

MUST APPLY TO TERRE HAUTE
OFFICE FOR HOME LOANS

It was announced here Saturday that numerous applications for government home loans have been made by residents of Greencastle but that very few have been applied for by persons residing in the smaller towns in Putnam county.

Residents of the smaller communities are just as eligible as residents of Greencastle, it was said, and can make their applications by writing the Home Owners' Loan Corporation at Terre Haute and asking for blanks.

These government home loans are being made to distressed property owners who cannot secure relief otherwise.

Washington Senators Have Backs

Glimmering

CLARK GRIFFITH STADIUM, Washington, Oct. 7.—The young man who sounded the Giants' famous war cry—"They cannot beat us"—proved it yesterday afternoon in one of the most thrilling world series games played in years.

John Collins (Blondy) Ryan, the fair-haired boy shortstop of the National league champions, came through in the eleventh inning with the base hit that scored the winning run and then saved the game by starting a double play that ended the last desperate rally of the Senators with the bases full.

In a flash that had the hearts of one and all, including 27,762 cash customers, beating wildly with excitement and suspense, Carl Owen Hubbell pulled out his second conquest of the American league champions by the thin margin of 2 to 1 after a sensational duel with Monte Weaver, youthful right-hander of the Senators.

It was the third triumph for the Giants in four brilliantly-pitched ball games, by far the most dramatic of anything that has happened so far, and puts this amazing New York team within one game of its goal—a world championship that seemed like a "pipe dream" to their followers only a few months ago.

But for an error by the great Hubbell himself in the seventh inning when he jugged Joe Kuhel's easy line and paved the way for the tying score, the master of the "screw ball" would have scored a 1-0 shutout in the regulation nine innings, thanks to a terrific home run drive by Manager Bill Terry into the cone-like centerfield bleachers in the fourth frame.

As a result of this deadlocked situation, the two pitchers and the two teams fought in spectacular fashion for the edge. Four times the Senators failed to score off Hubbell or break through the Giants' defense, with runners on third base, in a furious struggle marked by the ejection of Heinie Manush, slugging left fielder, from the game after the sixth inning for a row with Umpire Charles Moran of the National league on a close decision at first base.

TWO HEADED RED ANT FOUND

SNYDER, Tex. (UPI)—Joe Weldon Hart, farmer, found a two-headed red ant on his premises and bemoaned the fact the insect was too small for sale to a circus or show. The two heads moved freely as the insect crawled.

Weyburn McMains, who represented the Ridpath Junior Red Cross at the State Convention in Indianapolis last week, gave a splendid report of her trip in all the rooms this week.

The Sixth Grade Social Studies class at Third Ward has decided to make a "Time Line" which, when finished, will tell the story of the most important events in the World from the very beginning of recorded history down to the present time.

The Ridpath school had their first Fire drill of the year this week in which the 278 children left the building in splendid order.

The mothers and teachers of the Second grade of the M. J. Ridpath school met at the home of Mrs. Wayne Mark, Wednesday evening at 7:30. A lovely entertainment, of Hallowe'en games and contests, was enjoyed by all present.

Refreshments of cider and cakes were served by the hostess.

A chapel exercise sponsored by the sixth grade, was held in the Jones school auditorium Thursday morning. The program consisted of Riley readings, songs, and a report of the State Junior Red Cross Convention.

Miss Pitchford told the first grade children to invite their mothers to the P. T. A. Meeting Friday afternoon. She explained that the room with the largest number of mothers present would win the banner. Whereupon one little girl home and said, "Mother, you must be sure to go to our P. T. A. meeting Friday, because we want the First Grade room to win the "News-paper."

Mrs. Runyan's room had a chipmunk as part of their nature study exhibit. They were very much disappointed one morning when they found that he had escaped! Since then he has visited the second and sixth grades and at present is hiding in the wood pile in the basement.

All the children in the Jones School had their teeth examined this week by Dr. Troop. 44% of the children's teeth were found to be in splendid condition. The school appreciates very much this service which is given yearly by Dr. Troop. Much improvement has been made in the care of the teeth since this custom has been established in the school.

Betty Ruth Oxnam reviewed her trip of the past summer to Egypt, where she visited the pyramids and Sphinx, before the fifth and sixth grades of Second Ward. The children are now working Egypt, and enjoyed the report given by Betty.

Children of Miss Snider's room gave a very interesting play covering health habits before the entire group Friday morning.

Anna Louise Moore representative of Second Ward to the Junior Red Cross meeting at Indianapolis last week gave a splendid report Friday morning to the children telling of the various lines of work children are doing all over the world in service to others.

"MACHINE GUN" KELLY AND GEORGE BOTH TO PLEAD GUILTY

LAHOMA CITY, Oct. 7.—District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde announced last night that Kathryn would plead guilty along with her husband, George "Machine Gun" Kelly, today, thus disposing of the principals indicted for the killing of George F. Urschel, oil millionaire, last July 22.

An announcement followed a series of conferences with Mrs. Kelly in county jail late yesterday and after James H. Mathews, attorney for Kelly, had said the machine gunner would plead guilty in an effort to save his wife from punishment.

NOTICE OF INSOLVENCY

The matter of the estate of L. Randel, deceased, in the Circuit Court. No. 7310. Notice is hereby given that upon filing in said court by the creditor of said estate, setting up insufficiency of the estate of decedent to pay the debts and credits thereof, the Judge of said court, on the 28th day of September, 1933, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and ordered the same settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore hereby notified of such insolvency and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance. Witness, the Clerk and seal of said court at Greencastle, Indiana, this 28th day of September, 1933. John W. Herod, Clerk. 29-2t.

Judge Edgar S. Vaught today for sentencing. Among them is Mrs. Kelly's mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon. Motions for new trials and arrest of judgment filed in behalf of the seven were overruled by Judge Vaught Friday.

The Kellys pleading guilty would stand before the bar today to receive their sentences with Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon and Shannon's son Armon on whose Paradise, Tex., farm Urschel was held captive last July; Harvey Bailey, alleged "brains" of gang; Albert Bates, Edward "Barney" Berman and Clifford Skelly.

MOVIES

AT THE GRANADA

Guy Kibbee was somewhat startled when Director Mervyn LeRoy ordered him to take Aline MacMahon in his arms and whisk her around to the strains of a lively dance for a night club scene in "Gold Diggers of 1933," the Warner Bros. musical and dramatic spectacle at the Granada Theatre Sunday.

"But I don't know how to dance," he exclaimed with a note of pathos in his voice. "If I've got to do anything like that, you'll have to hold up the production while I take a few dancing lessons!"

"That's all right, Guy," said Mervyn. "We won't have to hold up the picture and you won't have to take any lessons. You're not supposed to know how to dance. You're an ultra-conservative Boston lawyer, who has never been in a night club in his life. Especially as you're supposed to be a bit light-headed with champagne."

The portly Kibbee then demonstrated how much he didn't know about dancing by putting on a hilarious impersonation of a slightly inebriated gentleman on a crowded night-club floor.

"Gold Diggers of 1933," carries an all-star cast including Warren William, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Ginger Rogers and Ned Sparks.

INCOME TAX LAW ATTACKED BY HAMMOND BUSINESS MEN

GARY, Ind., Oct. 7.—A suit attacking the constitutionality of the Indiana gross income tax law enacted by the last legislature was filed today in the court of Judge C. B. Ridgely on behalf of ten Hammond business men and corporations.

The suit contends the law should be invalidated because it taxes unequally various classes of citizens and sets up arbitrary measurements for determining gross incomes and because it provides payment of the tax must be a condition precedent to the taxpayers right to continue in business and imposes a penalty which is "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonsensible" and is not proportioned to the nature of the offense.

The argument also was presented that the tax law violates the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution because it exacts unequal taxes and rates as between citizens and classes of citizens and provides arbitrary and unequal measurements for determining the gross income upon which such tax rates are applicable.

Defendants cited in the suit are Governor Paul V. McNutt, William Storrs and Auditor Floyd Williamson, who comprise the department of treasury of the state; Attorney General Phillip Lutz, Jr., and Lake County Prosecutor, Robert Estill.

If you are among the numerous home owners that have a poor stand of grass in your lawn, now is the time to start work. Fall seedings of grass are more likely to be successful than spring seedings. Purchase blue grass and red top of high quality sufficient to sow 1 to 2 pounds of the seed per 1000 square feet of lawn surface. The mixture should be made up of 2 parts Kentucky blue grass and one part red top. For new lawns the amount of seed necessary will range from 3 to 5 pounds per 1000 square feet of lawn.

Be sure that the wheat you are going to sow is free from weed seeds. Cockle, cheat, wild garlic and mustard are often spread over the farm by using unclean seed.

Hog Cholera
Warning Issued

SEVERAL OUTBREAKS HAVE OCCURRED IN PUTNAM COUNTY THIS FALL

Following several outbreaks of hog cholera in Putnam county this fall, farmers are warned to use every precaution to prevent further outbreaks and spread of the disease, in a statement issued Saturday by E. W. Baker, county agent.

"Conditions are favorable this fall for an outbreak of cholera," said Baker. "Only a small percentage of the pigs have been immunized and weather conditions have resulted in a feed shortage on many farms and in certain sections, and the movement of young pigs to farms or sections where they can be fattened and marketed, is very apt to be increased."

Baker pointed out that traffic in well hogs does not distribute cholera virus, providing the hogs are protected against exposure in sale barns and stock yards, by vaccination. If the well hogs of a sick herd are sold, the infected hogs will later sicken and die of cholera, and many stockmen have experienced heavy losses in feeder hogs that sickened a few days after they were purchased, Baker stated.

"Sick hogs should not be marketed," he said. "The well hogs in a herd of sick ones may be sold for immediate slaughter only, and not for resale to some one else. In every neighborhood farmers should take precautions against the spread of cholera. Disease in young hogs should be diagnosed as early as possible by a veterinarian, the necessary treatment given, and if it is infectious, measures should be taken at once to prevent its spread to other herds."

HAYS RESOLUTION READ

(Continued from Page One) fearless in his views and criticisms, and perhaps at times it would appear that he stood by his convictions although he stood alone, and upheld what he thought to be true, though it be unpopular and would mean a personal loss to him.

Some of the able lawyers and journalists with whom he has fought many a fierce legal battle and who could have given a fit and proper tribute to him as a lawyer, have long since passed on, such as John E. Lamb, Ben Crane, Duncan Puit, James Johnson, George Knight and Delaney Williamson.

Hays may have had equals as a lawyer in Indiana, but no superior.

"It was about 37 years ago when he prosecuted and sent to the gallows the murderers of Pearl Bryan. He continued his vim and vigor to the last day of his living and spent the last hour with his Sigma Chi college fraternity brothers, and stepped out of life across that line which separates the known from the unknown, with as much composure, propriety, and serenity as if he was entering a law suit.

"We deeply regret his passing because it is such personages as Silas A. Hays in our profession that makes us proud of the profession. Mr. Hays gave unstintingly with untiring effort, even to a ripe old age, the best that was in him to the best that was in his profession and community. He had an abiding faith to the end, that truth would survive, and that truth and truth alone is eternal, and now in return for the fruits of a life well spent, this community and surrounding communities join in petition and supplication to that higher court, to which he has turned his face, that all is well, and that peace be with him."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — Dame Rumor appears to have erred again in reporting discord between Jeanette Mac and Ramon Navarro over the filming of "The Cat and the Fiddle." The two are singing in such close harmony that they plan a joint European concert tour with Jeanette's fiance, Bob Richie, handling the business end for both.

September has been set as the tentative starting date for the tour which will include visits to Paris, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain and England. As a climax, the two stars plan to give programs in several of the large American cities.

Before then, probably right after he finishes "Laughing Boy" Ramon plans to troubadour through his native Mexico, which he has not visited for a number of years.

Incidentally, the star's reported romance with Myrna Loy seems to be quite cold.

For humorous descriptions, I like

Eck Wynn's: "The man was so fat you couldn't tell whether they were his own legs or whether he was breaking them for a duck."

When Paramount chose Charlotte Henry to play "Alice in Wonderland," hundreds of girls sighed and reluctantly tried to forget.

Not so with Sue Kellogg. This young English actress, who was one of the first 12 tested for the role, came to Paramount and made the unusual request to be allowed to stand in for her successful rival.

She got the job and now dressed in Alice costumes, she steps up and lets the crew test the lights on her. When the camera is ready to grind she steps down and Charlotte Henry takes her place.

Here's a tip. Don't ever send your film favorite edible gifts, because not one in a hundred touches any food they receive in the mails. Ninety-nine per cent of it might be all right, but one per cent might be from some crank.

Dorothy Reid and Gordon Westcott aren't talking much, but they had a startling experience the other night when they were returning from a late bridge party and almost ran over a man lying in the road. Fearing a hold-up they drove by, but turned around and came back. The prostrate one turned out to have had a drop too much and imagine their surprise when they recognized him as an actor of their acquaintance.

Today's puzzle: What young M. G. M. Star has figured out a way to crash the forbidden Garbo set at will, and regularly watches the Swedish star from a vantage point she never suspects?

SYNOPSIS

Young and ambitious Ted Wynne realizes he cannot ask the wealthy Barb Roth to marry a mill hand, so he leaves his position in the Bellport steel mill and works his way through Old Dominion college. He shows promise in football and Barney Mack, the coach, takes an interest in him. Tom Stone, star player and Ted's rival for Barb's affections, is antagonistic towards him. Ted, however, is admired by the other students. During vacation he toils in the mill to earn his tuition and prepare for the fall football season. Barb breaks an appointment with Ted and goes with Tom to a dance. Ted takes Rosalie Downs, whom Barb dislikes. Ted plans to show Barb he, too, can be independent, and at a week-end party ignores her. Late at night, the boys, at Tom's suggestion, rush into the girls' rooms and take them, pajama-clad, down to the water. Ted does not join in the fun, but when Tom comes along with Barb in his arms, apparently enjoying it and calling to Ted to save her, he takes her from Tom and drops her in the water. Furious, she slaps him. Tom tries to start an argument, but Ted calls him a snob and leaves, with Barb watching from a window. In the fall, Old Dominion wins all its games and Mack is pleased with Ted's playing. Ted becomes wealthy Jimmy Pidgeon's room-mate. Pidgeon pays expenses in return for Ted's help in his studies. Ted asks Rosalie to a game. He is annoyed when she speaks of aptly fellow and she calls him a prude.

CHAPTER XII
"What do you mean—prude?"
"I mean, you are always putting a woman on a pedestal like a plaster saint—something to look at; something to smile back at you like a mirror; something to flatter you."

"You forgot one thing," Ted told him. "You ought to get New York on this."

"By Jiminy—you're right."

"There's a fellow that's a personal friend of Al Smith—that one there with the little round hat and the leather jacket—laughing."

"Thanks, brother—we got to get Al in on this."

Corner conversation:

"Gonna vote—or are you old enough?"

"Say—I voted for Cleveland."

"A few of us boys got together and put Washington in."

"I organized the Indians and put Columbus over."

"I carried Rome for Cincinnati—and that's bigger than Columbus."

"You win."

"We'll drink on that."

They drank; then—

"Now I'll ask you one: Who was Cato?"

"He played first base on the Pirates."

"No—listen."

Ted listened in on the sad story of Cato: drunks were unbelievably silly but diverting—and his mind needed diversion.

Cato was an old Roman in the days when the Carthage gang was the big rival of the boys from the Tiber. The Neros knocked off the Africans so often that they dropped them from the schedule and went out looking for somebody who could fill the Amphitheatre.

Rosale was required to be back at Weyrick at midnight. Ted hired a U-Drive-It and drove her there, down the moonlit road; through the quiet avenue of trees; up to the college building, like a great hotel in the country, where the old night watchman waited to unlock the door and sign her in.

"Thanks for asking me, Ted."

"Nobody dances like you, Rosalie."

"Not even the wonder girl?"

He shifted gears. She said softly:

"And Ted—you're the nicest little boy I know."

He drove back to town slowly, subdued at the night.

Football was mostly strategy and condition; the mill was condition; studies were concentration.

Women were hell.

At the hotel the victorious alumni had just begun to fight. One of them stood on the mezzanine and orated to those in the lobby who were not making speeches of their own:

"DON'T forget about the picnic tomorrow afternoon at the park; and DON'T forget to bring the peanut butter sandwiches. The governor will be there for you to shake hands with and I'm going to the races so YOU and YOU and YOU can win. DON'T forget to be there in time for the flag raising and the baby parade."

A friendly stranger bore down upon Ted.

"Williams is my name, brother, shake. What state are you from, brother? Ohio? Good. We just need somebody from Ohio. Come over here where we can be private. Confidential stuff, see?"

Ted followed him to the corner. The brother looked about to insure privacy, then spoke quietly into Ted's ear:

"It's this way, brother. We don't want another war, do we? That's settled. We don't want the North and South to fight any more. Okay. It's this way: Jimmie's from Missouri, Pete's from Kentucky, Jack's from Pennsylvania, I'm from Minnesota—and you're from Ohio. All right; Jimmie's gonna see the governor of Missouri, Pete's gonna see the governor of Kentucky, Jack's gonna see the governor of Pennsylvania and I'll buzz the governor of Minnesota—great pal of mine. Now all you got to do is see the governor of Ohio. Then we'll drink to Lee and Grant and Sherman and Davis and Lincoln and everything'll be all right—we'll have this thing arranged. I call it a good evening's work."

"You forgot one thing," Ted told him. "You ought to get New York on this."

"By Jiminy—you're right."

"There's a fellow that's a personal friend of Al Smith—that one there with the little round hat and the leather jacket—laughing."

They got tired of hearing him and to keep his trap shut scheduled the Africans again and knocked them off. Hannibal made all-European that day but, unfortunately, he also thought that Carthage should be destroyed.

Good old Stone.

"You're a bar—you don't like it," Pidge.

"Yeah? I always told you what kind of guts he had."

He's stalling because he missed the tackle.
