

Port's Department.

FOR THE VINCENTS GAZETTE.

(BY REQUEST.)

Americans no longer pause, But acquiesce to freedom's cause;
An' drop your great obligations, Come firm united let us be,
And still support America,
In preference to old Jackson.

The rights of man are now abused, By those who are themselves confused,
And why should we delay?
Let's up be doing all we can,
Support the Tariff every man,
And vote for Henry Clay.

He would support fair freedom's cause,
And aided by our wholesome laws,
All things would then go well, America would be again,
At once a happy, happy place, Where peace delights to dwell.

No nation's lady then would rise, Like Eve into our paradise,
And cause its overthrow;
No gloomy lines would then appear,
No dismal tidings strike the ear,
Of presidential woe.

And friendship then would fill each breast
And all our country be at rest, Secure from every harm,
The Godless Liberty, then would rise, From dark oblivion where she lies,
And every heart grow warm.

With love unto our country's cause, Would yield obedience to its laws,
And freedom's wish obey, Come then and let us all unite, Our country's interest keep in sight,
And vote for Henry Clay.

CAMILLUS.

FRIENDSHIP.

Friendship! sweet charmer of the soul, What beauties in thee dwell!
Thou canst man's erring heart control, When all things else would fail.

'Tis thou alone canst soothe the heart, When all around is sad;
Yes, thou canst cheerest ray's support, That makes the mourner glad.

When the poor soul is wrapp'd in grief,
And hope is almost dead,
'Tis thou canst give it sweet relief,
And raise the fainting head.

Thou canst revive the drooping breast,
And give new life to joy;
With thee the weary one can rest, When wrangling cares annoy.

THE MYSTERIOUS BELL.

A FRAGMENT.

It was a dead calm: the sun beamed Bright and beautiful upon the ocean, in setting glory, and all animation had given place to that overpowering listlessness, which none can form any conception of, but they who have experienced a long continued calm at sea.

I was leaning against the taffrail, gazing upon the dark waters below in that state of apathy, in which thought itself becomes too great an exertion, when suddenly a gentle breath of wind that swept along so lightly as to cause no ripple up on the glassy surface of the waveless deep, waited to my awakened sense, a tinkling sound, like the ringing of a small bell at an immense distance. The unusual circumstance aroused my dormant faculties, and I listened with breathless attention, but the flaw had passed, and all was again silent and deathlike.

I remained upon the same spot nearly an hour; it came not again; and at length overcome with drowsiness, I retired to my cabin. The next morning when I came upon deck, I found that the calm still continued, and the Captain was of opinion that it would last some days. I mentioned to him the incident that attracted my attention; but he laughed, and said I had been dreaming. He knew we were too far from land for any sound to reach us, and no vessel he said could have been near enough for me to hear the ringing of the bell, without also being in sight. "The mate agreed with him, but I observed one weather-beaten tar who was standing near to shake his head doubtfully, and his rugged countenance betraying great anxiety; but he said nothing. The morning passed away, and still the sea was untroubled by any breeze. After dinner, to while away the tedious hours, the captain and I sat down upon the quarter deck to cards—We had scarcely commenced playing, when I was startled by hearing the same bell like tones, so faint and far, that "nothing lived 'twixt them and silence." I called to the Captain to listen; he sat a moment without speaking; and then started up, exclaiming, "I hear it too!" The sailors must have noticed it also, for they were hushed and listening. The Captain went aloft with his glass, and looked in every direction. "I hear it," said he, "dimly, but I can see nothing; it cannot be from there, for we are more than fifty leagues from any land." The sailors stood upon the fore-castle in anxious groups, all but the old man, the singular expression of whose features I had remarked in the morning. He sat alone upon the windlass, with his hands folded, and his eyes intensely fixed upon the deck—but still he spoke not. Various conjectures were hazarded among us, but none that satisfactorily accounted for the noise. The afternoon passed, and the sun again set, while the tinkling sound still came floating over the waters. It was late before sleep closed my eyes that night. When the morning of the next day dawned, the Captain went again to the mast head with his glass, but no sails appeared upon the horizon—yet still the ceaseless bell was plainly to be heard, while not a breath of wind was to be felt. Noon came, and still the calm continued, and the sound approached nearer and nearer, when on a sudden the Captain from the top cried out:

"I see it now but what it is God only knows, it does not look like any craft that ever the hand of man fashioned." We all rushed towards the fore-castle, and in silence awaited the approach of this strange navigator. It came careering over the waters with a rapid motion, and as it drew near, exhibited to our wondering gaze a single black mast rising from the centre of what seemed a square and solid block of wood, but without yard or sail, nor did any living creature appear upon it. I proposed to take the boat and board it, but the sailors shook their heads, and the Captain was silent. Determined to discover the meaning of this phenomenon, I jumped into the boat, intending to scull to wards it, when the old soldier, seeing my resolution, declared that he would go with me; and the Captain after a moment's hesitation, also joined us. We rowed swiftly onwards to meet the object of our curiosity which was now within half a mile of the ship, and in a few minutes, were sufficiently near to perceive the bell, the ringing of which had announced its coming, at the top of the mast. It was green and rusty as if with age, and the sides of the non-descript barque were covered with barnacles, and tangled masses of seaweed immediately beneath the bell, which still swung from side to side with deafening din, was attached a deep sea line, passing over the side and descending into the water. The moment our boat touched this strange vessel, the bell ceased to toll and the floating mass became immovable.
We gazed upon it and upon each other in amazement, and at length the Captain, in a low and tremulous voice, proposed to return, but the sailor said, "no! It was an evil hour in which we met this accu-red"—(his voice sunk, and I could not distinguish what he uttered)—"but we have met it and we must not leave it thus. Let us haul upon this line." We did so for nearly twenty minutes, but with great difficulty, for it seemed as if some ponderous body at the extremity resisted our efforts.

At length the profound stillness that had hitherto prevailed amongst us was broken by the Captain, who looked down into the water, and exclaimed, "great God! what have we here!" We followed with our eyes the motion of his hands saw a large object glistening white beneath the waves, appearing like a gigantic corpse, wrapped in a white cloth and bound with cords. "Now may heaven shield us," said the seaman, in a husky voice, "it is the shrouded Demon of the Sea." As he spoke, he drew his knife from his belt, and in an instant severed the line. The body turned its white side flashing through the dark waters, and with the rapidity of lightning disappeared from our view.

BRAD CATCHING. There is a story, and which I believe is fact, of two boys going to take a jackaw's nest from a hole under the belfry-window in the tower of All Saints Church, Derby. As it was impossible to reach it standing within the bul-ding, and equally impossible to ascend to that height from without, they resolved to put a plank through the window; and while the heavier boy secured its balance by sitting on the end within, the lighter boy was to fix himself on the opposite end, and from that perilous situation reach the object of their desire. So far the scheme answered. The little fellow took the nest, and, finding it in five fledged young birds, announced the news to his companion. "Five, are there?" replied he; "then I'll have three." "Nay," exclaimed the other indignantly, "I run all the danger, and and I'll have the three." "You shall not," still maintaining the boy in the inside; "you shall not. Promise me three, or I'll drop you!" "Drop me, if you please," replied the little hero; but I'll promise you no more than two, upon which his companion slipped off the plank. Up tilted the end, and down went the boy, upwards of a hundred feet to the ground. The little fellow, at the moment of his fall, was holding his prizes by their legs, three in one hand, and two in the other; and they flying themselves descending, fluttered out their pinions instinctively. The boy, too, had on a stout carter's frock, secured round the neck, which, filling with air from beneath, buoyed him up like a balloon, and he descended smoothly to the ground; when, looking up, he exclaimed to his companion, "Now you shall have none!" and he ran away, sound in every limb, to the astonishment of the inhabitants, who with inconceivable horror, had witnessed his descent.

Mrs. S. C. Hall.

A quaint writer of sentences says, "I have seen women so delicate, that they were afraid to ride, for fear the horse might run away; afraid to sail for fear the boat might overset; afraid to walk for fear the dew might fall; but I never saw one afraid to get married."

A man that used to be drunk when he came home, wallowed about the floor, and said he paid rent for the house, and he would be where he pleased; at last, he falls into the fire, and the maid runs to her mistress and told her she could not get him out. "Let him alone," says she, "he pays rent for the house, and he may be where he pleases."

A gentleman presenting a young lady to his mother, said, "Madam, this is Miss P. and she is not so great a fool as she looks to be." "There madam," said the young lady, "lies the difference between your son and me."

A PRETTY RIDDLE.

I will consent to all you desire, said a young female to her lover, on condition that you give me what you have not, what you never can have, and yet what you can give. What did she ask him for?

ANOTHER RIDDLE.

A gentleman who was paying his addresses to a lady, at last summoned up sufficient courage to ask if they were agreeable to her, and whether he might flatter himself with a chance of ultimate success?
The lady replied, "Stripes," telling the gentleman to transpose the letters so as to form out of them another word, which word was her answer. The reader who can find out the word, need never fear being unplussed by a lady.

Cure for the Cramp in the Stomach.—I have seen, said a correspondent to Mr.
Donnum, the most violent cases of cramp in the stomach immediately relieved by drinking freely of warm water sweetened with molasses or coarse brown sugar, when opium or its various preparations and nothing else would give relief to the patient. Believing that this hint may probably be the means of relief to some one or more afflicted with the above awful complaint, I think it my duty to make this communication.—Norwich paper.

SAMUEL HILL, respectfully informs his friends and patrons, that a portion of the establishment of the VINCENTS GAZETTE, has been transferred to R. Y. CADDINGTON, and will hereafter be printed and published by SAMUEL HILL and R. Y. CADDINGTON. They beg leave to submit to their friends and the public, the subjoined prospectus of their new paper.

PROSPECTUS

VINCENTS GAZETTE,

A Weekly Newspaper established at Vincennes, Ind.
EDITED BY SAMUEL HILL, AND PUBLISHED BY SAMUEL HILL & R. Y. CADDINGTON.

This paper was commenced in October 1830, and has been published regularly ever since, a period of fourteen months, a time sufficient to test its usefulness to the community. During this period its political character has been strongly developed, and its leading features have been in strict accordance with what has been emphatically termed the "American system," namely, the support of home industry by a protecting tariff on foreign goods; the encouragement of internal improvements; and in all cases a decided preference of measures and not men.

A free press is the palladium of the people's rights. The GAZETTE is unwaveringly executive, and unswayed by governmental or "Party Authority" patronage. It looks to the people only for support. It is therefore at this time, that the Proprietors solicit the particular attention and require the patronage and assistance of their friends, and those who agree with them in politics.

TERMS.

The GAZETTE will be published every Saturday, on a super royal sheet, and issued to subscribers in Vincennes, or placed in the postoffice for distant subscribers, at two dollars per annum in advance, two dollars and fifty cents six months after subscribing, or three dollars at the expiration of the year. As want of punctuality is a formidable drawback, payment in advance would be preferred.

Country produce demanded in Vincennes at the gross price of 100 cents per barrel, or 100 cents per bushel, will be received at the market price in payment for subscriptions.

Advertisements will be inserted at one dollar per square for three insertions, and twenty-five cents per square for each subsequent insertion.

Subscribers will be at liberty to discontinue their paper on paying arrears; but in doing so, they will be bound to pay the postage, and in the terms, will be considered a new engagement.

The heirs of said deceased, }

AND now at this day comes Elijah Chapman, administrator of the estate of Elijah Chapman, deceased, by David McDonald his attorney, and suggests that the personal estate of the said deceased is insufficient to pay the debts and demands outstanding against said estate; and appears to the satisfaction of the court here, that one of the heirs-to-wit, Caleb Chapman is a non-resident of the state of Indiana, and is therefore ordered that he appear here on the first day of the March Term, 1832, of this Court, and show cause why the real estate of the said deceased should not be sold and made assets for the discharge of the debts and demands aforesaid.
And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the "Vincennes Gazette" a newspaper printed and published in Vincennes, for four weeks in succession.

BICKNELL'S REPORTER,

Counterfeit Detector, and Price Current.

The first year of this publication having been concluded, the "Reporter" will hereafter be published weekly a well as semi-monthly. We feel gratified to the public for the liberal patronage awarded us, (having now a more extensive circulation than any other newspaper in the United States) and shall leave no measure untried, in order to render this journal valuable in all respects, not only to merchants, banking institutions, brokers and keepers of hotels, but to the community in general. We have engaged the literary assistance of several gentlemen well known as writers, and have correspondents in all the principal cities and towns in the United States. We also receive weekly more than five hundred new papers from different parts of the United States, so that whatever information may be circulated through the medium of the "Reporter," and the resources from whence it is derived, we can confidently state, may, in all cases, be relied upon as correct. Bank notes are being counterfeited in every direction; and on the arrival of every vessel from Europe, or the creation of every national excitement, the state of the market varies. Every person should, therefore, be possessed of some certain guide by which all such information might be received by the earliest mails, and at such a rate as not to render its possession an exorbitant tax. Such a Journal is exactly what we endeavor to render the "Reporter," in an effort to accomplish which, neither pains nor expense will at any time be spared on the part of the publisher. Every number will contain a carefully corrected Bank Note list, list of Broken Banks, Prices Current, and Prices of Gold, Prices of Bank and Insurance Stock, and a description of all Counterfeit and Altered Notes in circulation throughout the United States; and all such information as is likely to throw light upon the subjects embraced in the design of this Journal. The latest foreign news, together with much original and well selected matter, will also be found in the columns of the "Reporter."

The terms of the weekly publication are $3 per annum—and semi-monthly $2—single copies 12 cents. Address—
