I. M. BROWN, Editor.
T. B. LONG, Associate Editor.

TERRE-HAUTE.

THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 7, 1858

For President in 1860:
JOHN J. CRITTENDEN,
Of Kentucky.

The Union is very fiercely opposed to an elective Judiciary by party vote, yet the editor is an earnest advocate of the election of Cowgill by the K. N. Republica- can party! What consistency!—Journal.

That is just about the depth of your ideas. Because the Americans prefer Mr. Cowgill to Mr. Claypool, you think we are favoring the election of a Judge "by a party vote." Well, now, that is strange doctrine! We urge Mr. Cowgill's claims because he is an anti-Lecompton man—because he is opposed to the present administration—because he is capable and honest, and is uninfluenced by party—because he has proven himself to be a good and an impartial Judge, having held the Judgeship of the Common Pleas Court of Putnam County with honor to himself and the community, for some time. We support him because he is not the nominee of the Administration party, which is enough to show that he will not be influenced by that party, when it is a well-known fact that a certain candidate for Justice of the Peace, on the Democratic ticket last May, said that every Democrat was pledged to each other, to uphold and protect one another upon all occasions, and under all circumstances, EVEN AT THE HAZARD OF LAW AND OF JUSTICE! and "this they would do in spite of the Devil." Now then, if this is the kind of pledge you Democrats are working under, you are more dangerous than any political party that has ever banded together in this or any other country. The "Red Republicans," the "Guards of Napoleon," or the most fanatical secular party of the old world, never had a worse and a more degrading object in view.—The boast was also made at the time, that "this was the reason why the Democratic party held together so well, and so surely."

When we see such a party making nominations for Judges of our courts, it is time the people should watch their interests, and refuse to support such nominees. Mr. Claypool may be a good Judge—we do not say he is not—but he has suffered himself to be used by that party for party purposes. He has accepted the nomination of the Lecompton party, when he knew at the time, that the opposition had not nor would not make any nomination. Why did he do this, if he did not wish to convey to the Democratic voters of this District that he was the legitimate candidate of the Administration party? There is more at the bottom of this affair than we ever hope to draw out of the party holding the secret. Yet the Editor of the Journal wishes to make his readers believe that he is opposed to a party Judiciary! When the Devil preaches to Eve in the Garden of Eden, she was foolish enough to believe, and by acting in concert with that belief, she brought sin and everlasting punishment upon the human family. So it will be with the voters of this District if the teachings and the preachings of the party who uphold and sanction the present corrupt administration are swallowed down, as truth and wholesome doctrine. The mistaken step will only be found out when it is too late to recall it.

We now ask a calm consideration of this matter—let the people judge of the position of the two candidates. One is a party nomination—the other is an independent, solicited by conservative men of all parties, selected for his good merits, for his clearness of mind and unbiased opinions.

Remember that a man is a man wherever you may find him.—Union.

That being the case, we hope no one will call at the Union office in quest of "the article."—Journal.

If they did they would find it, sure. Dr. Bondy, of Charleston, said he called at the Journal office, once on a time, and found the "article" minus.

Dick Ryan Whitten.—We understand that Dick Ryan spoke at Evansville on Tuesday night, and during his remarks took occasion to pitch into one of the citizens, and a German, who was a friend of the aforesaid citizen, walked into Dick like a thousand of brick, giving him a severe laming.

The Cat Let Loose.

The so-called anti-Lecompton party of Vigo county has placed a ticket in the field, and are strongly urging anti-Lecompton Democrats to the support of that ticket. Secret takes the lead and is afraid to defend the position he occupies and dares not say one word of consolation for his God-father, James Buchanan. The ranting and blustering anti-Lecompton (in a horn) Col. Cookerly is mum on both points, and ditto all the balance.

Now we shall take the privilege to ask, if these candidates have been actually placed upon an anti-Lecompton platform, and they are opposed to the present administration, why has it become necessary for our Post Master to follow up these candidates and make a speech at each stopping place, in defense of the administration? Does it not show that this party is endeavoring to deceive the people? Does it not show that the candidates are afraid to do the dirty work for which they have been employed and have taken this plan to doubly deceive the people. While they are courting the favors of the anti-Lecompton Democrats, they can secretly refer the Lecompton men to the speech of Mr. Cornwell, for consolation, and openly and loudly deny having anything to do with Mr. Cornwell or his position. This is a beautiful game—how interesting it must be to those who thus seek to deceive the people. We also understand that Mr. Vorhees has been engaged for this purpose. We are sorry to hear that either of those gentlemen have consented to lend their influence for the accomplishment of such a base and deceptive purpose—we had thought better of them—but they must explain this matter before the people can recall their former good opinion. The trick is now visible and known, and they must abide the consequences.

This fact, alone, is enough to convince every man in the county that Secret, Cookerly & Co., are regular old Liners, died in the wool—Buchanan-Lecompton Democrats—and nothing else! Look at it—while one butters the bread, the other licks it off, and the crust is thrown to the duped voter, who is foolish enough to believe that, by following them up a little longer, his butter will come after a while. Oh! silly, silly thought. Turn your backs upon them at once, and let them perish in their own filth, unwept and unsung.

The Union in comparing the nominees for the County Treasurship, calls Col. Cookerly an "Office-seeker!" That's rich! If our memory serves us right there is not a greater office-seeker in the country than Mr. Scott. He takes anything, whether proffered by Know-Nothings or Republicans. Look at the facts, Mr. Brown.—Journal.

Well, then we are pretty certain that he will take the office of Treasurer of Vigo county, inasmuch as it is "proffered" by both together, this time. So there is no use in your crying over it, your candidate is a "gones up community."

Now, as to Scott being an office-seeker, the truth will not bear you out in that assertion, for he has lived in Vigo county for nearly thirty years, and he has held four offices, and has not been beaten even once, while Cookerly has been here but little over half that time, and has been a candidate about—well, it is hard to tell, now, as some of our oldest citizens quit keeping count about four years ago, and the actual number of times is not known. This much is known, however, that he was a candidate fifteen times in thirteen years and was elected three times!!!—James, which of the two should you take to be an office-seeker? Come now, be honest for once, if you do belong to the Democratic party.

RED AND WHITE WHEAT.—The following rather curious and (to farmers) interesting revelation is published in the Chambersburg (Penn.) Spirit:

"From what we hear from our country friends and see in our exchange papers, it appears that the weevil confines its destructive operation exclusively to white wheat. In some instances, where part of a field was in white wheat and the remainder in red, the white was destroyed while the red sustained no injury whatever. In Lancaster county, many of the farmers intend to raise red wheat altogether till the weevil disappears, and it might do well for our Franklin-county farmers to do so too. In some parts of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, the wheat crop was almost entirely destroyed for several years in succession by the weevil. If its ravages can be stopped by cultivating red wheat only, our farmers will certainly do well to give the white wheat the go-by until the weevil disappears."

To get rid of the smell of oil-paint, put a handful of hay in a pail of water, and let it stand in a room newly painted.

SONG. THE GYPSY'S FOUNTAIN.

If thou wilt meet me,
If thou wilt meet me,
Where those bright waters flow,
Oh! I will greet thee,
I will greet thee,
With music as soft as low,
Tones that shalladden,
E'en while they gladden,
Songs—like the star-light—made
Half of day's gladness,
Half of night's sadness,
Twin things of sun and shade!

There I will tell thee,
There I will tell thee,
On the sweet stream flies,
Tales that are evr,
Whispered, and never
Whisper'd in words, but sighs!
Tales we should only
Teil, when the lonely
Moon—and one other—hears,
Tales that are meetes
Answer'd, and sweetest,
When their reply is—tears!

And I will teach thee,
And I will teach thee,
How each bright star we see,
And the flower's and birds
Have their voiceless words,
And tell all their love—like me!
And oh! 'twill be sweet,
Oh! 'twill be sweet,
In our own cold planet's bowers,
To think that we love
Like the bright things above,
With the love of the stars and flowers.

HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER.

What is home without a mother?
What are all the joys we meet
When her loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet?
The days are long, the nights are drear,
And time rolls slowly on;
And oh! how few are childhood's pleasures,
When her gentle care is gone.
Things we prize are first to vanish,
Hearts we love, to pass away;
And how soon, e'en in our childhood,
We behold her turning gray;
Her eye grows dim, her step is slow;
Her joys of earth are past,
And before we learn to know her,
She hath breathed on earth her last.
Older hearts may have their sorrows;
Griefs that quickly die away;
But a mother lost in childhood
Grieves that heart day by day.
We miss her kind and willing hand,
Her fond and earnest care;
And oh! how drear is life around us—
What's home without a mother there.

The Sea.

I must confess that no one thing impresses me so much with a sense of divine order and goodness in the material world, with conceptions of a stupendous machine which the almighty wisdom has designed, and which almighty power keeps continually in operation, as this wondrous, benevolent system of exchange between the land and the sea, carried on through the pipes of the atmosphere, and veins that cross the azure floor of Heaven; this mighty wheel, that turns this way and that, and keeps the pulse of every living thing in motion. "A great waste" is the expanse of water that chafes the "vexed Bermoothes" or lies swimming under a tropic sky. But far inland the heart of the countinents pants for its blessing, and the stately forests sigh for it through all their leaves; and to-morrow this outlying element that quivered like motion lead or dashed in feathery foam has descended on the lawns of England, the vineyards of the Rhine, and the wheat fields of the West. It has touched with tender coolness the wide prairie, and it opens its lids, more innumerable than the eyes of Heaven. The humble plant lifts up its greatful head, as though it felt God's care for it, and the orchard

CARD.

On making this announcement we desire to call the attention of the public to our present position. Two years ago we commenced business in Terre-Haute under very favorable circumstances, in the possession of facilities seldom enjoyed by any. In that short space of time we have established a Dry Goods House worthy of Terre-Haute. The extraordinary increase in our business requires more spacious salerooms. With that end in view we have secured the above corner, which we are now fitting up in magnificent style, with reference to the comfort of our customers; and for exactly it will far surpass any Dry Goods House in Terre-Haute. We have also enlarged the services of several accomplished salesmen who will at all times be found at their posts, ready to wait on all, and in any language. With increased facilities we are determined to carry the day, and challenge any and all competition, come from what source it may.
