IN CONSTIPATION, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

For fifty-eight years this medicine has been successfully used in millions of households all over the civilized world. Because of its merit and popularity GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER is found today wherever medicines are sold. 30 and 90 cent bottles.—Adv.

Lives Long Without Food

To have lived without food or drink for four years is the startling claim made by an invalid woman in Madrid Spain. Two doctors have examined her and made a report to the Academy of Medicine. As yet there is no hint of the nature of their verdict. The woman had gastritis four years ago, and can take nothing by the mouth. She has had injections of phosphorus and various narcotics, but declares that she had nothing more. She is weak but able to speak.

New Bird Sanctuary

A bird sanctuary comprising 20 acres has been bequeathed to the Rhode Island Audubon society. It is in the southwestern part of the state, about eight miles from Westerly. Trees, shrubs and berry bushes will be planted and the whole tract converted into an ideal refuge where students may enjoy exceptional opportunity for observation of wild bird life. The income from a trust fund of $15,000 will be used to maintain the sanctuary.

Chains in Old Watches

The fuse chain used in the old English watches was manufactured by hand. The little blanks for each side of the links and the connecting pieces from link to link were knocked out with a punch and die. The pins for rivets, the riveting and the finishing of the finished chain by stoning and polishing, were all done by hand. The use of fusee and chain as an equalizer of motive power is now limited to marine chronometers.

Selecting Frocks for Young Girls

A thrill, and one of the sweetest, comes once in a lifetime when the first party dress is selected, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. Nothing has ever seemed or will ever seem quite so important and nothing has ever been known to give more satisfaction, more beatific contentment. It is the early dawn of that peace of mind and poise that come from the feeling that one is well dressed, and to the woman of discriminating taste this feeling is of supreme importance all through her life.

Whenever that great event happens, whether it is just a children's party or something more pretentious a few years later, the occasion is never to be forgotten. The frocks of very little people mean to them a fresh frock not too good to be spoiled by play. The real thrill comes when the affair is a real party.

Parents who have the understanding that all properly trained parents should have make a supreme effort to meet the occasion, and a clever couturiere co-operates with more enthusiasm.

slasm than she can ever feel in the work she does for grownups. It is a challenge to the intuition, the taste, the fine sense of propriety in the artist, the making of this party dress, and it is not an easy task. It is vitally important that the young person shall show she is no longer a baby. Also that she shall not appear too grownup or be dressed too sophisticated.

We Americans have much to learn from the people of England and the continent. They all delight to dress their children as "young" as possible, which seems to keep them so. This is what every woman devoutly desires, but the thing that is most elusive among the small fry this side of the water. The shingled head has done much to equalize the years, and the little girl and the debutante are so much alike that the distinction is not always simple. Not any of these considerations discount the importance of that first party dress.

Black Velvet Is in Vogue

Black velvet is used by many of the designers of dresses for young girls, and most people consider it well to have at least one black velvet frock in the girl's winter wardrobe. One model just brought out is unusually smart. It is cut after the pattern of the latest blouse, almost to the knee, to which is added a slightly gored flounce having large motifs in scarlet silk chain-stitch embroidery applied over the joining. A piping in scarlet silk outlines all the edges of the frock, which is sleeveless and cut in slightly bateau line at the neck.

In a unique and particularly dainty little party dress, pale blue grosgrain ribbon with plicated edges and shot with silver is used in straight bands across the neck, in stripes down the sides from shoulder to hem, and tied in a bow to hold the slight fullness at the waistline under each arm.

The vogue of ribbon in children's frocks is illustrated in many different styles. On one delicious little frock, pale yellow moire ribbon is sewn perpendicularly in strips close together, covering the entire front and back of

The styles in frocks for little girls of the difficult age, when angular lines and awkwardness are the rule, have never been more attractive than they are this season. With infinite skill Parisian artists have modified the extremes with which even the children's and misses' clothes have lately been marked and have seized upon the new features that best become the younger people.

Short Puffed Sleeves

The latest ideas in sleeves—the short puffed sleeve that gives such a quaint effect in dancing frocks and the long sleeve that adds demure dignity to the daytime dress—are among the welcome changes in styles for children. Another change is the length of skirt, still so very short for the tiny tots, but perceptibly longer for the girl whose legs so quickly outgrow her silhouette. And there are the collar and cuff sets that add such an air of daintiness to a simple frock.

These points and others combine to present a jeune fille style that is delightful, illustrated in a number of models created by some of the most important designers in Paris. People of such prestige as Paquin, Alice Bernheim, Chanel and Vionnet delight in making fashions for young and very young people, giving them all the subtle charm, fine quality and tone one might look for in the gowns of a lady of importance in the beau monde. In these the most admirable restraint and the nicest sense of fitness are reflected. Many of the little models are works of art in the highest degree in the designing of clothes.

Paquin, for example, leaves for the moment his larger problems to create a sweetly pretty, altogether Parisian little party dress of baby blue taffeta, trimmed with border half the length of the skirt, with a crosswise shirring and strips of silver embroidery. Some of this shirring is applied on the front of the bodice, which is only slightly longer than the normal waistline. A narrow belt of silver ribbon is tied in a bow-knot, with ends at one side.

In sharp contrast to this winsome frock is a merry one of geranium pink velvet made quite plain, with a suggestion of the d'ecollete in its lines. The waist is perfectly plain, with a deep cape collar of plaited chiffon opening in front. The skirt, which ends just below the knee, is laid in deep box plaits, and has weft stiff cravat bows of ribbon sewn each side of the front, as the plaits meet.

Of still another quite different type is a robe de style done by a French modiste, in apple green taffeta. This frock has no furberies, but the skirt which is gathered full to the plain, sleeveless bodice, is trimmed with three bands of the silk, each scalloped at the edge. This little dress has the air of a "period" costume and is quite long.

Material Is Important

Lawin's things for children are usually important as to material, and they have a certain dignity which requires much skill to keep from them any suggestion of mature styles. One lately shown by a New York importer is distinctly smart, of dark blue velvet, embroidered on the pockets and down the front with gold-brown silk. The waist is a deep blouse. The skirt is laid in kilt plaits around the side and back, and is barely knee-length.

In another model from this house, a coat of hunter's green velvet is cut in straight line with a high, rather military collar, and is embroidered in silver down the front, wrists and neck. Lawin completes these chic little affairs by designing for each a variant of the cloche bonnet, and invariably adds ribbon streamers at the back.

Lingerie Suggestion

Silk broadcloth is excellent for lingerie and comes in a wide range of suitable colors. A pale lilac and a delicate peach are a happy change from the ubiquitous pink.

Fur-Lined Coats Lead in Fashions of Paris

The melon-shaped cuff is encountered frequently, and so is the straight cuff of fur that reaches to above the elbow on a cloth coat or dress. Cloth coats or silk coats lined and trimmed with fur easily outnumber the classical fur wraps in Paris this winter, says a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Colors are brighter than usual, to contrast with the darkness of the winter weather, although no one can separate the Parisienne from her favorite black and white. Not since the war have so much red, bottle green, glass green, royal blue and beige been seen in the daytime. There is also a particularly attractive shade of wine color that is used for three-piece costumes of ottoman, trimmed with that blue hare which is enjoying an unusual vogue. That most becoming Bois de Rose hue that was launched late last season is also in general evidence this winter.

Perhaps the new Austrian velours hats that are a positive epidemic have influenced color this winter, for they are to be had in the loveliest shades, and the French woman never favors a colored hat with her black clothes except for a fleeting fancy. Wherefore this season she has ordered her clothes to match the queer, peaked crowned hats that have caught on like wildfire in Paris.

Correctly Cut Skirt

The skirt tide is still rising, and while probably it will never reach the knee, its high level does not fall far short of that mark. The tight skimp skirt, however, has been replaced with a garment which, while it gives the effect of slowness, is widened by godets and plaittings which are both attractive and enveloping.

Newest Bracelet

A late fad is to wear a number of bracelets made of flexible gold or silver wire. Each one is set with a large semi-precious stone.

Passage in Bible

At a small chapel in a remote corner of one of the English Yorkshire villages, the appointed minister had failed to make his appearance at the time for beginning the usual service.

One of the waiting congregation, a local farmer rich in grace but meager of education—was eventually persuaded to officiate as substitute for the absent cleric. The lesson was the chapter from the Book of Daniel which contains the oft-recurring passage: "At what time shall ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery and dulcimer, and all kinds of music."

Three times the farmer, with evident trepidation, waded through the comprehensive catalogue of ancient Babylonian instruments.

When, however, he again came to "At what time ye shall hear," he paused for a moment, wiped the perspiration from his brow, and then continued: "It's t'same band again, friends. Ah needn't read 'em out."

Made House Sacred

In Arabia, as in many other countries, salt is the symbol of hospitality, and among the Arabs hospitality is almost a sacred thing. They tell of a thief who broke into a house one night and, in looting the place, came upon a small gold box. He opened it and inside it found another box, also of gold. That in turn held a third box, which was partly filled with a fine white powder. The thief tasted the powder and found that it was salt. Immediately he restored to their places all the valuables that he had gathered to carry off. He could not rob a house in which he had "eaten salt."—Youth's Companion.

Bees Work by Whistle

In Texas, says the Detroit News, a colony of bees has taken up their abode in a baggage car between the roof and the ceiling, and they do not seem to be the least disturbed by the fact that the car is making daily trips from one end of a little branch line. The baggage man is authority for the statement that the bees go and come by the whistle. When the whistle blows before starting the bees come in from all directions, and when the car reaches the end of the line they file out and scot for the honey.

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?
Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

MRS. J. W. SMALLENBARGER, N. Hyatt St., Tippecanoe City, Ohio, says: "My kidneys were weak and I became run down and had no energy. My back was lame and weak. If I took cold it settled in my kidneys and my back ached and pained dreadfully. My kidneys acted too often. I used Doan's Pills and they put my kidneys in good order. The backache left and I felt fine."

G. W. CLINE, 6th & Walnut St., Tippecanoe City, Ohio, says: "My kidneys troubled me for quite a long time. My back ached and pained, especially when I did any lifting or stooping. I couldn't rest at night and mornings I felt lame and stiff. My kidneys acted too freely. I used Doan's Pills and the aches and pains left my back and my kidneys were regulated."
