depression and extreme sadness. He was told there also were mysterious knocks, creaks and shadows.

"I stayed in the hall alone," said King. "Soon I sensed a disturbance that was like a current of air. I followed it. It led me to a room at the top of the stairs. There was the center of the psychic disturbance. It was tremendous, a kind of epileptic storm. The room was saturated with violent feeling, rage and murderous hate."

"I was able to visualize the cause. I discovered that a woman had been murdered by her husband. I saw him kill her. She had betrayed him. He had discovered her sin."

"Having discovered the origin of the malevolent feeling, I set about to cleanse it. The spirits left the room.

There were no more knocks or creaks."

SEXLESS FILMS MEAN EMPTY THEATERS

LONDON, (UP)—Sexless films would mean empty picture theaters, according to Herbert Wilcox, one of the best known British film directors. "You cannot ban sex from films. You cannot keep sex out. It is the basis of all stories, new and old," declared Wilcox in an interview, when questioned about the proposal of Edward Shortt, the film censor, to ban sex films.

"The cinema will be laboring under great handicaps if it is not allowed the same freedom as the theater, literature and modern thought," continued Wilcox. "It would be worse from film stories. We should not even be able to show Romeo and Juliet."

"However, it is possible to have a sex theme without oversteering it, and where the cinema is to become a family institution this is very desirable."

WHALE SNAPS ANCHOR CABLE, TOWS SHIP

CAPE MAY, N. J., (UP)—The casual buying of a new cable for his fishing smack by Captain Esse Boies, of Dias Creek, revealed that the fisherman lost his anchor to a sportive whale.

Several nights ago he headed his trim craft south for codfish. Anchoring at night, with one man on watch, he leaped from his bunk and looked over the side. A large whale, he said had hooked the anchor and was carrying the boat around in circles. As he prepared to cut the anchor cable, it broke and the whale disappeared.

Hastily he leaped from his bunk and looked over the side. A large whale, he said had hooked the anchor and was carrying the boat around in circles. As he prepared to cut the anchor cable, it broke and the whale disappeared.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT TO OPEN

NEW YORK, March 31 (UP).—The

"World Bridge Olympic" tournament with 50,000 players in the four corners of the earth will start promptly at 8:10 p. m., Friday.

Sixteen hands, most of them tricky, have been mailed out to game captains in every state of the Union, and Manila also. At the appointed hour, the players will sit down, the 1,000 game captains will start play and at the end, 350 gold and silver trophies will be awarded.

Ely Culbertson, bridge expert who recently triumphed in 150 rubbers with Sidney Lenz, and a sort of super-referee of the olympic was not even disturbed by the report that samples of the sixteen hands had drifted into the "wrong hands."

He declared that most bridge players could study the hands for a week and still not know the right way to bid and play the sixteen hands, ways supposedly known only to Culbertson. Culbertson's troubles will begin just when those of the tournament players are over, around 11 p. m. There will be 800,000 individual sets to be sorted and totaled. One pair from the 50,000 players is to be selected as the recipient of the first prize trophy, a gold cup with the name of the winner and a sample hand engraved thereon.

Then 349 other pairs must be selected for the remaining cups, a task which would challenge the ingenuity of an income tax expert or insurance actuary.

Meanwhile the 50,000 contestants, having duly paid the entry fee of $2 each, and arranged to play under the watchful eye of one team captain or another, will be called upon to look the other way if temptation should befall them before 8:01 p. m., Friday, and lead them to undue brilliance in bidding and play.

DISCOURAGE THAT COLD

"Colds are not a necessary evil, they can be prevented by following a few simple rules of health and diet," says Aneta Beadle, nutrition specialist of Purdue University.

In the past few weeks colds have been exceedingly prevalent, and the following rules are suggested as defenses that may be used against the common cold:

1. Eat a varied and simple diet. The condition of the body cells are dependent upon the food they receive. Overeating overworks the organs of digestion, including the heart and lungs, and deprives the body of important foods as the excess is usually sweets, fats and rich foods.

2.—Use milk and milk products—one pint for each adult, one quart for each child. Eat plenty of vegetables and fruits—four or more daily, besides potatoes and dried beans, especially green leafy vegetables, raw fruits and vegetables, canned tomatoes and citrus fruits. Drink six to eight glasses of water daily. Include eggs, meat cereals, etc., as needed.

3.—Keep plenty of fresh air in the house. Open the windows and doors and change the air completely several times a day. Have the room temperature between 68 and 70 degrees. Keep a pan of water in the stove or radiator to add moisture to the air. Sleep with the window open. "Use your head to save your heels" as muscular fatigue is a forerunner of colds. Shun a person with a cold. When sneezing, cover the mouth. Use materials which can be burned—and burn them.

4.—See that your clothing, shoes and hats in no way impede the free circulation of the blood. The blood must flow freely to all parts of the body to keep the system in a healthy condition by carrying the needed nourishment and removing the waste that accumulates.

SYNOPSIS

Under the leadership of "El Coyote," the masked bandit, the Mexican ranchers plan to overthrow the wealthy Paco Morales, who has confiscated their property for years. All search for "El Coyote" has been in vain. Ted Radcliffe, a young American whose father Morales ruined, loves the Spaniard's beautiful niece, Adela. Jito, Morales' ward, is jealous. Bob Harkness, a friend of Ted's late father, urges Ted not to quarrel with Morales, as he has other plans. Following a raid on the village by Jito's vaqueros, one of his men is killed by Anton, an Indian. Morales, fearing the vengeance of the tribe, releases Anton. Out riding, Adela tells Ted she disapproves of her uncle's treatment of the peons.

CHAPTER XXV

They fell silent, intent on watching the trail, which now sloped rapidly off the mesa and descended abruptly to the dry bottom of the stream.

Chaparral and stunted aspen grew thicker as they twisted their way along the narrow cañon, and for two hours jogged at a slow trot, until the ascending grade told them they were entering the foothills. There they dismounted and led their horses up the steep ascent. The sun was already at its height when the girl pointed to a grove of fir trees on the hill above them.

"It is the Spring of the Saints," a place of dreamy silences, Ted found it. Cool and shaded after the blazing desert. A stream welled up from among the rocks and along its banks tall firs and pine trees clustered.

"The sacred trees of the Aztec people, those firs," the girl told him. "Men still call them in Spanish 'the religious firs.' Smell how fragrant they are."

They walked knee-deep through rustling ferns. On the knoll behind them stretched a low, rambling wall of stone, and beyond it the gray ruins of a church, with the bellery still standing. Through the windows they could see a rustling bell, silhouetted against the sky.

"The Spanish monks built a monastery here," she said, as they loomed their saddles. "How long they lived here and worshiped God in this quiet place no one knows. The Indians back in the hills still remember them as the 'good people' but now it is a place of bats and ghosts. Listen to that brook and the wind among the fir tops. I often think this is one of the most peaceful places in the world. One might live here all one's life and just be happy and let the world pass by. As a matter of fact, that is what those old monks did."

"And now, if you will bring those saddlebags, we'll see what they've packed for us."

They ate with all the appetite a long morning ride can give, then Ted watched her as she lay back on the soft grass, looking up at the dark tree tops. At last he said, "You're a healthy young animal, aren't you?"

"If you mean that I've just eaten enough for two men, I'll have to agree."

"No, but it's been crossing my mind that you're just what old Mother Nature, if she has any plan at all, would want women to be."

"That's too dark a saying, Señor Ted."

"What I'm trying to say is that I find you quite unspoiled by the world. You're neither bored nor bitter, neither are you ready to accept the world as it is. You know there are holes in it, and you try to help."

"You do help. And there is something of a child in you, too. That swift love of beautiful things you have, your sympathy with all sorrow, your hate of cruel power."

"So,

"Ted, if you ever fall in love, don't bother that head of yours about whether the girl is rich or poor."

do you mind if I say I find you perfect and quite adorable?"

Leaning over she laid a cool hand on his. "Don't make love to me, Ted," she smiled.

"It's just because I couldn't make love to you that I can say all this."

"I'm not sure I like that either. Explain why couldn't you make love to me?"

"Men tell me you will some day be the richest woman in all north Mexico."

"Well?"

"Well, I am Ted Radcliffe, the poorest man in all Mexico—north or south—gentleman at large, and with a future all to be made."

She smiled again. "I see." Then, after a little she added: "Ted, I told you last night, if you ever fall in love, don't bother that head of yours about whether the girl is rich or poor. Only very old and very wise people do that, and they're always wrong."

"What should I say to her, Sphinx?"

"Just say that you love her. Isn't that enough? Why clutter it up with an inventory of one's possessions?"

After all, life can be made so simple, just as simple as it is here, where we are now, with all the ugliness and the difficulties left out."

"I'm wondering what your uncle would say if some nameless youth tried to teach that doctrine to you?"

The girl's laughter seemed to fill the glade.

"If I should fall in love with anyone except some Mexican or Spaniard of an old family, uncle would probably turn me out into the world. To him my only purpose in life should be to marry someone worthy to be master of the hacienda of Paco Morales. He used to send me to Mexico City every winter, hoping I'd fall in love with some aristocratic youth."

"And Jito?"

"I think Jito has been much happier since I refused both him and the others."

"And you have refused?"

"On I've refused Jito at least a hundred times. The last time was about a week ago. I think if I accepted Jito he would be a broken man. He would have nothing to scorn about, and he would have no reason to strut gloomily back and forth, enjoying a broken heart. Jito, in many ways, is a dear, but that is all. Some day I'll pick Jito out a nice girl and he will spend the rest of his life quite happily, bulling her and being worshiped by her."

Ted rolled over on his back and looked up at the tree tops.

"I'm beginning to find you out, Adela."

She mimicked extreme terror. "Heaven forbid. So soon?"

"So soon. You've led me to believe that you are an extremely calculating little person, and you do it, I think, to conceal another much nicer little person who is really you. One who is wildly in love with life, but who at times is greatly afraid that this life—if she lets it—may do something to her heart."

Turning on her elbow she watched him smilingly. "Wonderful man," she mocked. "So I'm really wearing a mask?"

He nodded. "And you change the mask so quickly I'm never quite sure whether you're a little irresponsible desert child with never a care under all that coppery hair—"

"Or what?" she challenged.

"Or a rather wistful, rather lonely princess, not very happy, perhaps, but lovely beyond all words, and like all princesses unattainable."

She rose and dusted the crumbs of lunch from her lap. "Well, there's no use expecting wisdom from a great big good-looking boy, is there? And in the meantime, if we're to get back before dark, we had better tighten these conches and start."

But once more she looked about her at the quietly running brook beneath them and the quietly sighing trees above. She raised both hands high above her head and breathed deeply the fragrant air. "Just the same," she murmured, "all he could be quiet and stately and full of grace like this, couldn't it?"
