IF YOU HAVE HEART TROUBLE there is no remedy like a gift of good jewelry. It need not necessarily be expensive. It will not be if you buy it here.

IF THE QUALITY OF OUR JEWELRY was as low as the prices it would be pretty poor stuff. But it isn't. So you can fix up that heart trouble by spending a little money here for jewelry that any one would be glad to receive and proud to wear.

The mystery in the disappearance of Charles Edmunds, a native of Ludlow, Pa., and recently of London, Eng., has in a measure been explained by the finding of clothing letters, railway tickets and a photograph, which were recently picked up by Nat J. Kline at a desolate spot near North Webster, in Kosciusko county. The coat was in shreds as if torn by ravenous wolves or other wild animals.—Goshen Democrat.

To patrons of the power Company.

The voltage will be back to normal by the end of this week, and those who have been using lamps on the low voltage are advised to renew them in order to get better light as the low voltage has rendered them inefficient. Those desiring the "Tungsten" lamp can use the 40 watt at the same price of the old 16 c. p. This will give you 50 per cent more light than the latter at the same price. The average life of the "Tungsten" light is 1500 hours.

Harvey Rottz has on display in his store, at Cromwell, the head of a large pike. It was found some time ago, by George Lung floating in the waters of Lake Wawasee. The head and body was still intact when found and it is estimated that the fish weighed about 35 or 40 pounds. It is supposed, from the looks of the fish, that it had been killed by dynamite. It is the largest head of any fish we ever saw come out of Lake Wawasee.—Cromwell News.

It is a fact though perhaps not generally known that on leaving your town by rail in purchasing a return ticket you help your own by increasing the passenger receipts at your station. To do so does not cost you any more and in the end it means considerable to your town. For instance when the town wants an improvement the officials call for the records of the business done at that station and take into consideration the amount done in determining whether or not to grant the improvement, so you see it means something to buy your ticket at your home station instead of some distant town.

Arnold and Olga Beckman gave a short recital on the piano before the pupils of the high school and seventh and eighth grades Tuesday morning. The pupils and teachers report that they play exceedingly well. The solos by Arnold show quite a great degree of skill. The young man will no doubt by application become complete master of the piano.

We are in receipt of several copies of the "Cooking Club" the magazine published by Tom Starr formerly located here but who has been in the printing business in Goshen for several years. The magazine is splendidly printed with a cover in color and is the most practical magazine we have seen, printed for the benefit of the housekeeper. It is full of good recipes and instructions for serving.

The future Thanksgiving days may be on Monday, says an exchange. There is a movement on foot more or less general over the country to have the annual day of thanks on the second day of the week for convenience. The Thursday holiday cuts the week in two and it makes it hard for some people to get away from home. While if the holiday were Monday, there would be two days in succession. Canada has declared in favor of Monday. President George Washington inaugurated the first Thanksgiving day on Thursday and the custom has been religiously followed. There is strong likelihood, however, of having it changed to Monday.

Wm. Rentfrow Dies.

A distressing accident occurred at the Ott saw mill Monday which resulted in the death of Wm. Rentfrow.

Mr. Rentfrow was working on the edger and had just sent a board into the machine which is an improved pattern, the board being sent through by means of feed rolls. It is supposed that Will thought the saw was through the board but it lacked a few inches. He evidently released the lever and the board was thrown with great force against his side.

Doctors were immediately summoned and he was taken to his home as soon as possible. He seemed to grow rapidly worse and it was decided to take him to the Post Graduate hospital at Chicago to undergo an operation.

Up to that time it was not thought the accident would necessarily prove fatal, however the message came over the wire late Wednesday that he had died in the hospital. The funeral will be held at the Church of God, Sunday at 10 o'clock with Rev. Bumpus officiating.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Mike's Plan to Economize.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire is the only member of the senate who is a physician, and therefore he delights in anecdotes relating to doctors. In the senate restaurant he convulsed a number of his colleagues by telling them of the efforts of an Irishman he knew who had been advised to consult an eminent New York specialist. The Irishman had lived in New England many years, and he had learned Yankee thrift. He demurred at going to the specialist on account of the large fee he probably would have to pay. Finally, however, he consented. After reaching the specialist's office, the Irishman's fears got the better of him again, and he decided to make a few inquiries to learn, if he could, what his visit would cost him. The waiting room was crowded, and Michael sat down beside a well dressed man who appeared to be waiting his turn. "Foine docther, I take it?" he remarked inquiringly. "A very eminent specialist. The greatest authority in his line, I think," replied the other. After asking a number of other questions Michael ventured to inquire how much it cost the stranger a visit. The stranger said that the specialist usually diagnosed the patient's case on the first visit and charged probably $250, and after that the patient was charged about $10 a visit.

Just at that moment the door opened into the specialist's private office, and Michael bounded over without waiting his turn. With outstretched hand he greeted the physician: "Well, here I am again, docther."—New York Times.

Senator Probably Had a Cold.

Senator Lodge was hiding up in one of the exclusive senate elevators the other day. Now, there are no elevators in all the world like the senate variety. They are the edition de luxe of all "lifts," and nobody but a senator may ride in one of them except at such odd times as a mere citizen may sneak a ride when no dignified statesman is looking. In other words, if a senator is using one of the elevators at the north end of the capitol no ordinary mortal may ride therein. But on this occasion while Senator Lodge was being carried upstairs an outsider who happened to be an acquaintance of the senator got aboard. He was smoking a large cigar. Senator Lodge sniffed. "One of Crane's cigars?" he remarked insinuatingly. "He buys them for 2 cents a thousand." "No," replied the senator's fellow passenger. "I just got this from your private secretary down in your committee room."—Boston Herald.

Crabbed Age.

At the dinner that the Chicago Press club gave not long ago in Edward Payson Weston's honor the veteran pedestrian said of old age: "Age is no crime, but you would think so from the way some people try to conceal it. We can give the lie to a man being gay, vigorous, buoyant, and it is foolish of us to resent our burdens of years in any other manner. 'The aged Ben Davies of St. Joseph' resented his years in a foolish, crusty, surly way. 'Hello, old man Davies,' an elderly St. Joseph lawyer said to him one morning. 'Old' Davies snarled. 'Old, hey? Well, how about yourself? I'm no older than you are. What's your earliest recollection?' 'The lawyer grinned at old man Davies and replied: 'Well, let me see. Yes, I think that's it. My earliest recollection is hearing folks say, 'There goes old man Davies.'"

An Overvaunted Virtue.

S. I. Kimball, the general superintendent of the life saving service, said the other day of an applicant for a certain post: "The man was recommended for his steadiness. Now, steadiness is a virtue, especially in life saving, that goes none too far. Whenever I think of it, I think of an old lady I used to know. 'Mrs. Madden,' a gentleman once said to this old lady, 'your neighbor, Herbert Bisbing, has applied to me for work. Is he steady?' 'Mrs. Madden threw up her hands. 'Steady, is it?' she said. 'Sure, if he was any steadier he'd be dead.'"

Don't Get Cold Feet

If you keep your feet warm and dry you won't take cold.

If you don't take cold you won't get sick.

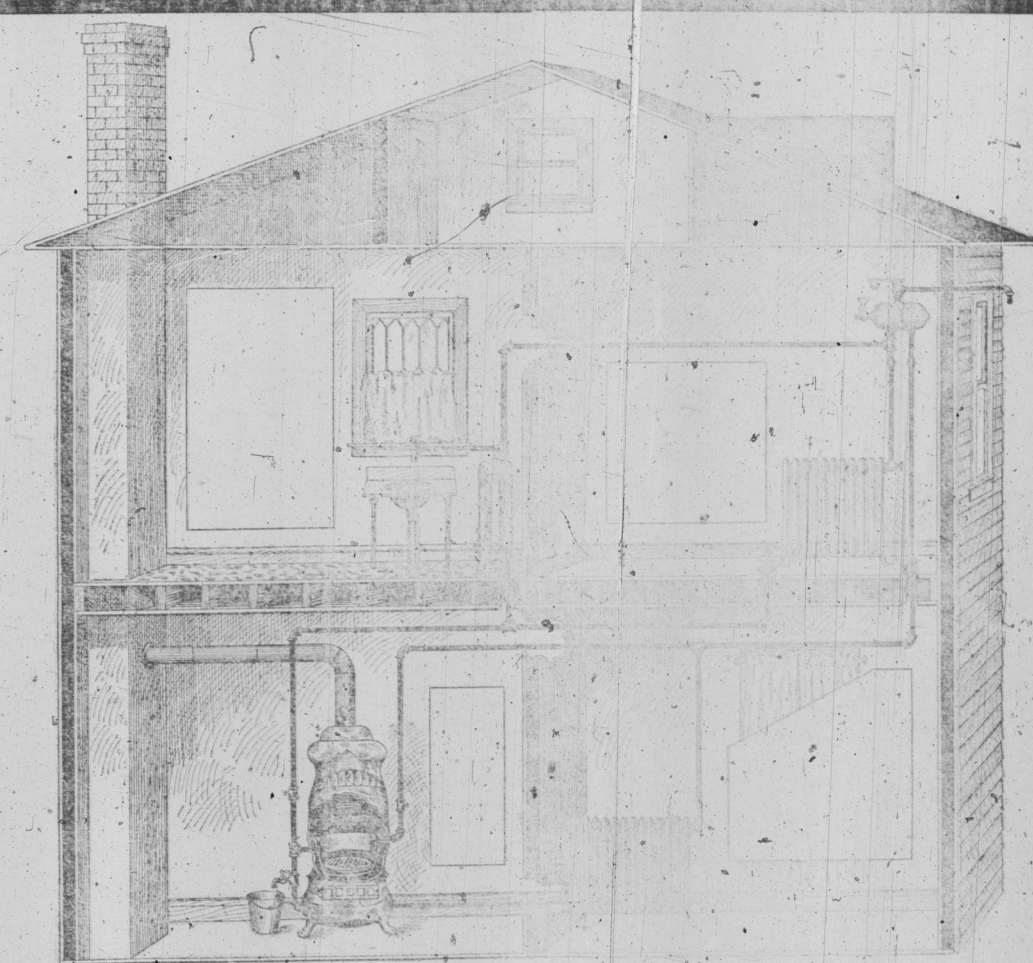

If you don't get sick you won't need to doctor.

It comes cheaper to buy rubbers and warm foot-wear from us than to pay doctor bills. Besides, who wouldn't rather have dry, warm feet than take nasty medicine—

WOULD YOU?

We have a very complete line of high grade rubbers and warm foot-wear which we are selling at prices as low as is consistent with the quality of goods.

Heating the entire house WITH ONE STOVE

The above illustration shows our HOLLAND HEATER placed in the living room stove which is connected with two Radiators placed in rooms above. The water in the boiler is heated, thus heating these rooms above with hot water from the stove in the living room.

Without Extra Cost for Fuel saving the expense of an extra stove and the labor of carrying up the ashes. Then there is the convenience of having hot water in the bath and for washing and for making tea or coffee. It will save you a great deal of money and keep the drinking water for stock in the right temperature—thus doing away with the expense of heating water.

If your house is heated with a hot air furnace no doubt there is a radiator in each room. If so, a HOLLAND HEATER can be placed in the furnace with a hot air furnace. Radiators placed in the cold rooms as shown in the above illustration will heat the rooms. The foregoing will undoubtedly bring in your mind the advantages of this system. You can enjoy at a minimal expense, this kind of heating. It is the only kind of heating that will keep your feet warm and dry, and your head clear.
