FAST DRIVING.

A Collision and Its Consequences.
Saturday afternoon last, Samuel McDonald and another Baltimore man whose name we understand is Wm. C. Coulson, the former and probably the latter evidently being under the influence of intoxicating liquor, mounted their nobby hunting wagon and dashed promiscuously about the city like a couple of bison, making pedestrians and vehicles clear the track for them and causing a general stampede. Of course, all who knew the freaks of the great Baltimore millionaire (?) cleared the track. Some of course, did not know him or could not get out of his way. A lady from the country was driving along the street near the Terre Haute House, the exact location not being of any particular importance so far as this article is concerned. Into the vehicle in which she was seated, Samuel and the dashing Coulson hied their "game" wagon, breaking an axle in the collision.

Yesterday the two worthies were heavily fined by the Mayor on a charge of fast driving, the fines aggregating about $33, which they paid or secured, we know not which. These two high-toned gentlemen request the Mayor to suppress their names from the members of the press, as though they are any better than the moneyless men, whom from time to time are hauled over the municipal coals for violations of municipal law. We insist that they are no better from a moral and legal standpoint, ay, not so good as many hundreds, who have enjoyed the hospitality of this city in the Station House.

Though Samuel McDonald is reputed to be worth his millions in the financial world, in the moral and social world he does not enjoy as high a position as many whose names have appeared in print in connection with fines and imprisonment.

So long, however, as Samuel McDonald confined himself to his reputed notorious immoral practices and associations at his own house, and kept from off the streets in the violation of our city law, we refrained from publishing not only our sentiments in regard to his life and actions here, but also what we feel assured are the sentiments of the community who love morality and order. When he and his associates become so reckless as to wildly dash about our streets in a vehicle at the eminent risk of the life and limbs of our citizens or visitors, we will remain silent no longer, but dare and do denounce them and their actions through our columns in language that cannot be mistaken by them, and which will also post such of our readers as do not know as to their real character. For the present we refrain from further comment upon their actions here, but if we have occasion to refer to any more such acts as of the past, we shall be very much more severe than upon this occasion.

Theodore Thomas Orchestra Concert.
As the world-renowned Theodore Thomas Orchestra give one of their grand concert entertainments in this city to-morrow evening, we copy the following from that sterling sheet, the Providence Journal:

"The audience that gathered at the Opera House on Saturday, retired from Mr. Thomas' concert with a degree of satisfaction and sense of musical enjoyment never before experienced by any similar assemblage in Providence. Such a performance as was given was never heard here, and will be treasured in the memory of the city by all the people of Providence, but one composed of the people of musical culture. The programme was made up of music from the most celebrated composers, which claimed the attention and produced an amount of wonder at its rendering, only to be accounted for on the ground of the skill of the performers. To say that it was an orchestra which produced this enjoyment, is to believe the eye rather than the ear. We saw fifty performers, we heard but one. That magic baton gracefully wielded by Mr. Thomas, like the pipe of Orpheus, drew and seemed in its motions to produce of itself those glorious concords. Such was the unity of the sound, that but a single stroke of that enchanted wand brought a crash of harmony overpowering almost by its perfect accord, on a long drawn and well developed note that emanated from their tuneful purity. With these there was such precision, such promptness, such delicacy and smoothness, such perfect control, such crescendos, and diminuendos so gradual as hardly to be noticed, such an exquisite appreciation of the feeling embodied in the music, that it was an echo of our own minds interpreting the sentiment from within rather than infusing sweet sounds from without. Criticism lays down her blunted sword, unable to find a weak place in Mr. Thomas' armor. The people of Providence, having and painful struggles have been crowned with a grand success, and has at last gained for himself a laurel wreath which no other head in America can wear so deservedly. We can be excused for being so enthusiastic over such a performance, for it was marvellous, it was perfect."

AN IMPROVEMENT—A GOOD SELL.
The show window at B. G. Cox's popular, wholesale and retail paper establishment and book store, has been greatly beautified and improved by the insertion of an elegant glass pane on the west side of the entrance which occupies the entire space between the door and wall, while new panes of glass are to be placed in the door. The glass is from New Albany, and should recommend the works of that place to our business men who may need like articles as better cannot be had anywhere, we feel assured.

A LETTER received from the great spiritual exposé, Prof. W. F. Von Vleck, informs us that he is in St. Louis, and will probably give two performances in Dowling Hall in this city on the evenings of the 30th and 31st inst.

A LAFAYETTE cow, emulous of the fame of the Chicago cow that kicked over the lamp containing the non-explosive oil that fired Chicago, demonstrated her affection for the milk maid by kicking her shoulder out of joint?

Mr. D. W. HUGHES, agent for Van Amburg's Menagerie, has secured the lot on corner of Main and Seventh streets, opposite Terre Haute House, for their exhibitions to-morrow. This is convenient, and will add much to the pleasure.

THE concert of the Congregational Church will be given in the audience room of that beautiful and magnificently revised structure Tuesday evening, 31st inst. Much brilliant musical talent will participate, including the Iowa prima donna, Miss Fanny J. Kellogg, Terre Haute's favorite.

THE "pits" which are opened for the purpose of inserting the gas pipes into the new marble block on Main street, are in a very unsafe condition for pedestrians. A gentleman from the Terre Haute House found a temporary grave in one of them Sunday night and was only resurrected by the timely appearance of a sympathizing friend. It was a case where deliberate though long continued profanity might reasonably have been expected, because the victim was not a saint.

Mr. George O. Glavis, of New York, but just arrived from Europe, is in the city, the guest of his father-in-law, Jas. Ross, Esq.

A STRIKING EVIDENCE of the advance of science and civilization in our country is the prompt and decisive steps taken in large cities to prepare for the expected and almost certain coming of the cholera. But a few years ago the only efforts made to escape its ravages, was by all who were able, taking safety in flight, leaving those who were too poor to leave, to care for themselves as best they could. When it did come, the result was fearful, and its victims were numbered by thousands. Now, however, the matter is left in the hands of the authorities, and the people rest in perfect confidence that all is right.

In our section of country disease makes its appearance each and every year, and no efforts of our authorities can arrest its progress. The seeds of malaria are planted in its unhappy victims and bring forth abundant fruit, aging in every shape (billiousness, torpid liver, headache, chills and fever, intermittent fever) appears, and thousands suffer for months, until the appearance of frost, when the cause being removed, the effect at once ceases. Barr's Agu Medicine will remove the cause from the system as certainly as frost, and may be obtained now at every drug store in the land.
