WHY BANKS?

LESSON XII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman
Public Education Commission, American Bankers Association

What is a Trust Company? Technically defined it is a bank that specializes in investment and fiduciary services in addition to general banking services. Humanly speaking, it is what its name implies—a place of trust.

J. H. Puelicher

INVESTMENT—lending money for income or profit to business and governments to "carry on." Such lending is often done through the purchase by investors of bonds selected by a bank or a trust company as safe and desirable.

FIDUCIARY—held in trust and confidence. For example, a trustee holds a man's estate for the benefit of his widow or children, cares for it faithfully, invests it prudently and uses it for their welfare in accordance with his wishes.

TRUST COMPANIES are able to fulfill these functions because of their experience in investments, because of their trained officers, and because of their continuous existence while an individual often knows nothing of investments, usually lacks experience and training, and may die during the life of the trust.

BACK TO NORMAL

In no period since the war has greater progress in the return to normal business conditions been made by industry, commerce and finance than during the past year. This re-establishment of normal conditions has been brought about by the working of purely economic influences. These influences and this result completely refute the arguments and pretensions of opportunist politicians and radical demagogues who have sought to bring about readjustment by political measures. These measures were aimed to give gratuitous advantages to the special interests and classes which the proposers assumed to represent, to the detriment of the general good.

The virtual disappearance, by natural economic processes, of the abnormalities that have persisted, as the long drawn out aftermath of the war, has removed whatever justification their presence seemed to give for governmental paternalism and for special measures of relief for particularly distressed classes. At best these measures were merely sedatives for psychological conditions and not real remedies for economic conditions. To that extent they served a purpose, but there is no further public good that they can serve. With normal conditions once more established it should be the resolute determination of all business men to resist any further effort at political interference with economic processes. The time is at hand for a thoroughgoing return to a free play of private enterprise and private initiative under unhampered competitive conditions. Government influence and political interference in respect to business should be reduced to an absolute minimum. We as bankers ask no special privileges for ourselves. Equally we are opposed to special privileges for other groups at the expense of the general welfare. The experience of the past few years has been one of the greatest demonstrations in history of the validity of the view that the community interests of a people are best served by the maximum degree of private enterprise and private initiative with the minimum of government regulation.—Declaration of the American Bankers Association.

The Wearing Of Glasses Denotes Intelligence

Age has nothing to do with it but common sense has. A child of five may need glasses just as badly as an adult of sixty. Perfect sight should be your first consideration and glasses worn if found necessary.

Broncho Buster Honored

Pete Vandemere, champion broncho buster of Canada at the Calgary stampede of 1923, and a friend of the prince of Wales, has recently been made Chief Sky High by the Sarcee Indians of Alberta. He showed such skill as a wild horse tamer and broncho buster on the Indian reserve that the Sarcees insisted on making him a chief. In 1923 Pete Vandemere was a guest of the prince of Wales at the "E. P." ranch, near High River, and rode Albert Kid, the wickedest horse at the Calgary stampede, for the entertainment of Alberta's royal rancher.

Day of Long Speeches

Evidence that commencement day speeches were even longer years ago than now is offered by a Methodist Episcopal church bulletin, which says: "Records of the early history of Dickinson college show that our great-grandfathers and grandmothers thought nothing of sitting through an entire day of speechmaking to see their sons and daughters graduate. The salutatory oration, delivered in Latin, was scarcely less flowery than the string of speeches that followed. A two-hour intermission allowed the auditors a brief respite to normalcy."

His Reward

"Howdy, Tohe!" saluted an acquaintance from Slippery. Slap. "How'd you come out in that poker game tuther night?" "I didn't get no money, Newt," replied Tohe Sage of Sandy Mush. "but great gosh, look at the experience I had!"—Kansas City Times.
