Hurryin' Hoosiers

By J. Q. Fann

OUTSIDE LINEBACKERS, 1972: Gone are both of the Purdue game starters, Chuck Thompson and Dan Grossman. Replacing them is a problem but it would appear we are well along the road to an answer. Jerry Johnson started a lot of games both inside and outside and fills one spot. Stan Pfander, the Spider, is in the other spot but will have to hustle to stay ahead of two sophs, Rod Lawson and Maurice Osborne.

Johnson, from Kentucky, was highly recruited. He was the defensive player of the spring game his sophomore year. He started several games last fall and has experience. He is a steady one and steady ones beat the flashes in the big one.

Stan Pfander was a center on the Ohio State basketball champs and he looks too thin to be there but he hits for keeps and has great determination. If he could get some weight there would be no question but his speed, height, and long arms help on pass defense. He tackles hard, to put them away.

Two of our finest negro recruits are fighting to get into the act at the outside linebacker position. Rodney Lawson from Columbus, Ohio has been compared to Jim Tatum. The mere fact of comparison says a bunch. He is fast and tough. He gave the first unit fits in spring games. Rodney will play a lot somewhere. He could play cornerback too.

Maurice Osborne, from Louisville, is a blue ship athlete who has more weight than any of the other outside linebackers and will be used a lot on strictly running situations. He defends ok against the pass too. These positions show a good chance of change in personnel by conference time next fall.

John Kovatch is listed as an interior linebacker but could bolster the outside spots if needed. A bluechip man at 213 he hails from Mishawaka. Mark Deming was in track all spring but played outside linebacker, as well as other places in freshman ball. He is a prime candidate for backup man.

In the spring Paul Gresk, from southern Indiana and John Babcock of Elkhart and state finals basketball renown were improving rapidly. Both seem to lack a little in size but I like the Babcock mental approach.
