Indiana Society of the National Society United States Daughters of 1812 War will meet April 11, at 12:00 noon for a luncheon in the Driftwood Room, Marrott Hotel, 2625 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis.

Mrs. Russell T. Gard, State President will introduce the speaker, Hubert Hawkins who will give an illustrated history of Indiana Governors.

Special guest will be Myrtle Barker.

Members and guests will attend from Tippecanoe Chapter in Greencastle, Major David Steele Chapter in South Bend, and Philip Schoff Chapter, Indianapolis.

OES District Meeting Held At Rosedale

The spring meeting of the 9th district OES was held at Rosedale Masonic Hall. A bountiful pitch-in dinner was held in the dining room. 18 chapters were represented with 115 people registering.

After dinner, the meeting was called to order by president Ida Adkisson. District Deputy Joyce Koenig was escorted to the east, introduced and welcomed.

Past Presidents of District 9, present patrons and present representatives were introduced and given a hearty welcome. The welcome was given by the worthy Matron of Rosedale Chapter, Rosemary Griffin. Response was given by Phyllis Twitchell of Oriental Chapter.

Officers elected to serve next year are:

President—Emily Cox, Morton Chapter
1st Vice President—Ruby Collier, Catlin Chapter
2nd Vice President—Lois Patton, Athens Chapter
Secretary—Mary Whitley, Russellville Chapter

Treasurer — Cynthia Seybold, Catlin Chapter
A party to honor President of District 9, Ida Adkisson, will be held at Oriental Chapter, Linden, Indiana on May 9th. A potluck dinner will be held at 6:30 DST.

The District will also have a picnic at the Shades Park July 19, 1964.

The meeting was closed with Max West singing "How Great Thou Art," followed by prayer.

A program to honor the special committee of new Worthy Patrons or their representative was given by President Ida Adkisson. She was assisted by District Deputy Joyce Koenig, 1st vice President, Emily Cox and Treasurer, Rachel West.

The meeting was turned over to program chairman Marlene Waters of Rosedale Chapter. Margaret Moody gave a humorous reading "Letter to Grandpa." Then Austin Kircher of Greencastle was M.C. for a very enjoyable program similar to that of Art Linkletter's House Party.

The fall meeting will be held at Linden. Date will be announced later.

Mrs. Ratcliff Sorority Hostess

Doris Ratcliff was hostess for the Exemplar Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi on Tuesday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m., in her home.

The meeting opened with members, response to the ritual. During the business meeting it was decided to help provide dues for children's membership in different school activities.

The Founders Day Banquet will be held in the private dining room at Torr's Restaurant on April 28. At this time pledges will be given the Ritual of Jewel Degree.

Eno Hoskins gave the lesson and her topic was England. She used newspapers from England and a scrapbook with pictures of different localities in that country.

Her program was very enjoyable. The closing of the Chapter business was in accordance with the ritual.

The social hour followed with the hostess serving delicious cake and coffee.

The door prize was won by Mona Harlan.

The next regular business meeting will be held April 14, with Mona Harlan as hostess.

PURDUE GIVES TESTS

Today's Bible Thought

Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth. I John 3:18
Love in word is not enough. The profession of love calls for deeds. Love in truth offers help, makes a gift does a favor, or takes a burden.

Miss Marcella Haltom became the bride of James Kennett on March 7 at 7:30 p.m. in The First Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Nina Haltom, Greencastle and Mr. and Mrs. James Kennett of Graysville, Indiana.

The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Elmer Evens. Bridal selections were played by Paul Evans. The bride, given in marriage by her brother, approached the altar wearing a gown of silk taffeta and alencon lace. The bateau neckline and bodice were accented with alencon lace appliques etched with seed pearls. The floor length bell shape skirt of taffeta fashioned from unpressed pleats with lace motifs and a detachable wattleau train of taffeta and lace with applique bow back. Her finger tip illusion veil was fashioned to a crown tiara of seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses with ivy.

Miss Dawn Haltom was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Hartman and Miss Candace Corbett, niece of the bride. Their floor length gowns in tones of blue taffeta had short sleeves with a bateau neckline. The full length sheath was fashioned with a trumpet flare at hemline with inset and detachable brush train. Their bowed head pieces were of matching color to the dresses. They carried nosegays of white and blue carnations.

The reception held immediately following the ceremony was in the basement of the church. Guests were registered by Mrs. Richard Corbett, sister of the bride. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Duane Monk, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Frank Cummings, Mrs. Kenneth Jones and Mrs. Joseph Galloway, sisters of the bride.

The couple are at home at 1017 South Indiana Street.

A World Of Style Smart Thinking For Every Girl! Apparel Around The Calendar

By Natalie Gittelson

IT IS NOTHING NOWADAYS to see simple dresses and suits with three hundred dollars-and-up price tags hanging on the ready-to-wear racks as casually as if they were a dime a dozen. While not all of us can pay this kind of important money for fashion (and wouldn't, even if we could), the high cost of clothes, in general, makes a four-season wardrobe sound thinking for any smart girl.

SLEEVELESSNESS, for instance, never goes out of style. An unsleeved black crepe dress, shaped to skim the figure, and set with a big flat bow near the throat is a twelve-months proposition, wherever in the world you live. Big daisy earrings give it strong summer significance... jet or pearls for winter. In between, play black crepe any way you please.

PARADOXICALLY, the new Paris penchant for long sleeves lends another sharp arrow to your four-seasons fashion bow. A princess coat or dress beautifully seamed, of sheer white wool with narrow sleeves that reach to the wrist, need only languish in your closet on the very warmest day of the year.

I MENTION BLACK and white specifically, because while more and more color fads are cropping up at every season of the year, perspicacious black and white will never, never date. Neither will the lovely neutrals like dove gray, beige and taupe. But two years ago, we had a pink spring; last year, we had a pale blue spring; and this year, it's a yellow season. You might as well embroider date-lines on your dresses when you buy the BIG color of the year. So forego fads, unless you're very rich or you just don't give a darn.

SEVERAL NEW off-Broadway plays which are destined to become four-season classics of American theatre boast stars who dress in the four-seasons way. In the rousing musical show, "Trumpets of the Lord," the beautiful and talented Cicely Tyson wears long-sleeved pale grey jersey, cut straight in front, floating two panels like angel's wings in back. Gray stockings and small-heeled gray strapped shoes complete a monotonous look that is marvelously seasonless.

HILDA HARRIS is the lovely star of "Jericho-Jim Crow," an extraordinary, exciting theatrical offering which is a cultural project of New York's Presbyterian Church and Brotherhood Synagogue. She bases her four-season thinking on navy blue—in a suit with a pleated skirt, a short, waist-cropped jacket (slim enough to go under a coat in cold weather) and a white silk scarf, crossed at the throat.

BOLD AND BRILLIANT red, another never-fading staple in the fashion spectrum, is the star's choice in a bold and brilliant American documentary play called "In White America." Young Gloria Foster, who is surely destined for greatness in the theatre, wears a simple, slightly fitted scarlet dress with a V-neck and little cap sleeves that could go to dinner nicely on any spring night; look equally pretty and proper next winter under a black wool cape or a coat of spotted fur.

BUT THE POINT of timelessness in Ted Mann's breathtaking new production of Euripides' "Trojan Women," which was first set upon the stage in 416 B.C. The Greek chorus of women wear classically beautiful dresses fashioned of pleats from neck to hem and worn with black stoles. Jane White, as Helen, wears white silk chiffon with a gold cuff bracelet high up on her arm. Although no one expects her clothes to last from June through January for 2,000 years, the meaning is clear: Fashion, well-chosen, can indeed go on and on—and on.

Roachdale Garden Club Held Meeting

The Roachdale Garden Club held their April meeting in the Library basement. Mrs. Inez Wilson, president was in charge of the meeting.

Roll call was answered by giving. Helpful ideas and garden hints. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved and a financial report given.

Plants and seeds were brought to exchange but decided to sell them at silent auction after the business meeting. All enjoyed refreshments served by Mrs. Richard Riggle.

Charles Rady gave an interesting talk on setting bulbs and planting seeds and then they showed two reels of film taken at the Bush Gardens at Tampa, Florida.
