Preparing For Draught Beer

STATE OFFICIAL EXPECTED TO GIVE KEG BREW O. K. BY THURSDAY

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 9. (UP)—Legalization of draught beer in Indiana within 24 hours was predicted here today as local retailers installed costly equipment for dispensing tap beer.

A bonafide "tip" that state officials would rule in favor of the draught beer, cutlaid under the present interpretation of the state control law, was claimed by local dealers.

Employees of some local beer establishments worked all night installing the draught beer equipment, in anticipation of favorable action some time today.

THE WEATHER

Local showers and thunderstorms probable tonight and Thursday; little change in temperature.

MARCHING TO PROSPERITY

Nothing can stop us now. Prosperity is dead ahead and we have gained enough momentum to carry us to it or well beyond. The only unknown quantity to be determined is the degree of national well-being before us.

Another reversal of trend is well nigh unthinkable. Recovery has attained that stage where it would take a greater shock to check its progress than is likely to occur. A blow to public confidence would not do it alone.

President Roosevelt, his aides, industry, business and agriculture have tackled the most formidable job man ever set for himself, but by their past and present performances and indomitable will they have proved themselves capable of finishing the job.

More than a million workers have returned to their jobs since March 4 and more millions are on their way. There were not empty words when General Johnson said he would put 6,000,000 persons back to work through the NRA campaign. Restored agriculture and the government's public works program will do the rest.

Already the country is feeling the effects of increasing employment. Steel production is fast approaching normal, automobiles are selling like hot cakes, building is picking up, and stores are reporting just enough gain in business to wipe out that stubborn margin between loss and profit which is evidence enough of added business impetus.

HEALTH TALK IS DELIVERED BY DR. RICE

LIVE SIMPLY IS PLEA MADE AT JOINT LUNCHEON
WEDNESDAY

GUEST OF ROTARY-KIWANIS

State Board of Health Official
Brought Here By Dr. Earl
Wiseman

One of the best joint meetings the Kiwanis club and the Rotary club has ever held, was the one at noon Wednesday when Dr. Thurman Rice of Indiana university school of medicine, was the speaker. He was brought here by Dr. Earl Wiseman, and spoke on the subject of the present day health program.

Dr. Rice spoke in plain terms and showed how people would live longer, be happy and contented under present economic conditions if they lived simply. He cited numerous cases where the hard times has brought people to their common senses and the use of common, plain, everyday foods and supplies. One of these he mentioned was tooth paste. He said one of the best tooth powders made and also cheap, was half soda and half common salt. He said it was good for the gums as well as palatable and a good antiseptic.

Another thing he discussed was the question of food. He said the more simple the food, the more healthful. He mentioned milk, plenty of pure water, raw vegetables, and plenty of rest.

Dr. Rice is of the opinion that most of the present day food specialists need being treated for their head, and he mentioned attending a meeting where the two or three speakers frightened every one of the 600 women present out of ever wanting a baby, or if they did have one, killing it by not feeding it properly. He said people are the only ones who eat cooked foods and that animals have plenty of vitamins, have good teeth, good health and are living their natural life, and that they are not highly educated in order to do it. He said it was all because they live as nature intended they should. They eat the proper things, and get them in their natural state. He asked "Does the cod-fish take cod-liver oil for its vitamins?"

Dr. Rice said the present day health program is a simple one if people will get that idea. He said the people need to stay at home more, entertain themselves instead of someone else, eat clean food, get plenty of sleep, play and work, and live simple, like nature intended that we should.

TO RECEIVE ELM STREET BIDS AUG. 22

NO REMONSTRANCE MADE BY PROPERTY OWNERS AT MEET-ING OF COUNCIL

OTHER MATTERS DISCUSSED

Street Commissioner Authorized To Clean Sludge Out Of City
Disposal Plant

Members of the city council in regular session Tuesday night moved to receive bids at their next meeting August 22, for the paving of Elm street, between Locust street and Maple avenue.

Although Tuesday night was the date fixed for the hearing of remonstrances against the proposed improvement no property owner appeared to object to the new pavement.

Council members authorized the street department to clean sludge out of the city disposal plant west of the city. Conditions were said to have grown worse recently at the plant and it was decided to clean out sludge in an effort to remedy the situation. If the removal of the sludge does not improve conditions it is probable the city will have to spend several thousand dollars in adding stone filter beds to the plant.

O. J. Rector was given permission to remove a barn at the corner of Franklin and Arlington streets from the James Bryan lot. Mr. Rector as administrator of the Bryan estate, stated he had sold the barn to J. E. McCurry.

A notice was read by city clerk Fred E. Snively from the public service commission notifying city officials that the petition of Frank E. Layne of Crawfordsville for permission to carry freight between Lafayette and Greencastle by ways of Ladoga, Roachdale and Bainbridge, had been dismissed.

Allowing of claims and discussion of various matters pertaining to city affairs completed the business of the meeting.

Quiet Prevails In Mining Area

NO FURTHER TROUBLE REPORT-ED AFTER GUARD FATALLY
WOUNDS PICKET

CLINTON, Ind., Aug. 9. (UP)—Quiet picketing at the Bunsen No. 4 mine, near Universal, where one man was shot fatally Monday, continued today but no additional violence was reported.

Ranks of the picketers had thinned perceptibly this morning when the full force of 150 men entered the mine.

Funeral service for Sam White, Universal, victim of shots fired by John Caveny, mine guard, were set for tomorrow afternoon.

Caveny remained in custody of Terre Haute police to whom he surrendered.

Sheriff Earl Smith of Vermillion county and Capt. Paul B. Harter of the Indiana National Guard visited the mine again today when employees reported for work. They expressed doubt that any further disturbance would occur.

Lone Bandit Robs Ohio Bank

ESCAPES WITH SEVERAL THOUS-AND DOLLARS AMID FUSIL-
LADE OF BULLETS

LIMA, O., Aug. 9. (UP)—A bandit held up the Farmers bank at Elida, near here, today and escaped with several thousand dollars amid a fusillade of shots.

The robber walked into the bank shortly after it opened and backed all employees into a corner. He scooped up all available cash and backed through the door to the street. He escaped in an automobile bearing Indiana license plates.

Several bank employees dashed to the door as the bandit drove away, and fired several shots at him as he raced down the street. Several citizens also fired at the bandit.

Sheriff Jess Sarber immediately took up the chase with a hastily formed posse. Although the bandit did not slow his machine, bank employees were certain they had wounded him, they said.

ARIZONA IS 21ST STATE FOR REPEAL

VOTE RETURNS PLACE SOUTH-
WESTERN STATE IN GROW-ING WET COLUMN

RATIO IS THREE TO ONE

Prohibition Repeal Forces Pile Up
Commanding Lead At Start
Of Balloting

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 9. (UP)—By a vote surpassing 3 to 1, Arizona became the 21st state to ratify the prohibition repeal amendment, returns showed today.

Aided by the absence of dry convention delegates on the ballot, wet forces mustered a vote of 37,635 against 10,639 for retention in United Press returns from 349 complete and 12 incomplete precincts out of 442 in the state.

Mrs. Isabelle Greenway, national Democratic committeewoman and a personal friend of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, easily captured the Democratic nomination to fill the congressional post vacated by Lewis Douglas when he was named director of the federal budget. The victory insured her election because of the absence of Republican opposition. Incomplete returns gave her a vote of 30,864 against 7,119 for Harlow Akers and 4,349 for William Coxon.

Repealists rolled up a commanding lead for the start. Santa Cruz county the first to complete a count, gave ratification a 10 to 1 lead. Maricopa county (Phoenix), the most populous in the state, cut into the repeal lead amassed in rural counties by showing unexpected dry strength. Nevertheless, the county voted 2 to 1 for repeal.

Dry voters who had failed to obtain enough signers to place delegates on the ballot wrote in their vote but failed to develop the strength conceded by wet leaders.

PROH AGENTS TRANSFERRED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (UP)—Nearly 2,700 employees of the bureau of prohibition will be transferred to the division of investigation of the department of justice under the consolidation plan of the department with the investigating activities of the justice department.

WHEAT MENTO HANDLE OWN LOCAL CONTROL

FARMER ORGANIZATION TO SUPERVISE INDIVIDUAL
ALLOTMENTS

ALL WILL SIGN CONTRACTS

County Association Of Growers Will Be Responsible For Local Administration

Farmers of Putnam county will themselves handle much of the local administration of the national wheat plan.

The farmers' own organization, to be known as the Putnam County Wheat Production Control Association, will supervise the individual allotments to growers. The Association will check farm production statements, determine individual averages and allotments, publish list of allotment applications, see that required acreage reductions are made, and certify all facts to the wheat section of the national Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Basic principles of the wheat plan, as it applies to America's 1,200,000 wheat farmers, have of course been determined by the national administration. In line with the announced policy of de-centralized control, however, the county associations of growers will be responsible for local administration. All determination of fact will be settled primarily by the county association itself.

The cost of this local administration, which will be kept at the lowest possible figure, will be borne by the participating wheat growers themselves, each contributing his pro rata share of the expense on the basis of the bushels in his own allotment.

The Putnam County Wheat Production Control Association will be composed of all farmers who sign contracts under the wheat plan. Each local community group will elect one director for the board of directors. The directors will then select a small executive committee to have direct charge of detailed administration.

Koessler Wins Morning Race

MINIATURE AUTO RACES HELD
WEDNESDAY. PUBLIC SQUARE
IS SPEEDWAY

Greencastle's public square was converted into a motor speedway Wednesday with miniature auto races being held during the morning and afternoon under the sponsorship of eleven local firms. The event attracted hundreds of youngsters as well as many adults who got a thrill out of watching the boys pilot the tiny cars over the pavement around the courthouse.

Johnny Koessler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koessler, was the winner of the first race, of three laps, at 10:30 a. m. in car No. 15. Jimmy Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Green, was second in racer No. 16. Russell Gostage was third in No. 13. Car No. 14 with Jimmy Miller at the wheel went out of the race on the first lap with engine trouble. A fifth car, it was announced, was to compete in the afternoon races at 2:00 and 4:30 o'clock.

O. W. Hollowell acted as official starter and apparently he got as much "kick" out of the proceedings as the boys driving the cars. Mr. Hollowell had red flags, green flags, white flags and the usual checkered flag that is waved for the winner.

The sponsors of the miniature auto races are as follows: Graiada Theater, J. C. Penney Co. Metzger Lumber Co. Sinclair Service Station. High Point Oil Co., Fleener's Drug Stores, L. & H. Chevrolet Sales, Hirt's Garage, S. C. Prevo Co., Murphy Co., and Home Oil Co.

Young Koessler driving the L. & H. entry in the 2 p. m. race won his second start of the day. The G. C. Murphy Special piloted by driver Hassler finished second.

U. S. ASKS RESIGNATION OF MACHADO

CUBAN PRESIDENT DETERMIN-ED TO RETAIN POST
DESPITE ODDS

HAVANA, Aug. 9. (UP)—General Gerardo Machado, fighting against overwhelming odds to retain his job as president, today sought by personal appeal and radio propaganda to rally the country against American interference with Cuba's life.

Announcing in a firmly worded public statement that he was and would continue to be president, he asserted that political troubles were being magnified because Cuba was a small country in which great foreign capital was invested.

Information from usually reliable sources, but unofficial, said American Ambassador Sumner Welles had demanded that Machado apply for a leave of absence by noon today on penalty of American intervention and that Machado, in refusing, had intimidated broadly American intervention would be opposed — if necessary by the army.

The reports of pistols, rifles and machine guns in street fighting and the dissemination of radio propaganda attacking Welles marked during the night the grave development of the crisis precipitated a week ago by a strike of omnibus drivers ostensibly against high taxes.

Presumably in revenge for the slaughter of Monday when police fired on crowds before the presidential palace killing 20, four policemen were murdered last night.

Three were shot from a moving motor car at the corner of Maceo park. Major Waldo Loayaz el Castillo, district inspector of police, who was standing with them, was seriously wounded.

A fourth policeman was killed near the university.

The government seized radio station CMAF and established a two block military zone around it.

Anti-Welles and anti-American propaganda was broadcast from several stations last night and was reported to emanate from government sources, though the government denied its own station was involved.

One unidentified broadcaster declared Welles was siding with members of opposition parties, appealed to Latin American nations for support, and urged Cut-Us to unite in aid of the army in event of foreign intervention.

Representatives of the Chamber of Deputies liberal parliamentary committee were understood to have approved a motion, introduced Monday, to declare Ambassador Welles persona non grata and to appeal to the United States government against his activities.

LIVELY TIME REPORTED AT LAKE RESORT

TEMPORARY TRUCE BY DEMO-CRATIC FACTIONS MEETING
AT LAKE WAWASEE

THREE ISSUES BEFORE GROUP

McNutt Refuses to Mention Controversial D. August Ever Issue,
Statement Expected Today

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., Aug. 9. (UP)—A temporary truce was observed by fighting factions of the state Democratic party today.

It was declared in a series of closed door conferences arranged by administration leaders during the two-day convention of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association here.

Three controversial subjects had split members of the party. They were candidates for United States senator and Democratic state chairman, and draught beer.

Discussion of none was permitted at a banquet which was the concluding featured highlight of the editors program.

The speakers included R. Earl Peters, whose desire to run for United States senator next year had divided the Democrats, Gov. Paul V. McNutt and Sen. Frederick VanNuys.

Peters showed his willingness to avoid further party conflict by warning that this was not the time for discussion of individual desires.

"Until the party fulfills its pledge to end the economic depression there should be no thought of personal aspirations," he said.

He was introduced by Wray Fleming, president of the association, as "our fighting state chairman."

Peters received a tremendous ovation from the 50 persons in attendance.

Governor McNutt made no mention of draught beer, a question which Lake and Allen county delegations had been hoping he would discuss. Dealers in both counties have been selling draught beer for two weeks in violation of the state law which permits the sale in bottles only. Democrats representing the two industrial sections wanted the governor last night to say whether or not his official sanction will be given to the sale of beer on tap.

McNutt planned to return to his office today and probably will state his position on the beer question from the statehouse.

McNutt told the editors that they had been the life blood of the party. He promised support of the administration to every act of President Roosevelt and drew rousing applause with the remark that "for the first time in history, the party in power was able to fulfill every one of its campaign pledges."

VanNuys outlined acts of the special session of congress and called President Roosevelt the "greatest peace time president the nation ever had."

He warned that America can expect little cooperation from abroad in solving its economic difficulties.

"America's problems must be solved by Americans," he said. "This calls for a united, unselfish and patriotic national spirit. We have learned that the interests of the small business man, the laborer, the industrialist and the farmer are so inextricably interwoven that there must be no bickerings or group jealousies among these component parts of our national strength."

VanNuys said the national administration had fulfilled all its campaign promises, including the legalization of beer. He predicted that the 18th amendment will be repealed in a short time.

"We as a nation should profit socially, morally and financially through repeal of the federal liquor laws," he concluded.

During the meeting names of at least five men were mentioned frequently as candidates for United States senator. They included Peters, Clarence E. Manion, Notre Dame law professor; Sherman Minton, public counselor of the Public Service Commission; Thomas D. Taggart, son of the former Democratic national committeeman and Frank Dailey, Bluffton.

Italian Armada Reaches Lisbon

ONE FLIER DIES OF INJURIES AFTER ACCIDENT IN AZORE ISLANDS

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 9, (UP)—Gen. Italo Balbo's air armada returned triumphant but in sorrow to Europe today after its historic flight to Chicago.

Pride in their achievement was mingled with mourning for the death of Lieut. Squaglia, reserve pilot on the seaplane I-Rani, who was fatally injured when the plane overturned today as the fleet was taking off from the Azores.

Gen. Balbo, in the van as usual, was the first to bring his plane down in the Tagus, anchoring at 10:40 a. m. EDT. He was followed immediately by 11 other planes.

The planes made a good flight from the Azores, despite fog off the Portuguese coast. Balbo, the first to take off, left Ponta del Gada at 8:30 a. m. EDT, making the flight of 900 miles to Lisbon in seven hours and ten minutes.

The mishap to the I-Rani was the second fatal disaster since the squadron left Orbetello, Italy, last month. On the landing at Amsterdam, the I-Dini overturned, killing its mechanic, Sergt. Quintavalle.

In the accident to the I-Rani, attributed by Gen. Balbo to "an error in maneuvering," Capt. Raineri, Sergt. Major Ciemaschi and Sergt. Boveri were slightly injured.

DR. SWALIN RECITAL

Several times during the present summer there has been occasion to refer to Dr. Benjamin Swalin, professor of music at DePauw university, who is a Minneapolitan by birth and a cosmopolitan in experience. Dr. Swalin has further qualifications that deserve recognition, for he is a violinist whom we delight to honor, a violinist who has sat at the feet of the greatest teachers and absorbed their learning.

This was made very clear recently when Dr. Swalin, before a number of our leading musicians, gave one of the most delightful recitals I have heard in this city for many years. He played a program that included a number of the most exacting compositions for violin.

Among these was the famous Bach Chaconne and the Adagio and Fugue from the fifth sonata, the latter a rarely heard composition. It was especially in these selections that the performer established his right to be regarded as a violinist of great ability.

These compositions were rendered with great nobility, with beautifully finished technique and with splendid appreciation of the qualities to which I have referred. For sheer intellectual it would be difficult to find any violinist capable of giving greater satisfaction.

In Ramona Gerhard Dr. Swalin found a kindred musical spirit, for her accompaniments to such exquisite music as the Chaconne, "Poems," and the Andante, from Mendelssohn's violin concerto, were as nearly perfect as the heart and mind of man could desire.

Nor were such dazzling technical compositions as the Paganini Caprice and a Viennese Waltz less effective in the spontaneity and brilliance of the technique employed. Dr. Swalin has complete mastery over all the impedimenta that makes the perfect stylist and technician. Double stops, a stunning use of the left hand, bowing that is both firm and sensitive are at his entire command. But after all it is as an interpreter of Bach that we give him the greatest credit, for in the scope and breadth of his musical conceptions he is entirely unusual. —Minneapolis Minn., Tribune.

"NEW TEMPER" IN STUDENTS

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Along with the "new deal" comes a "new temper" in college students.

Conditions of unemployment throughout the land have sobered the hi-de-ho collegians and improved their behavior asserts Joseph A. Park, dean of men at Ohio State university.

Even with business picking up everywhere, the rah-rah crowd is not celebrating prematurely, but is continuing to guard its nickles and dimes, along with its reputations, claims the dean.

"What ever happened to the smart-aleck we had to expel?" he wants to know.

Cases of minor disciplining "almost reached the vanishing point during the last year," according to his annual report.

Where as his office used to be cluttered up with Campus Joes accused of high crimes of immorality, last year three-fourths of the cases presented to him for solution concerned, either directly or indirectly, the personal financial difficulties of students.

The "new temper" is evident particularly in social lines.

"Dates without the expenditure of money have once more become popular," says Park. "The net result has been a better sense of relative social values."

Bridge Party and Crystal Shower at Roachdale

Mrs. Frank Barnes, Mrs. Roy Wilson, Miss Geraldine Smythe, and Miss Doris Helen Stroube delightfully entertained at the home of Miss Smythe with a bridge party and Crystal shower Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Herbert Jeffries, who was Miss Helen Chastain before her marriage, July 12th.

The house was artistically decorated with garden flowers and balloons on which was painted the Greek letters of Delta Delta Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha. Balloons were given for favors and a huge bunch hung from the ceiling in the dining room. The guest of honor was asked to burst these and in them she found notes telling her where the crystal was hidden.

Bridge was played at five tables. High scores were held by Mrs. Herbert Jeffries, Mrs. Myron Phillips and Miss Mary Hostetter.

At serving time the tables were decorated with bud vases filled with blue delphinium and pink snapdragons, and on the bride's table was placed a miniature bride and groom.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. Myron Phillips, Crawfordsville; Mrs. Ward Bartlett, Kentland; Mrs. Curtis Hostetter and Mrs. Jack Iams, Rockville; Miss Mary Hostetter, Indianapolis; Miss Roselyn Inge, Russellville and Mrs. Frantz Myers, Ladoga.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Shortly after her mother's death, Mary Kennedy, young and pretty stenographer decides to live her own life and avoid the poverty she has always known. She rents a small room and then seeks a position. Mary meets Buck Landers, elderly sports promoter, who proposes to her. She does not love Landers, but his wealth attracts her. Without waiting for Mary's decision, Landers presents her with a diamond ring. He threatens anyone who comes between them. Mary meets Landers' ward, Steve Moore, young college graduate. They are immediately attracted to one another. Landers leaves on a business trip and asks Steve to look after Mary. They dine and dance and are extremely happy until mention of Mary's engagement spreads a pall over their spirits. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers.

nothing without giving liberally in return. "Why did you engage yourself to Buck if you don't love him?" Steve's gray eyes were distressed. They had both forgotten that they were in a popular and somewhat noisy restaurant. The music and the dancing filled the place, yet they were unaware of either within their electric circle of self-interest. The interchange of magnetism, between them was suppressed and they both struggled against it, but it dissolved all formality; began seriously to threaten their ultimate reticence one with the other. To talk of her engagement to Steve brought something of the release of the confessional to Mary. It was easy now for her to pour out the whole story of her connection with Landers. It was a simple tale, devoid of discernible evil, but it was potent enough to snarl all of her emotions, to change the whole current of her life. Steve's face whitened a little when she told him of Landers' kisses and embraces.

"That's how it happened," she concluded. "You're the only soul I've told."

The pupils of Steve's eyes were a little dilated; there was an unfamiliar set about his mouth. "I'd like to tell you a lot of things, Mary," he hesitated. "Really... but, no, I've simply got no right to talk." He looked away from her.

She managed to smile. They were both becoming, she thought, a bit ridiculous.

"I'm sorry I bothered you with all my gloom," she said. "Shall we dance some more?"

He smiled, but there was more desperation than humor in the grimace.

"I don't care about dancing right now," he said.

"Honestly, this whole business has put my nerves on edge—and I want to get away from it, Steve. I want to... forget it..."

"You don't know what you're talking about!"

He was right. There was a strange new hunger in her heart, mingled with a vague unhappiness. At the moment there were no petty cautions, no inhibitions under guard. She looked straight at Steve; there was nothing about him to fear. With any other man it would have been different—vastly different. At most she merely contemplated now a joyous relief from her uncertainty about life, the acid drop of fear that was in her heart. And there was another element which she did not name even in her own mind—a swaying, a yearning of her heart towards Steve Moore. There was something about him...

"Oh, Steve, I feel so sunk to night—and I'm kind of happy, too," she said in a gust of honesty. "Tomorrow I'll be back in harness and worrying all by myself—but tonight it's wonderful to have you to talk to—"

Somehow he had grown stern. Yet, she sensed, he wasn't cold. There was a force within him, rigorously held under pressure.

"I'll tell you what you're going to do, Mary," he said levelly. "You're going straight home. Maybe you don't know it, but you're fooling with dynamite. We both are. And it might be a good idea for us not to see each other alone again until Buck Landers gets back. Do you know what I mean?"

She could feel a tide of color rising in her face, but Steve was wrong. He thought he was making a vast decision, but in her feminine heart she knew that it was all up to her...

With a start, Mary recognized that she, too, was a creature of Buck Landers' bounty. He was responsible for her position at the hotel at a much better salary than she could have earned elsewhere. She was living on the money that he had thus provided. He had given her a diamond ring worth a year's salary. Was that the secret of his success? Did he bind people to him this way, and then command their lives like a czar? But that was too harsh; he was generous; he took Mary was stirred with the acute realization that she had power over Steve Moore. She could tell it by the way he looked, by the tone of his voice. Oh, he adopted a masculine superiority, but every little feminine instinct, each as sensitive as an unseen dictaphone, told her that he had come under her spell. At first she hadn't realized it; she had been thinking of the exquisite poignancy of her own feelings. She was excited, her emotions were deliciously unstable. Never before had any man made her feel that way... It was like a rush of Springtime in the blood...

"I'm going to take you home right now," he repeated, with more conscience than purpose in his voice.

It was satisfying to sense—victory. It actually amounted to that. It was even pleasant to sense Steve's distress at her connection with Buck Landers. More, it gave her a small perverse pleasure to show a touch of coldness.

"Very well, let's go," she said. "I'm a little tired, anyway."

His reaction was almost audible. "It's all over—she's gone back into her shell!" he seemed to be thinking. "She sees that I fell too easy, and now she's tired."

He said aloud: "Yes, home's the best place for you. I've been talking too much. I'm sorry."

"Not at all," she said politely. But her momentary pretense of aloofness spent itself. She was over-taxed with feeling; her reserve forces were being consumed.

Steve Moore was afraid of something, and she shared his fear. A subtle fear, like a faint, rare poison. It was beginning to spread through them, stifling emotion, paralyzing passion. Moments of apprehension shot through with quivers of fugitive happiness—revolving sensations, conflicting around the heart.

In the taxi going home, it was Steve who isolated the reason of their disharmony and put it into words. He spoke almost with difficulty.

"Is it because you're afraid of Buck?"

A realization came to Mary like a sharp icicle of truth that Steve had dragged something from her subconscious self into the light. Deep down there had, from the beginning, been a buried sense of menace. Always, remotely, she had felt, with a tiny dread, the cold danger behind the unheated eyes of Buck Landers.

"Maybe you're right," she returned in a small voice.

"Things oughtn't be that way," Steve blurted.

Their depression grew—a piling up of balked impulses. Mary felt the invasion of vague, sinister thoughts. Was it really fear of Buck Landers that had risen and finally poisoned her evening with Steve?

"You're not happy and—just for your own sake—I'd like to help you," he said gently. "But it's a darn delicate situation for me—"

She nodded.

"Is it awfully hard for you to tell Buck the truth—that you don't want to marry him?"

She thought a moment, then answered, softly:

"Yes."

"I ought to be able to help you out of all this," he said deliberately. "I got into it alone," she returned. "I ought to be able to handle it myself without setting you against Mr. Landers."

CONVICTS RIVAL MUNCHAUSEN

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal. (UP)—Prison authorities claim the greatest prevaricators live in prison. San Quentin guards cite the following tales as examples:

"San Quentin has held a score of men whose imaginative talents, if turned to fiction, would have netted them fortunes instead of landing them in prison," said Warden Hoolahan.

Latest rival of Baron Munchausen, San Quentin guards believe, is Manuel Duke Ledbetter, artist and sculptor, serving a life term. He pointed proudly to the fifth horse in a picture of the huge memorial being carved on the sides of Stone Mountain, in Georgia.

"I wielded the chisel on that horse," Ledbetter solemnly averred. He acquired much renown among the prison's intelligentsia until Clinton Duffy, the warden's secretary, returned from a trip to Georgia with a photograph he took of the memorial. Only the first two horses are completed, the rest are merely outlined.

Genevieve Paddleford, oft-married adventuress, who has served two terms at San Quentin, aroused the envy of fellow prisoners with stories of her rich and noble relatives in Europe and the banks filled with money awaiting her release. Paroled recently, she was almost immediately returned to prison when her checks began to come back marked "no funds."

OLD THREAD STILL STRONG

MCCRORY, Ark., (UP)—Mrs. Alice Torrence has some silk thread spun in 1871 by her grandmother. The thread is still so strong it can hardly be broken.

Hen Mathematically Minded
RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., (UP)—A mathematical minded hen here laid an egg with an almost perfectly formed numeral 6 or 9 a half inch long and raised 1-10 inch.

Behind The Scenes In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—In a new picture, "Broadway and Back," Barbara Stanwyck will top all the other stars who have portrayed roles requiring them to advance from youth to the declining years.

She will appear first as a young girl, next as the mother of Ann Dvorak and finally as the grand mother of Patricia Ellis.

To accomplish this evolution, the Warner Brothers makeup experts will have to achieve even greater miracles than won acclaim when Irene Dunne grew old in "Cimarron," when Norma Shearer lived through the years in "Strange Interlude" and when Mary Pickford became a gentle old lady in "Secrets."

Barbara's three generations story is told against the background of the theatre. In it, the heroine, disappointed in her own career, tries to guide her daughter to footlight success. But the daughter rebels against becoming an actress. It isn't until the third generation that the aging heroine sees her ambitions satisfied.

Sheridan Gibney wrote "Broadway and Back" and Warners plan to give it an early production.

For amusing wedding announcements, Alan Dinehart would award the prize to a friend of his who took the vows in New York one day recently at high noon.

At 12.05, the bridegroom telegraphed Dinehart ecstatically: "And they say marriages don't last."

Hollywood Parade

Last news from Europe is that Douglas Fairbanks may make a picture over there. When Mary and Doug eventually get around to the divorce, there will be very little community property to be divided. Their interest in the United Artists studio and some real estate on Wilshire Boulevard about sums it up.

Despite all rumors to the contrary Benita Hume insists she will leave here between the 12th and the 14th for London and marriage to Jack Dunfee, owner of a commercial printing house and well known British sportsman.

After 15 months of preparation, Anna Elen starts her picture, "Nana" on Monday. The Russian actress insists in eating her big meal in the middle of the day, so Producer Goldwyn has agreed to a two-hour lay-off at noon. To the disappointment of some of the film hosts, Wynne has turned out to be a male larbo as far as social life is concerned. The comedian spends the day in his hotel room, emerging at night for a long walk. And the Four Marx Brothers, believe it or not, have tea served on their set every afternoon at four.

Up in Seattle, they're breaking house records following the world premiere of Marie Dressler and Wallace Berry in "Tugboat Annie." This even it the lease of the Normar Riley Raine stories on which the picture is based. Three women tugboat owners up there claim to be the original of the heroine. Actually, she was a character in Providence, R. I.

Alice Brady is starting an autobiography in her Beverly Hills home. Visiting celebrities are asked to write their names on it. It was Marie Prevost who introduced the fad in Hollywood years ago. The new home planned by Theda Bara and Charles Brabin will be modeled after an old world castle.

You'll Like To Know, Too—

That Jack Pearl (Baron Munchausen) appeared with Marie Dressler in the last show she did on the New York stage.

STREET LIGHTS SHUT OFF

ATLANTA, Ind., (UP)—Electric lights which illuminated Atlanta's streets at night for the past quarter of a century have been discontinued by the town board as an economy measure.

FARMERS UNIONS TO BE FORMED IN ELEVEN COUNTIES

FRANKFORT, Ind., Aug. 8.—Farmers from Newton, Jasper, Tippecanoe, Montgomery, Carroll, White, Clinton, Boone, Fountain, Sullivan, and Allen counties expressed their intentions, at a meeting held here, of forming farmers unions in each of their counties.

These unions will be run entirely by the farmers in each county, it was said, but will work together in a common campaign to reduce the expenses of farming. Six of the counties have already begun to organize, and have already asked the officers of the Farmer's Union of Benton and Warren counties to assist them. All the counties will send visiting delegations to the next meeting of the Benton-Warren organization, which is holding a reception for all farmers from other counties interested in founding their own unions.

The meeting here was addressed by the president of the Benton-Warren union, Robert Catherwood. He said that the union contained no "farmers' friends," but was composed entirely of dirt farmers, had no salaries, assessments or dues but passed the hat, and was intended for the sole purpose of making farming pay. It decides all matters of policy by a vote, he said, and all members are pledged to obey their own common will.

"Farmers today must hang together or hang separately," he continued. "It is no time for men who talk but will not act, for men who let George do it. Farmers must stand shoulder to shoulder for their own good, having first determined for themselves what that good is. We must unite."

"We of Benton and Warren counties will help any fifty farmers in another county to organize their own union, if they want one. We believe that other counties should have unions for their own benefit, and because many are stronger than one."

"We do not care whether your unions agree with us or not in what you want to do. We claim to be just as wise and just as stupid as any other county. Perhaps you like the present tax system, though we do not. Perhaps there are certain cases where you would allow foreclosures, though we do not. You may like cement roads at $45,000 a mile, and like to have a county agent. We do not care.

"But for this we do care. That you should organize, stand together, decide what you want and get it."

The next meeting of the entire union to which all farmers from the eleven counties are invited, will be held at Fletcher Springs, half a mile east of route 41 on route 26, at 2 p. m. Sunday, August 13.

MAYOR DALE OF MUNCIE TO PETITION FOR REHEARING

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 9. (UP)—Mayor George R. Dale and Police Chief Frank Massey will continue to fight their federal court conviction on liquor conspiracy charges, affirmed yesterday by the U. S. circuit court of appeals at Chicago.

Their attorney W. A. McClellan, said today he will petition the Chicago court for a rehearing. If that fails, the U. S. supreme court will be asked to review the case, he said.

Dale was attending the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association convention at Lake Wawasee when he learned of the appeal court's action yesterday. Massey was in Chicago and returned here last night. Both were sentenced to 19 months in the Leavenworth (Kans.) penitentiary and fined $1,000.

Fred Ellis, member of the city safety board, and four policemen, convicted with Dale and Massey, are awaiting official notification of the new trial ordered for them by the appellate court. The policemen are Dan Davis, Kenneth Horstman, Harry Nelson and Ray Powell.

OCTOPUS BATTLE NEARLY FATAL TO ADVENTURER

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., (UP)—Back from a two-year isolation in far away jungle lands and remote sections of the globe, Lincoln Hinrichs is writing a book on his experiences.

Hinrichs, who claims to have walked more than the distance around the globe, often has gone into jungle sections, armed only with a penknife and a club. His battle with an octopus along the shore of Tropical Island in the South Seas, was his most thrilling experience.

"I was wading waist deep in the water when the octopus wrapped itself about my right foot," Hinrichs said. "It looked like a losing battle as I gradually moved with the fighting burden toward the shore."

"Finally, I found I could withstand the pull without the use of the pole I carried, so I used it to prod the devilish. The water became jet black from the inky substance it emitted."

"When I had about decided to try jabbing the arm where it held my leg, I must have touched that spot natives know, for up came a writing tentacle. It is said a nerve center can be hit by those who know the spot, that will release all tentacles at once. The arm that broke water was eight or nine feet in length."

"Again and again I jabbed at that body. Once more the water broke, and two tentacles came up. I jabbed desperately and presently my pole was caught, but my foot was released."
