RITES ON TUESDAY

Always Made Her Home In Putnam County; Was Very Well Known Resident

Mrs. Fannie Crow Farrow, who, through a long period of her life, was one of the best known women of Putnam county, died at 10 o'clock Saturday night at the age of 76 years. She was a native of Putnam county and her home was within its borders through all of her life. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Crow, early-comers to the county. Their homestead was a few miles northeast of Greencastle, and through the girlhood and the young womanhood of the seven daughters, it was the center of much of the hospitality which in older days was so evident in the homes of the county.

Mrs. Farrow attended the district school of her neighborhood and was a student in the old DePauw Academy in which she enrolled in 1885, a school which also was attended by most of her brothers and sisters. There were seven daughters and three sons in the family. They were Mrs. Sallie Westover, Mrs. Jessie Hamilton, Mrs. Matilda Lemon, Mrs. Lucy Hunnicutt, Mrs. Porter Dohy, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton and Mrs. Farrow; and Hanson Crow; Edward Crow, Jr., and Robert Crow. Of all of these, Mrs. Hamilton, now residing with her son, Edward C. Hamilton in Greencastle, was the oldest and is now the sole survivor of the ten children.

Mrs. Farrow remained with her parents through their lives, caring for them with the assistance of the other children, but some years after their deaths she became the wife of James Farrow, in 1916. His death occurred several years ago. She was a member of the Gobi Memorial Methodist church in Greencastle. Services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Rector funeral home on east Washington street, and interment will be in the Forest Hill cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home. Dr. Demetrius Tillotson will have charge of the services.

FROM PASTURE"

Jim Poole, well known radio commentator and dean of livestock reports, will appear on the "Profit From Pasture" program, Friday, February 20th, at the Gobi Memorial Methodist church. This program is sponsored by the Central National Bank of Greencastle.

One of the highlights of Jim Poole's broadcast is his amazing vocabulary—one of the wonders of radio. Mr. Poole entertains as he informs and is well adapted to talk to any group as he was first in business, after a varied career as farmer, chore boy, reporter and editor. The program will also include C. M. Long of Lafayette, who conducts a modern soil conservation service. The talk of Mr. Long is anticipated by the farmers who will attend in view of Mr. Long's experience and the good advice he will offer.

The Central National Bank has requested all who can be their guests at noon lunch to notify them in advance.

AUDITOR'S BIG TASK

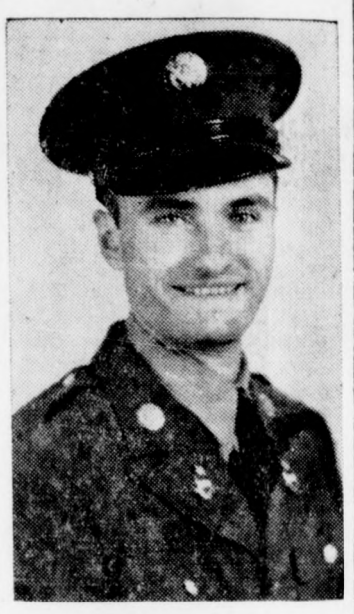

In the office of Eddie Buis, county auditor, the present big task is the completion of the assessors' books, which will go into service March 1. There are fourteen of these books, although there are but thirteen townships. The fourteenth is for use solely in Greencastle city.

These books describe all property owners in the respective townships, both real estate and personal property. They are brought up to date as of March 1, and form the basis of the assessments of the county's property.

DEFENDERS AWAIT ATTACK

American Commander In Bataan Reports Arrival Of Fresh Invading Jap Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(UP)—Aided by heavy artillery fire and aerial attacks, Japanese infantry is slashing at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Bataan peninsula defense lines at several points, a communique said today in describing what may be the prelude of the enemy's big offensive.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(UP)—The position of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's valiant heroes was made immeasurably more dangerous today by the fall of Singapore and an all-out Japanese offensive to drive them off Luzon island may start at any moment.

Japanese strategists who have been concentrating on Singapore in recent days, now will have men available to shift to the Philippine theater for an all-out offensive against the defending American and Filipino forces.

Week-end war department communiques already had reported that the Japanese were moving up fresh troops.

Sixteen days ago the Japanese commander in the Philippines, Lieut. Gen. Masarahu Homma, believing he had MacArthur's valiant forces at his mercy, delivered an ultimatum demanding their surrender. Otherwise, he said, they would face "inevitable disaster" under the blows of an all-out Japanese offensive.

But since the ultimatum the men of MacArthur have held the enemy at a virtual standstill.

MacArthur has held out on Bataan peninsula now for 33 days, compared with the Japanese one-week siege of Singapore, and still has not fallen back upon his own "Singapore"—the fortress of Corregidor off the tip of Bataan in Manila Bay.

In the battling of the last five weeks he appears to have held the Japanese to an advance of about 15 miles southward of the Olongapo-Hermosa line to which his men fell back on Jan. 9 after the fall of Manila.

A war department communique Sunday said that fighting along the Bataan battlefield had been "limited to local, unimportant patrol skirmishes" with the Japanese evidently feeling out MacArthur's lines in an effort to find a soft spot or a springboard for their offensive.

"Forces of the enemy evidently are being regrouped for a resumption of the offensive," the communique said.

"Japanese units on the front line which had suffered heavy casualties are being relieved by fresh troops."

Increasing discontent behind the Japanese lines including sabotage and fearless hostility on the part of the Filipinos—in defiance of Gen. Homma's threats of wholesale executions—was said in the communique to be piling up more troubles for the invaders.

INGENIOUS TRANSPORTATION
USED SATURDAY EVENING

Saturday evening was a big time on the DePauw campus. It was the one evening the girls made their own dates and gave their own "Goldiggers" ball. The girls, or many of them, took their dates to dinner and it was on this event that some unusual modes of transportation were used. One young man from the Phi Delta house rode in the McCurry ambulance. He did not even have to walk to this ambulance, as he was wheeled out by his girl on a stretcher, and went sailing away with the sirens sounding. Others rented a one horse-shay and with driver behind, took their men friends for a ride. Other girls were content to walk their dates to dinner and to the ball afterwards, but according to all information, they had a fine evening.

CONDITION IMPROVES

E. R. Bartley, south Indiana street, was reported slightly improved at the Putnam county hospital Monday.

CLASS IN FIRST AID COMPLETED RECORD-BREAKING SESSION FRIDAY

Putnam county's record breaking class for the training of instructors to teach Red Cross First Aid, held its concluding session Friday, February 13th. The feminine members have gone back to the wearing of skirts after having practically lived in slacks for a two weeks' period. Knees that had become somewhat the worse for wear in the artificial respiration practice, now will have an opportunity to become whole again.

As a result of the very capable teaching by Thomas Costello, field representative from the eastern area of American Red Cross, sixty-one persons were made more hazard-conscious than they had ever been before in their lives. One member of the class was heard to remark that she wondered how she had managed to live as long as she had, considering her sublime ignorance, up to now, in matters of accident prevention and intelligent first aid measures.

Friday evening's class marked the termination of thirty hours concentrated work, but in spite of the time and study that were required, every member of the class felt he had been several times repaid for the effort he had expended. In spite of class discussions that concerned lacerations, amputations, concussions and apoplexy, Mr. Costello dealt with all of the subject matter in such a way that morbidity had no part in the course. More than one person was heard to say, as he left Bowman gym, his certificate in hand, that he'd had so much fun he was sorry the classes were over.

Miss Judy Kinder, DePauw student, and Miss Catherine Riggs, member of the physical education staff in the college, were repeating the course and were awarded renewal certificates. Mrs. Elsie Davidson of Crawfordsville, and Mrs. Mary Demuth of Plainfield, had driven from their respective towns for each evening of class work and were awarded Teacher's certificates.

Putnam county persons who were granted certificates for teaching the Junior, Standard and Advanced Course in First Aid were the following: Mrs. Walker Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baldwin, Mrs. Marvin Bell (Bainbridge), Mrs. Kenneth Bryan, Mrs. John Cartwright, Miss Wilma Jean Chambers, Mrs. Guy Collings (Bainbridge), Lewis Cowgill, Mrs. Cecil Cooper (Putnamville), Miss Leah Curmutt, Mrs. Frank Deer, Mrs. Kathryn Dettlorf (Continued on Page Three)

NIPPON INVADING FORCES ONLY 270 MILES NORTHWEST OF BATAVIA

BATAVIA, Feb. 16 (UP)—Netherlands Indies troops and Allied airplanes fought Japanese parachutists and sea-borne troops today in the Palembang area of Sumatra only 270 miles northwest of Batavia.

A Netherlands Indies communique had announced the launching of a full scale Jap invasion attempt on Sumatra after Dutch troops had wiped out most of an estimated 700 parachutists who had landed Saturday at three points near Palembang.

The communique announced also the landing of enemy invasion forces in the Anambas Islands, 150 miles northwest of Singapore.

With their landing in Sumatra the Japanese have established a 1,700 mile invasion line, extending in a west-east direction from Palembang through Borneo and Celebes to the Amboina islands in preparation for a major attack on Java, the heart of the Dutch East Indies, which contains Batavia, the capital, and the United Nations command.

ROADS SOFT IN PLACES

Roads of the Putnam county highway system which did not give up the frost from their sub-bases during the last preceding thawing and rainy spell of weather, are now surrendering to the warmth and wetness of the present spell and again they are soft in places where there is not a protective coat of bituminous surface treatment, or a considerable thickness of stone or gravel.

The water from slow rain of Sunday forenoon and the drizzle of last night and today, is soaking into the highways where it can, and in places where it encounters a layer of frozen material under the surface it makes the surfaces soft. County road men are watching traffic, to prevent the damaging of roads.

PARK CLOSED BECAUSE OF THE ROADS BEING SOFT

The Robe-Ann park has been closed by the Park Board until the roads through the park have settled sufficiently from being damaged by traffic and persons are asked to remain out of the park with vehicles until the entrance ways are again open.

TRAGIC FAR EAST BLOW

Prime Minister And England's Officials Draw Verbal Fire Of Shocked Empire

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Britons, shocked by the fall of Singapore and asserting that the country faced its gravest situation since the collapse of France, demanded with increasing insistence today a radical and immediate change in the direction of the war and a merciless purge of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's cabinet.

They received their first news of the surrender of the British garrison through Japanese communiques. Then Churchill, in a world broadcast, announced it in three words: "Singapore has fallen." For nearly a whole day, there had been no other official news of Singapore.

The British people knew that one of the few such surrenders in their history had come atop the humiliating cruise of a German battle fleet past the Dover coast within range of shore guns.

They knew that half a dozen famous regiments of British regulars, British royal marines and sailors and engineers, an Australian imperial force, Indian regiments, Malayan and Sarawak forces had been involved in the fall of Singapore.

They knew nothing of the number of men involved in the surrender, how the collapse had come, what proportion of the garrison had been evacuated to the Netherlands East Indies, which are now under a full scale Japanese attack.

But the most dramatic, if not actually the most important defeat of the war, was a ghastly fact to them. It dwarfed the surrender of the little garrison at Hong Kong, and people went back to Kut El Amara in 1916 when a British army surrendered to the Turks, and Lord Cornwallis's surrender at Yorktown in 1781 for comparisons.

It had taken the Japanese only a few weeks to drive down the Malay peninsula from Thailand, the British imperial forces had withdrawn from Malaya to the island Jan. 31, two weeks ago. The Japanese had attacked one week later, needing only one week to take the island fortress.

Men of the brigade of guards, symbol of British military prowess; the East Surrey regiment, the Leicester regiment, the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, the Gordon Highlanders, the Manchester Regiment, the Loyal Regiment, the Royal Marines, navy men from the "impregnable" Singapore naval base, royal engineers, royal artillery, the Australians, the Malay Regiment, the Sarawak Rangers, the Hyderabad Regiment, the Punjab motorized unit, mixed Punjab, Baluchis, Yats, Garhwals, from all over India and men from the famous northwest frontier force of India had been in the fighting.

Reports started to circulate that there had been another Dunkirk, that many if not most of the British and Australian forces had succeeded in leaving the island Friday night for the Netherlands East Indies.

But for hours, the country waited vainly for official news.

Long after the Japanese had announced the surrender, the British Broadcasting Corporation heard the Singapore radio at 10:37 a. m. EWT give a routine broadcast of world news. The announcer ended:

FIGHTING CHUTE TROOPS

in Thon, on the key railroad town of Thon, which is less than 75 miles from the Burma road, despite blistering attacks by imperial troops and heavy losses.

"There have been no further attacks on the Salween river front but reports indicate the enemy is preparing for an attack in the area of Duiyzeik and Thon," an army communique said.

This indicated that the Salween defense line had been cracked seriously, and perhaps unhinged at one or both ends of the 30-mile river front between Martaban and Paan.

The official report gave no details and the picture of operations was exceedingly vague.

The Japanese have been driving westward from the Salween, the base and we wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Thon as its apex. The river runs north and south. The shore of the Martaban forms one side of the triangle.

Duiyzeik, on the Donthani river, which flows into the Salween about midway between Martaban and Paan, is but six miles from Thon.

Woman's Study Club

Meets Friday

The Friday meeting of Woman's Study Club was held on Friday, Feb. 13, at the home of Mrs. A. A. Abbott.

Miss Margaret Andrade of DePauw University was the guest speaker for the afternoon and chose for her subject "Free France." As France is her native country she was able to establish in the minds of the listeners a clear picture of this nation as it actually stood before the German invasion. Miss Andrade compared France to the United States, and stated that she knew of no countries whose citizens were no more intelligent peace loving people who enjoy their freedom and wish no wars with any other nation. The leaders and defenders of France are intellectual substantial men who have no desire to win fame or glory for themselves. They are only eager to bring honor to their country and are willing to fight to the end to restore freedom to their beloved land.

Miss Andrade's graceful manner and animated smile gave charm to her inspiring talk and left a feeling of sympathy and understanding in the hearts of her listeners.

Twenty members and several guests were present to hear this splendid program.

The next meeting of the Study Club will be held with Mrs. Walter Baker on March 13. The program will be in charge of Mrs. R. R. Neel.

Soviet Continues Drive On Nazis

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Soviet forces operating in white Russia have outflanked major German fortified points and are advancing toward the old Polish border, dispatches from Moscow reported unofficially today.

It was believed in Moscow that the troops had crossed the upper reaches of one of Russia's principal rivers which runs through the German-occupied territory. One division of Russian guards had broken through the German lines on the central front and advanced 30 miles. In several days fighting, the dispatches said, they recaptured "scores" of inhabited places.

A radio Moscow military commentator, broadcasting from the front, said a "call to arms" had been made recently to the Russian peasants immediately behind the German lines. Thousands of peasants joined guerrilla outfits and recaptured 41 villages which they held until the advancing Russian army occupied them.

These guerrillas, the commentator said, have killed more than 1,000 Germans in recent days and have seized quantities of arms which are being distributed to the peasants.

A Russian communique said the Germans brought up fresh reserves at several points and launched counter-attacks which were repulsed with heavy losses.

COOKING SCHOOL CANCELED

Due to the shortage of materials and supplies it was necessary to cancel the Daily Banner cooking school which had been scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is hoped that the school may be continued next year or in the near future.

Funeral services were held today at Indianapolis for Miss Katharine Layman, daughter of Theodore L. Layman and Louisa Nance Layman who was born at Putnamville and who died at her home, 548 Audobon road, Indianapolis, Thursday. She was a member of the Indiana Society of Pioneers of which she was registrar at the time of her death, and she also was a member of the D. A. R. and a number of other organizations. She had spent the greater part of her life in Indianapolis.

School News

(By Georgia Anne Zeis)

The sixth grade club of Martha Ridpath School was entertained with a play at its club meeting Friday. The name of the play was "Her Royal Valentine" and was under the direction of Betty Ann Baker, chairman of the program committee.

The children of the various rooms of the Ridpath School enjoyed Valentine parties Friday.

Each grade in Miller School had a Valentine party Friday afternoon. The first grade had individual Valentine boxes due to the ingenuity and industry of Miss Vaughn. Several grades had so many valentines that they had to have extra boxes. The party in the sixth grade was under the direction of the social committee of the Sixth Grade Club.

The Purcell children returned to Miller School after an absence of four weeks. We are glad to know that they are well enough to come again.

The Junior Red Cross of Miller School held its February meeting Friday morning in the school auditorium. Margie Smith, president, called the meeting to order, after which the school sang "America" and gave the pledge to the flag. The secretary's report was read by Harold Myers. Karen Barnaby thanked the children for the plant she received from the Red Cross while she was in the hospital. Ann Cockley, treasurer, reported a balance of $35.00 in the Junior Red Cross fund.

Margie cautioned the children about playing in the street. The Junior Red Cross sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

The meeting was then turned over to the fourth grade which had dramatized a story, "The Golden Goose" for their entertainment. The main characters were as follows: Jack—Lewis Berlyn; Jack's Mother—Ann Cockley; The Old Man—Wilborn Kendall; Landlord—Charles Barnaby; Wife and Daughter—Joyce Arnold and Martha Whiteman; King—Billy Voltmer; Queen—Patsy Ross; Princess—Barbara Hedge.

The play was well done and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Birthday suckers were given to many children, and to Mrs. Pinegar and Mrs. Mason whose birthdays were this month and last.

Each room of Jones School had a Valentine Party Friday afternoon.

The Lyons children of Jones School have moved to Clinton.

The Girl Scout Troop of Miller School visited the Cold Storage Lockers two weeks ago. Mrs. Reed promised two prizes to the girls having the best written account of the trip. Some very nice papers were written and the judges finally decided that first prize should go to Joan Alexander and second prize to Dorothy Williams.

Miller School has a button box in the hall to collect buttons for the Red Cross.

The money for Defense Stamps was $25 at the Miller School this week. This brings the total for stamps up to $307.20. We feel that the children of Miller School are doing their part in defense work.

The junior class sponsored a movie Friday morning. The double feature was "Say It With a Song" and "That's My Meat." Both of these movies were comedies. Mary Louise Brown is the chairman of the movie committee.

Mr. Skelton's third period history class listened to the DePauw chapel Thursday morning through the benefit of the sound system. Mrs. Turney Gatten reviewed the "Life of Lincoln" and was found very interesting to the students.

Thursday afternoon the Interlude program was a recording of the story of Lincoln. This story for the radio was written by Julia Swintz, senior at DePauw and directed by Professor Ross. The program was very interesting.

Thursday evening at the Hi-Y meeting they had a short business meeting in which they decided to make model airplanes for Defense program.

Monday afternoon the students of G. H. S. had the pleasure of hearing the Novelty Trio. This trio not only played excellent music on the piano, and violin, but also sang and presented novelty acts.

CHAPTER I

IN A NARROW wood-road well screened from the highway a huge moving van without lights was parked as the first faint light of the false dawn glowed in the east. The man at the wheel was a telephone receiver and mouthpiece. Lounging beside him a second man slipped a clip of cartridges into the rifle that lay across his knees. Both were dressed in the denim uniforms of freight truckers.

From overhead came the faint purr of an airplane motor. Flying without lights it circled over the pasture where a small herd of cattle stirred restlessly. Like the man in the waiting truck the pilot also wore a telephone head-and-mouthpiece.

From his aerial vantage point the pilot surveyed the entire scene. All clear. He spoke into the mouthpiece on his chest. "Okay, Hack. Step on it." Still without lights the big truck slipped across the highway, through a gate in the fence and came to a halt beside the cattle. The driver switched on the powerful headlights and the herd stood still staring into the bright glare. From the rear of the truck five men sprang to the ground. Two carried long, flexible-handled sledge hammers; three wore butchers' aprons and carried carving knives and cleavers. All wore revolvers.

Silently and methodically the group set to work slaughtering and butchering the nearest members of the herd. Above, the watchful lookout circled in his plane. Suddenly the pilot's attention was caught by the lights of a speeding car. Through his powerful binoculars he could see the rifle held by the man beside the driver. He spoke crisply into the mouthpiece: "There's a car coming and it's coming fast. Looks like farmers with shotguns. Better scram."

The driver of the van softly tooted his siren three short blasts and switched out the headlights. Hastily the rustlers tossed the dressed beef into the truck, clambered in and closed the rear doors. The big truck turned, lurched across the field and fled down the highway.

In the office of the Liberty Packing House and Stockyard, the proprietor, Mykola Balan, better known as "Mike," stomped angrily back and forth. Stocky and powerful, his expressive face clearly revealed his Cossack ancestry. It revealed, too, the wilful, headstrong nature of the man. In his hand he carried a short, heavy cattle whip.

Descendant of countless generations of cattle raiding ancestors, it was not surprising that this man who had come to America thirty years before as a half-grown immigrant boy today should head this flourishing business in stolen and hi-jacked meat and cattle.

Two things were responsible for

ly. "I'm bigger, understand?"

Mike's eyes blazed but his tone was even silkier. "Do not put your hand on me, Mr. Big George. I do not like it." Then Mike added: "I know your cattle, Mr. Big George. I know every hair on 'em." "Come, then, Mr. Big George, show you my cattle. See if you can pick out any of yours."

Still carrying his whip, Mike led the little group onto the runway

"Big George and a couple of his boys are on their way up here," Mike said.

Mike's anger: He had just heard of the partial failure of his raiding party. That in itself would have inflamed him. He could not excuse failure. And now Big George Rotz, would-be overlord of the illicit packing industry, was trying to force Mike to "deal" with his racketeers.

Mike, one of Mike's Cossack lieutenants, interrupted Mike's angry thoughts. "Big George and couple of his boys are on their way up here," Mike said.

"Good," Mike said and he smiled in anticipation of the meeting.

"Hello, Big George," Mike said affably as Rotz and his men entered the office. "I am glad to see you. I have talked to some of your friends."

Towering a full head above Mike, Rotz wasted no time in polite preliminaries.

"You're gonna talk to me now," he snarled. "Did you hijack a load of my steers about an hour ago on the Avondale Road?"

Mike's voice was aggrieved. "Why, Big George, you know I would not steal any steers from you after you had all the work to steal them first. I am your friend."

"This is a five million dollar business, but it ain't big enough for me and you," Rotz yelled angrily.

Mike's voice was soft. "Maybe you are not so big as you think, Big George."

Rotz seized Mike's shoulder angri-

ly. "I'm bigger, understand?"

Mike's eyes blazed but his tone was even silkier. "Do not put your hand on me, Mr. Big George. I do not like it." Then Mike added: "I know your cattle, Mr. Big George. I know every hair on 'em." "Come, then, Mr. Big George, show you my cattle. See if you can pick out any of yours."

studied each group of steers tently. His attention focused on one. "I want that steer," he growled.

"Sure, Big George. I will you see him real close." Mike cracked his whip loudly. "Mar-

Java!" he shouted. "Run those cattle out this way."

"I'm sure about that one," Big

George growled. "And I saw a dozen others that I want to look closer."

"My friend, Mike said patiently, smiling at Big George's angry face. "You are the blondest of them."

With a bellow of rage, Big George lunged at his smaller adversary.

With surprising quickness Mike side-stepped and brought the of his heavy whip down on Big

George's head. The big man sagged forward and crumpled to the floor

the walk.

Into the runway beneath the Maxie and Java were gazing disputed cattle. Mike calmly pushed the inert form of Rotz from the

stamping cattle.

With a sad, almost child-like expression Mike watched the

"That was too bad. I am very
