CHOLERA REMEDY.

From our correspondent at Nashville, under date of the 6th, we learn that the cholera has abated, both in the number and violence of the cases. He says, that great reliance is placed on the use of warm salt and water as an emetic; he mentions one physician (Doctor McNairy) who has employed it with great success, having attended fifty cases in the last ten days, and losing but one in the number. "It is more to be valued," says he, "because of its being at once within the reach of every body. It requires no skill to administer it. Of its efficacy I have had too many evidences to doubt. I saw it practised on an old friend, who had a most violent attack, and in half an hour, he was perfectly relieved, slept several hours quietly and is now restored, except his strength. If this terrible scourge should visit you or yours, try this remedy; dissolve a table spoonful of salt in a common sized tumbler of hot water, and three or four glasses will generally vomit—keep up the vomiting until the stomach is completely unloaded, then a dose of oil, or oil and a small portion of calomel." This remedy is a simple one. Should the Cholera again visit us, would it not be well for our physicians to try it?

A Gig made by a Blind Man.—At the paint shop of Messrs. Harris & Clement, in this village, we recently saw a Gig, the wood work of which was made through out by a man who was entirely blind. The workmanship of this vehicle, to be sure, would not well compare with that of some which stood near it, but we have seen much worse from the hands of persons who possessed the keenest vision. The father of this unfortunate individual has informed us that he is exceedingly patient, and discovers considerable ingenuity in the manufacture of various articles; that within a year or two, without any assistance, he has shingled a common sized barn and made the doors; he can tell whether it is night or day, but cannot distinguish one object. His name is Chase, and he resides in Wendell, an adjoining town. What might such habits and such a genius accomplish in an asylum for the blind, where talent and industry would meet a proper encouragement. —Newport (N. H.) Spec.

SCOTCH METHOD OF TEACHING MUSIC.

A Highland piper having a pupil to teach, declined to rack his brains with the names of semibreves, minims, crotchets and quavers. "Here Donald, gie's a blast! So, so—vera weel blawn mun; but what's sound Donald without sense? ye may blaw, and blaw forever, without making a tune on it, and I dinna tell ye how the queer things on the paper maun help ye. Ye see that big fallow w' a round open face, (pointing to a semibreve between the two lines of a bar) he moves slowly fra that line to this, whiles ye beat one w' yer feet, and gie a lang loud blast. When ye's put a leg to him, ye make twae o' him, and he'll move twice as fast, when ye black his face he'll run four times faster than the fallow w' a white face; when after blacking his face, ye'll bend his knee, or tie his legs, he'll hop eight times faster than ye chap I showed ye first. Now when'er ye blaw ye're pipes, Donald, mind ye this, that the faster ye tie these fallows legs the quicker they maun dance, and the faster they'll be sure to rin!"

A STREET DIALOGUE ON DIET.

CUFFEE.—Wy Cato, wat you goin to do wid dem are quash, and dem are mutton chop, wat you got in your basket?
CATO.—Wy wat a fool question you ax, Cuff! I'm a goin to eat 'em, to be sure.
CUFFEE.—Wat 'em you gosh! You die, Cato, sartan's you eat 'em.
CATO.—Wat you I do, Cuff wat den? I must die when my time come, watter no.
CUFFEE.—Yes, but you die fore your time come, sartan you take no better care your dunn.
CATO.—Collar kill you, sartan you eat dem are nassy quash and dem are oges mutton chop.
CATO.—[Looking black.] You tink so, Cuff-fee?
CUFFEE.—Tink so! Wy I no tink nothin about it—I know so. I hab de proof all around me. Twenty-lebber my acquaintance die since de Collar come—and dey all, widout deception, eat one ting or anudder. Wat you tink o' dat, Cato, ha?
CATO.—Dat is very alarmin, I muss say, Cuff-fee; but are you sure any on 'em eat de quash and de mutton chop?
CUFFEE.—Are I sure! Wy how long will you spate my word, Cato? I tell you dere was Sambo Cesar, he eat a hearty meal o' pork and tators, and next day he was undernece Poltaphar's field. Den dere was Pomey Ticklapp, he eat a hearty dinner o' green pease and tinging bean, and in less an tree hour, he catch a cramp, turn blue in de face, and folly arter Sambo Cesar. Den dere was Dinal Phyllis, a strong, hearty wench as ebber walk on two leg, she pay no tention to her dunn, but she eat hot corn and suckfish, and now she undernece de corn and too. Den, moreover, dere was Tom Traishin, wat kept a widdin house down siller, he eat sebben hard bile eggs and a pown a gammon for supper, so dat dey needn't be los; and gosh almighty! fore de mornin light he wake up in totler worl. Den, moreover, besides, dere was—O, lolly!—dere was ebber so many obber die wid eatin dis ting, and dat ting, and obber ting ting—I tell you, Cato, dat unless you pay more tention to you dunn you sartanly die, sure you hb.
CATO.—Wat must I eat, den, Cuffee?
CUFFEE.—Eat! Why, de sassy way is not to eat nothin at all, den you no 'spose yourself.

The Devil Fish and the Clergyman.—A reverend Clergyman of Philadelphia, while on a visit to a brother divine at Cape May, was invited to accompany his friend and others, on a fishing excursion in a whale boat. When some distance from the shore, they discovered a "devil fish," and fastened to it with a whale iron which they had with them. The fish, probably not liking such striking proofs of attachment from entire strangers, made off with great velocity, drawing the boat after him, to the terror of the Philadelphia, and great delight of the party. The Philadelphia could not resist asking his friends the occasion of their laughter, and received for answer, that it was enough to make one laugh to see the Devil running off with a couple of Ministers.

PROPERTIES OF THE SUGAR CANE.

Dutrone calls sugar the most perfect alimentary substance in nature. Dr. Rush says, in common with all who have analyzed it, that "sugar affords the greatest quantity of matter of any subject in nature." Used alone, it has fattened horses and cattle in St. Domingo for a period of several months. The plentiful use of sugar in diet is one of the best preventives that has been discovered of diseases produced by worms; nature seems to have implanted a love for this aliment in all children as if it were on purpose to defend them from those diseases. Sir John Pringle tells us, that the plague has never been known to visit any country where sugar compose a material part of the diet of the inhabitants. Dr. Rush, Dr. Cullen, and many other physicians, are of opinion, that the frequency of malignant fevers has been lessened by the use of sugar. Dr. Rush observes, that, in disorders of the breast, sugar is the basis of many agreeable remedies, and it is useful in weakness and a crid deluxions of other parts of the body. Dr. Fothergill was very anxious that the price of sugar, should be sufficiently moderate, to render it accessible to the mass of the people. From experiments made by some eminent French surgeons, it appears to be an antiscorbutic; and this is confirmed by well known facts. A writer from India observes, "The comfort and health arising to a poor family from a small patch of sugar cane can only be known to such as may have observed them in the time of cutting the cane, and noted the difference of their looks before the crop begins and a month after."

The Cochon Chinese consumes a great quantity of sugar; they eat it generally with rice. There is little else to be obtained in all the inns of the country but rice and sugar; it is the common nourishment of travellers. Domestic animals, horses, buffaloes, elephants, are all fattened with sugar cane in Cochon China."

Gen. Washington was a good Boy.—The Marquis de Lafayette repaired to Fredericksburg, previous to his departure for Europe, in the fall of 1784, to pay his parting respects to the mother of Washington.

Conducted by one of her grandsons, he approached the house, when the young gentleman observed "There sir, is my grandmother." Lafayette beheld, working in the garden, clad in domestic-made clothes, and her gray head covered by a plain straw hat, the Mother of his hero! The Lady smiled him kindly, observing—"Ah, Marquis! you see an old woman—but come, I can make you welcome to my poor dwelling, without the parade of changing my dress."

Much as Lafayette had heard and seen of the nation before, at this interesting interview he was charmed and struck with wonder. When he considered her great age, the transcendent elevation of her son who, surpassing all rivals in the race of glory, bore the palm alone, and at the same time discovered no change in her plain, yet dignified life and manners, he became assured that the Roman matron could flourish in the modern day.

The Marquis spoke of the happy effects of the revolution, and the goodly prospect which opened upon independent America, stated his speedy departure for his native land, and paid the tribute of his heart, his love and admiration of her illustrious son. To the encomiums which he had lavished upon his hero and paternal chief, the matron replied in words: "I am not surprised at what George has done, for he was always a very good boy." —Ladies' Magazine.

It is calculated that in the space of five years, Don Miguel has imprisoned 26,270 of his beloved subjects. 16,000 have been transported to Angola, to the Cape Verd Islands, and to Mozambique. 13,000 have been forced to fly from his paternal government. 13,700 have perished on the scaffold, and 5000 are either in concealment or wandering about the kingdom, to avoid a similar fate.

The story of the man aged 94, and his son, 70, who lately applied for pensions, in Chenango county, N. Y. puts us in mind of that of a man of 75, who was found crying at the step of a door. Upon inquiring the cause of his grief, it was found that his father had been flogging the young rogue for having thrown stones at his grand father.

Vicious habits are so great a stain to human nature, and so odious in themselves, that every person, actuated by right reason, would avoid them, though he was sure they would be always concealed both from God and man, and had no future punishment entailed upon them.

A tradesman who attempts to monopolize business, or to injure his competitors by underselling, is guilty of high treason against society, as he violates that integrity and good will, without which the social compact would soon be broken asunder. I always suspect that such a man has not paid for his goods, or sells those of an inferior quality.

It is a secret known to but few, yet of no small use in the conduct of life, that when you fall into a man's conversation, the first thing you should consider is whether he has a greater inclination to hear you, or that you should hear him. —Steele.

Important.—A machine has lately been invented to kill Bed-bugs. By the application of steam power, ten thousand can be killed per minute—if you catch them. There's the Bite

DISSOLUTION

PARTNERSHIP.

THE PARTNERSHIP heretofore existing between Daniel R. Jacobs and Ephraim B. Reynolds, of New-Harmony, Posey County, Indiana, was dissolved by mutual consent on the 15th day of May. All persons having claims against the said firm, will please to present their accounts to D. R. Jacobs for settlement—and all persons indebted, are earnestly requested to come forward and settle their accounts, by note or otherwise, without delay, (on save cost.) It is essentially necessary the concern should be closed immediately.

NOVELIST'S MAGAZINE.

Office of the Novelist's Magazine, Athenian Buildings, Franklin Place, Philadelphia.

THE cheap diffusion of Literature is a characteristic of the age in which we live. Printing has acquired a degree of perfection among the arts, which is deeply felt in the innumerable extension and multiplication of its glorious benefits. The invention of the Steam Press will hereafter mark an era.

Every variety of Literature, from the most recondite works of science, to the lighter effusions of imagination, is thrown from the Press with inexhaustible rapidity, and the appetite for novelty is constantly supplied with the means of gratification. Nor is it alone in the accumulation of good books that this influence is exercised; its operation is felt with equal power in the floating publications—the Periodical works of the times, Reviews, Magazines, Gazettes, &c. &c. &c.—increase and multiply with astonishing fertility; and, because of the cheapness with which they can be afforded, they are accessible to every reader.

One of the most striking and peculiar features in the character of the Literature of the present day, is the adaptation of the periodical form to the publication of standard and voluminous works. Among the earliest to adopt and pursue this method, we claim to be placed; and the flattering patronage already bestowed on our "Novelist's Magazine," gives assurance that our experiment will be crowned with full success.

The principal object of the NOVELIST'S MAGAZINE, is to furnish a choice selection of approved novels, in such a form, and upon such terms, as may make them generally desirable and generally attainable. For this purpose, the best works, both of the present and past, are chosen, and reprinted in a way which, while it enables us to furnish a large amount for a cheap rate, combines also elegance and excellence of mechanical execution. The Magazine being printed on a large sheet, with double columns of small type, contains in each semi-monthly number of forty-eight pages, as much as two ordinary sized duodecimo volumes. In the eight numbers already published, we have given Henry Masterion; the Book of Beauty—containing the Talisman, the Enchanter, Rebecca, and several other small novels; Barney Mahoney; Clan Albin; Marriage in High Life; the Mourning Ring; a Year and a Day, &c.; and in the ninth number, now published, we have commenced an Original Novel, prepared expressly for the Magazine, by a gentleman of Maryland. This will be found highly interesting in the story and characters, and well written as regards the manner and narrative.

The present size of the Novelist's Magazine has been objected to by some, as being too large and unwieldy. To obviate this, we have determined to reduce the page in our next volume to a large duodecimo, and at the same time increase the number of folios to 108, so that each two numbers, or four, according to the pleasure of the subscriber, will form a volume. These volumes as they will conform to the standard novels, in general use, will be better adapted for preservation in libraries.

In the progress of the ensuing volume, we mean to furnish several very rare and valuable works of the elder novelists, which are now almost entirely out of print; and from the announcements made in the English Reviews, we have no doubt that we can also present to our readers several novels now in preparation by the popular writers of the day.

Those persons who are desirous of obtaining copies of the present volume of the Novelist's Magazine, are requested to transmit their orders as soon as convenient, as the edition we are now printing is limited to a number which is nearly exhausted.

The terms are $5 per annum, payable in advance—and all letters must be addressed, post paid, to.

LA MOTT'S COUGH DROPS.

VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND CONSUMPTIONS.

THIS Elixir, in its original form of prescription, has stood the test of twenty years experience, in the general use of it and is now offered, with the addition of some articles from the vegetable kingdom, the virtues of which, have been fully attested and highly appreciated, which render this composition peculiarly adapted to the present prevailing disorders of the breast and lungs, leading to consumption. Common colds and coughs, which are occasioned by obstructed perspiration, will readily yield to its influence, removing those troublesome irritations, which acts as a constant stimulant to coughing. It eases pain, and induces rest to an eminent degree. Persons afflicted with pulmonary complaints, bleeding of the lungs, &c., spasmodic asthma, palpitation of the heart, and consumptive affections, even in the most advanced periods of life will find immediate relief, from its remarkable power of diminishing irritability of the system, and the velocity of the circulation, and by cleansing and healing the disordered parts. It also affords immediate relief in the whooping cough.

The above medicines can be had at Vincennes of Messrs S. & W. Wise, in Princeton of Daniel & Deven, in New Harmony of Robert Robinson and in Lawrenceville, Illinois, of J. C. Reiley.

GENERAL AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL ESTABLISHMENT.

COMPRISING.

A Seed and Implement Store, a General Agricultural Agency, and the office of the American Farmer, at No. 16 South Calvert street Baltimore, in connection with a stock and Experimental Farm, Garden and Nursery in the vicinity.

The subscriber, proprietor of the above named establishment, respectfully informs Farmers, Gardeners and the public generally, and dealers particularly, that he is prepared to execute orders in any or all of its departments; and he solicits those who feel interest in his plan to furnish him with their addresses (free of expense to him,) on receipt of which he will forward to them an extra number of his paper, the American Farmer, containing a full description of his establishment, and a priced catalogue of Seeds, &c. for sale in every village of the Union a quantity large or small of choice garden seeds would find a ready and profitable sale, and the advertiser has prepared his Seed Store specially on every liberal terms, for cash or acceptance in Baltimore, with first rate seeds, prepared and labelled, put up in boxes expressly for country dealers. He ventures to affirm that for those who desire any of the articles comprised in his extensive establishment, there is not in the U. States a more eligible place than this to apply for them, as it is a repository in which are concentrated, or may be procured in short notice, from all parts of our country (and not a few from remote parts of the earth) a large variety many of which are very rare and valuable, of Seeds, Plants, Trees, Roots, Vines, Domestic Animals, Books, implements, and last, though not least, a constant fund of timely and important information in almost every subject interesting to a cultivator of the soil. This last is imported weekly to subscribers, for a small annual contribution, through the columns of the American Farmer, in which are indicated also by advertisement or otherwise, the supplies of choice commodities, both animal and vegetable as they are received at the establishment. The subscriber is agent also for the principal Nurseries and Gardens in the Union; and for several celebrated breeders of fine cattle, sheep and other domestic animals;—also for the United Society of Shakers, at New Lebanon, N. Y. a full assortment of whose celebrated Garden Seeds, fresh and genuine, may at all times be had from him, whole sale and retail on the best terms.
