AN ECONOMIST'S SPASM.

The Evening Follower Objects to Public Money Spent for Horseshoeing.

The Evening Follower, once in a great while originates an attack on some alleged squandering of the public monies and as surely as the Follower commences it so surely is it only a question of time—frequently a very short time—when it finds that it has stumbled into the soup, where it must either flounder helplessly or get out of its difficulties the best it can.

Its latest spasm is the charge that the present management of the fire department is squandering the public monies by paying exorbitantly for shoeing its twenty-three head of horses.

The intelligent Editor of the Follower even went so far as to claim that he could save from $10.00 to $12 a year—head in this expense account.

Said an old driver and one of the best firemen on the department to-day: "It costs from $14 to $16 a year each for shoeing our horses, never more than $16. Now, if the Gazette can save from $10 to $12 a year on this account the gentleman who runs that paper of course expects the blacksmith who shoes a department horse a whole year to find the shoes, count in his time and do the work for $4. That is exactly what the Gazette says and means. Now for a few facts. When we take a team of fire horses to a blacksmith shop to be newly shod or to have their shoes reset, the blacksmith does not rip off all the shoes at one time as he would with any other team. He simply takes one foot at a time, so that the team, in case of an alarm, may not be compelled to pound their bare feet all to pieces over the hard streets. This makes a slow operation of shoeing a fire department team, as you can see. While the smith is working in this way on one of our teams, there may be a demand for other teams or for other horses, which he cannot render, and loses the patronage simply because of the necessary tedious work on a fire department team.

The fire horses must be shod with the best hand-made shoes, and the Gazette, quite liberal (!), announces that it can have the work done for $4 a year. For all it costs us from $14 to $16, as I have said, to have each of our horses shod for a year, and the Gazette can save from $10 to $12 a year per head, I would like much to know the name of a Terre Haute blacksmith who is willing to help the Balls make their vaunting true."

The fireman was right. The Gazette scale for horse shoeing, which it has set up, is in strict keeping with the scale of wages it pays.

The question of the horse shoeing of the department has been the subject of no little consideration by various committees and chiefs of the fire department since 1886. At that time, while Joe Schell was chief, he suggested that a member of the department, John Osterloo, a thoroughly practical blacksmith, should be made the smith of the department, paid $85 a month and given practical and exclusive charge of this branch of department work. It was figured that this would save an aggregate of $175 a year, basing the calculation upon the annual expense for horseshoeing in 1885. This was never done, however. If the next state legislature should place the Terre Haute fire department on a metropolitan basis, it is more than likely the department will be given its own blacksmith.

The Phoenix Club Fair. The arrangements for the approaching fair to be given by the Hebrew ladies of this city, have been so thoroughly and intelligently managed that the enterprise promises to be not only one very profitable, as it should be, but also one which will afford a source of delightful entertainment to the pleasure loving people of this city for the several evenings of its duration. Among many other very attractive features of the fair will be the Gypsy tent, where in will dwell four beautiful, gipsy-like, handsomely and attractively dressed, true to lovely peasant customs of Old Bohemia. These young ladies will be Miss Cora Kahn, of Indianapolis; Mrs. P. Rheinheimer, of Tuscola, Ill., and Misses Blanch Straus and Emma Arnold, of this city. Their excellent musical club, the Mendelshon quartette, have volunteered their services and will render a well arranged programme of sweet songs on Friday evening, October 11th.

One of the happiest and most entertaining features of the fair will be the trial of the little Quakers, under the tutelage of Mrs. Robert Watson, Tuesday night, October 7th, and at the Saturday matinee.

The ladies who have volunteered to assist in the fair are requested to meet at Phoenix hall, over the public library, Saturday, 2:30 p. m.

La Grippe. There is at present an epidemic of "colds in the head" raging in this city and the number of cases is daily on the increase. Several physicians who have been seen pronounce the trouble due to the changes of weather and not necessarily having any relationship with la grippe which raged throughout the country last winter.

The trouble is due to the fact that again made its undesirable appearance at various points east and west. Said one physician, this morning, "if there is any aggravated case of la grippe in the city I don't know it. It would be an excellent thing, however, for people to be very careful and cautious about unnecessary exposure." At Carthage, Ill., the horror has made its appearance and many people are seriously ill.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Mr. Barnes of New York" when first given to the public as a book, created quite a stir in the literary world and made a name for its author. It was so written as to be easily shaped into a theatrical performance, and its advent on the stage was signalized by a success equal to that with which the book was received by the American public. This admirable play, abounding in striking dramatic situations and exceedingly well staged, was presented at Naylor's opera house last evening by a cast which, for the most part, was excellent. It was the first production of the piece in Terre Haute, and to say that it was received as one of the most catchy and refreshing performances ever witnessed here is to speak the truth mildly.

The titular role was assumed and ably sustained by James Neil, a handsome man of fine form who is as free from the egotism that characterizes most fine looking men on the stage, as he is from every particle of assumption. He plays his part with an ease and naturalness quite captivating. It is said, however, that he does not compare favorably with the man who essayed the character last season. Miss Emily Rigi, a well-known actress, appeared to matchless advantage as Marina Paoli. The honors of the pleasing performance perhaps belong chiefly to her. Her make-up is perfect, her voice excellent, and she played the part with faultless fidelity to the Italian. Her willowy figure and pliant grace, her careful and consistent adherence to her interpretation, won for her the golden encomiums that she so richly deserved. Not all the sublime dramatic force of which she was capable was manifested until, stiletto in hand, she turned with the fierceness of a tigress upon her foster father, who sought to kill her husband in loyalty to a vendetta.

Annie Blanche, as Maude, was extremely personified. Her work as the meddling, mischievous child, was a flawless characterization, in which she reminded one of Lotta herself. Annie Haines, as Enid, was fair. Sheridan Blake, as the French count, looked his part in point of make-up, but it is hard to say such personages must be very queer, indeed. His frenzy of joy over prospective revenge was a grotesque portrayal that should have caused him to be killed sooner than he was. He made eagle's claws of his hands, almost swallowed his tongue, staggered as if hit with a brick and dropped onto a sofa exhausted. Queer that joy would effect a man in that manner. It might have been counterfeited passion, but it looked like hydrophobia. Matt B. Snyder, as Tomaso's son, was good. E. W. Morrison, as Antonio Paoli, was very good in the first act, dropped out before much of the second, and was killed in the third. The railroad guard, was the Frenchman to perfection. Henry Roberts, as Andre de Belle, got all out of the character that there was in it. The German waiter, an excellent Lady Charles. "Mr. Barnes of New York" is a great show and will draw a full house hereafter in Terre Haute.

The gallery last night, as usual, was a nuisance. The actors were frequently interrupted and sensible people's enjoyment of the performance was marred. These top floor hoodlums should be made to preserve quiet or should be summarily ejected. The management should have at least two policemen in the gallery to preserve order, and the officers should spare no guilty man. This is due to that class of audience which visits the theater to be entertained.

The Juch opera company arrived this afternoon at 2:30 by special train from the East. There are over 150 people in the company.

A HANDSOME GOLD WATCH.

THE NEWS ONCE MORE LEADS THE PROFESSION.

The Past is a Mirror of the Future—We Share Profits With Employees—Only Seventy-Five Subscribers Needed.

To every boy and girl in the city, and also in the surrounding towns, The News wishes to present a beautiful souvenir in the shape of a lady's gold watch. This News at all times has shown a disposition to pay in a handsome manner all its employees. It was the first and only newspaper in Terre Haute that adopted the plan of sharing with its carrier boys the profits of each route. This has resulted in the routes of The News commanding a premium of $5 to $10 each. Generous treatment to all has won The News an army of friends. While our circulation in the city is much larger than any other paper, we still think there is room to grow, and will be content until every name in the city directory is on our list. To attain this end we make an offer to every boy and girl in the city.

A LADY'S GOLD WATCH, stem wind and set, Duober case, elegant movement, will be given to each and every one who will take the trouble to obtain among his or her friends 75 names of persons who will agree to take and pay for The News for one month. Note the several things to be remembered:

1. A gold watch, as above described, will be given to every one getting The News 75 subscribers for one month.

2. You will have no money to collect. Subscriptions will be collected weekly or monthly by the regular carrier.

3. You must send in the names as rapidly as you can obtain them. The News will be delivered promptly thereafter. When you have sent us 75 names the watch will be presented.

4. Names will be credited both once and no one having been on our books since September 1, 1890, will be accepted as a new subscriber.

5. If your friends say they are taking another paper, ask them for the sake of aiding you in getting this elegant present, to take The News also for one month at a cost of only 40 cents and compare the contents and style for future use. If any cannot afford to add a new daily paper to their list, ask them to drop for one month the paper they are now taking and aid you by taking The News for one month instead.

6. Write names and addresses very plainly, so there can be no confusion or misunderstanding. Wherever possible state not only the STREET and NUMBER, but BETWEEN WHAT STREETS as well. This will aid our carrier very materially in locating the house.

7. NEWS' employees are barred. This is a law for all boys and girls under 18 years of age, not employed by us.

8. Remember that while we give you a $25 watch, each of our carriers is to be benefited also, as they will obtain their profit on each subscriber.

9. If you have any questions to ask about our offer, do not hesitate to write to BUSINESS MANAGER OF NEWS.

A RIPE OLD AGE. J. H. Holcomb and wife, of Belcher, Texas, have celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary, and are still hale and hearty. The secret of their long life and good health is that they correct any slight ailment promptly, and in that way avoid serious sickness. Like most every one else, they are more frequently troubled with constipation than any other physical disorder. To correct this they take St. Patrick's Pills in preference to any other, because, as Mr. Holcomb says, "they are mild and, besides, keep the whole system in good order. We prize them very highly." For sale by druggists.

A SUGGESTION. There may be persons in this community who are at times troubled with colic, or subject to attacks of bowel complaint. If so, they should try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It will afford almost immediate relief, and when reduced with water is pleasant to take. If taken as soon as the first indication of the disease is felt it will ward off the attack. Many people use it in this way, and find that it never fails them. A 25 or 50 cent bottle may be obtained from your druggist.
