

POETICAL.

THOUGHTS.

BY BERNARD BARTON.

We have lov'd through want, we have lov'd through wrong,
We have felt the blight of the slanderer's tongue,
And the heartless worldling's scornful eye,
Has moved at our calm fidelity.

Even such has been our lot, my love,
For many a dreary day;
And still our sky is dark above,
And dreary is our way.
But have we not, at seasons known
The soul-sustaining power,
Of joy the heart may call its own,
In sorrow's darkest hour?

'Tis something, in the toil and care,
Of life's rough thorny road,
To know that each is prompt to share
The other's gallant load.
And oh! how much, when hearts are wrung
And sick with hope deferred,
From kind affection's gentle tongue,
One kind and cheerful word.

'Tis more, amid the world's rude din,
And feverish strife,
To know still brightly burn within
Our love, the light of life.
Like that lone star which shines by night,
To guide the storm-tossed bark:
It seems yet lovelier to the sight,
When all besides is dark.

True love's sustaining sympathy,
Which makes it dear to live,
The worldling's wealth can never buy,
The world can never give.
And sweeter, holier is the thought—
What there to earth is given,
May with yet purer thoughts be fraught,
Eternally in heaven.

TAKING THINGS COOLLY.

"You're an infernal scoundrel!" said a fierce-looking gentleman, the other day, coming up in great wrath to a Yankee, who was standing quietly on the sidewalk, "you're an infernal scoundrel, sir!" "That's news to me," returned the Yankee, quietly. "News! you scoundrel—do you call it news?" "Entirely so," "You needn't think to carry it off so quietly. I say you're an infernal scoundrel! and I'll prove it." "I beg you will not. I should not like to be proved a scoundrel." "No, I dare swear you would not. But answer me directly—did you, or did you not say, in the presence of certain ladies of my acquaintance, that I was a mere—"

"Call? O no, sir; the truth is not to be spoken at all times." "The truth! Do you presume to call me a calf, sir?" "O no, sir, I call you nothing." "It's well you do; for if you had presumed to call me—" "A man—I should have been grossly mistaken." "Do you mean to say I am not a man, sir?" "That depends on circumstances." "What circumstances?" "If I should be called as evidence, in a court of justice, I should be bound to speak the truth." "And you would say I was not a man, hey? Do you see this cow-skin?" "Yes—and I've seen it with surprise, ever since you came up." "With surprise! Why, did you suppose I was such a coward that I dare not use the article when I thought it was demanded?" "Shall I tell you what I thought?" "Do, if you dare." "I thought to myself: What use has a calf for a cow-skin?" "You distinctly call me a calf, then?" "If you will insist upon it, you may."

"You hear, gentlemen," speaking to the bystanders, you hear the insult. What shall I do with the scoundrel?" "Dress him! dress him!" exclaimed twenty voices, with shouts and laughter. "That I'll do at once." Then turning again to the Yankee, he cried out fiercely, "Come one step this way, you rascal, and I'll flog you within an inch of your life." "I've no occasion." "You're a coward." "Not on your word." "I'll prove it, by flogging you out of your skin." "I doubt it." "I am a liar then, am I?" "Just as you please." "Do you hear that, gentlemen?" "Ay," was the unanimous response; "you can't avoid dressing him now." "O heavens grant me patience! I shall fly out of my skin." "So much the better for your pocket. Calf skins are in good demand." "I shall burst." "Not here in the street, I beg of you; it would be quite disgusting."

"Gentlemen can I any longer avoid flogging him?" "Not if you're able," was the reply. "At him! at him! at him!" Thus provoked—thus stirred up and encouraged—the fierce gentleman went like lightning at the Yankee. But before he could strike a blow, he found himself disarmed of his cow skin and lying on his back under the spout of a neighboring pump, whither the Yankee had carried him to cool his rage; and before he could recover from his astonishment, at such unexpected handling, he was wet as a thrice-drowned rat, from the cataracts of water which his grave antagonist had liberally pumped upon him. His courage, by this time, had, like that of the valiant Bob Acres, "boozed out at the palms of his hands;" and he declared, as he arose and went dripping away from the pump, that he would never trust to meet appearances again; and the devil might undertake to cow him a cool Yankee, for all him.

From the New York Commercial.

A BLACK WIFE WANTED.

We have received a communication from a friend, calling our attention to an advertisement published in the Liberator, and re-published in the Journal of Commerce, in which the advertiser, professing to reside at West Chester, Pennsylvania, represents himself in great agony for the procurement of a negress for a wife. He prefers one, 'entirely or chiefly of African descent.' Our correspondent states that he is the father of five lovely daughters, pure and innocent as nature could form them; and he is evidently apprehensive, that a morbid or vicious taste should render him at some future time the progenitor of a motley race. So far as the madness and iniquity of the editor of the Liberator, the Emancipator, and other vicious prints can go, he may be justified in his apprehensions; for the former endorses the advertiser as being 'serious in his proposal, and actuated by disinterested and generous motives.' Still, however, we assure our correspondent that he need suffer no alarm. For wise and good purposes, the Creator of all the earth gave distinctive features and properties to those whom he appointed to inhabit its diverse territories. He also, at the same time, endowed his creatures with the faculty of taste, accompanying it with entire freedom of choice, thereby forming a perpetual and insurmountable barrier to the execrable amalgamation which our correspondent so prematurely deplores. We have no fears on this head. Every body knows, however, that sickly appetites will occasionally prevail.

The profligate lord, blessed with a beautiful wife, will sometimes steal to the attic of his bronzed cook-maid; and this is the sort of taste which, it would seem, is beginning to pervade the ranks of the immediate abolitionists. We hope they may be accommodated to their heart's content. We only wonder that certain Professors, (as the young chaps call themselves,) did not provide themselves with sable instead of white spouses, before entering upon their mission. And as their leading editor, Garrison, sanctions the scheme, it is suggested whether the leaders in this city ought not, in their family arrangements, to bear practical testimony against the prejudice against color. We shall at all times insert, without charge, notices of the matrimonial junction of the abolitionists with the negroes. We therefore insert, agreeably to the intimation of the Liberator, the following advertisement from that paper of Saturday week, together with the editorial avowal that it is intended in sober earnest. And we desire the public also to bear in mind, that this editor is the acknowledged head and leader of that party.

A WIFE WANTED.—We have been requested to give the following advertisement four insertions in the Liberator. The author of it is serious in his proposal, and actuated by disinterested and generous motives. He is an estimable man, and we believe, will make a good husband. We presume the novelty of the advertisement will insure it a wide circulation.

For the Liberator.
A friend of equal rights is convinced that our colored brethren and sisters are entitled to all the rights and privileges which are claimed by the whites; that prejudice against color is extremely absurd; and that as this prejudice exists, its victims will feel that yoke of oppression crushing them to the earth. He takes the liberty also to state, (being himself what is termed a white man,) should he meet with a suitable opportunity, he is convinced that it is his duty, and it is his determination, to bear testimony against this prejudice by marrying a colored woman.

Information would be thankfully received of any young, respectable and intelligent colored woman, (entirely or chiefly of African descent,) who would be willing to endure the insults and reproaches that would be heaped upon her for being the partner of a white man, and who is either in low circumstances or would be willing to cede all she has or may have of this world's goods to the American Anti-Slavery Society, that the mouths of gainsayers may be stopped. Information sent by letter (post paid) to E. K. W., West Chester, Pa. will meet due attention.

Since the above was in type, we have received the following communication:

A WHITE WIFE WANTED.
Massa Editors ob de Mershal Abbertizer. I hab cum to de conclusion dat de gemmen ob culter mus exclaim to de world dat dey too be de frind ob equal rites.—De hole universal nashun ob de brack peepie hab becum convicted ob dat. I hab derefore determine to 'hounce to my dopted country, dat I hab conquer all my prejudices, so dat I be willing to malgamate and jest as lib marry white woman as any. De ladies will please send in deir proposals to de Editor ob de Liberator, post paid. No old Made or Widdor woman want do—none need apply if she ant young and handsom and ob good health for de sake ob de posterity. I am good ekoller in composishun, spellin and ritin and shall gib de prefrance to a white gurl ob a liturary turn who keeps her person clean and free from smel, because I dont tolerate any smel bout me. Dere is one more ting I hab to say. Nun mus apply excep, beside de above qualificashun, she hab plenty munny for de support ob de family genteelly, and beside dat she mus be in de highest circles and a member ob de Bobolishun Society, and will give all de munny she has left (after satisfying de lawful rites ob her husban to de personal property) to dat Society; so de mouths ob gainsayers may be stop up.

BOTANIC MEDICINES.

DR. HUTCHINSON,
RESPECTFULLY informs his friends and the public, that his office is now kept on Main street, Evansville, Indiana, near the store of Lockwood & Newman. He will keep on hand, and for sale, a general assortment of

VEGETABLE MEDICINE.

Being fully convinced that a regular and scientific system of BOTANIC MEDICAL PRACTICE, possesses a vast superiority over the common mode of bleeding and purging, both in point of efficacy and safety, he employs vegetable remedies exclusively in his practice, and recommends them to all who resort to medicine with the hope of permanent relief.

N. B. The public are informed that those who are pretending to practice the Thomsonian System without qualification, or authority, or blending vegetable and mineral medicines, are not patronized by the Thomsonian Botanic Institution.

ROSS & EWING.

June 28, 1834—4-6t

LOUIS A. GODEY, HAS BECOME SOLE PROPRIETOR OF THE LADY'S BOOK,

A Monthly Magazine, containing

Tales, original and selected; Moral and Scientific Essays; Poetry from the best Authors; the Quarterly representations of the Lady's Fashions, adopted in Philadelphia—Coloured.—Music, of the newest style, &c. &c.

Published regularly on the first day of every month, at No. 3 Anthean buildings, Franklin place, Philadelphia.

Embellished with a beautiful and extensive variety of Engravings, from original and selected designs, both colored and plain, with two engraved title pages, and two distinct indexes, (intended to perfect separate volumes in the year,) also a choice Collection of music, original and selected, arranged for the Piano or Guitar, with nearly 600 pages large octavo letter press, and only THREE dollars per annum.

EACH number of this periodical contains 48 pages of extra octavo letter press, printed with clear, new and beautiful type, (arranged after the manner of the London La Belle Assemblée,) on paper of the finest texture and whitest color. It is embellished with splendid Engravings of Copper and Steel, executed by artists of the highest skill and distinction, and embracing every variety of subjects. Among these are illustrations of Populr Legends, Romantic Incidents, Attractive Scenery, and portraits of Illustrious Females. The number commencing each quarter contains a picture of the existing Philadelphia Fashions, designed, drawn, engraved and colored expressly for this work, by competent persons specially engaged for that purpose. The embellishments of this character which have appeared in former numbers, are confessedly superior to any which have been furnished in any other similar American publication, and from the arrangement which have been made, there is every reason to believe they will be improved in the coming volumes. In addition to the Embellishment just referred to, every number contains several engravings on wood, representing Foreign and native Scenes, curious and interesting Subjects, Natural history, Etymology, Mineralogy, Conchology, Humorous Incidents, Ornamental Productions, Embroidery, and other needle work, Riding, Dancing, &c. besides one or more pieces of popular Music, arranged for the Piano or Guitar.

Every six numbers of the work form an elegant volume suitable for binding, and with these are furnished gratuitously a superbly engraved Title Page, and a general index of Contents.

The typographical execution of the Lady's Book is such that the proprietor challenges comparison with any Magazine, whether European or American. The best Materials and the ablest workmen are employed, and the most scrupulous regard is paid to neatness, harmony, and uniformity in the arrangement of the various subjects which compose the letter-press.

The Literary department of the Lady's Book comprises every thing which is deemed suitable for that sex to whose use it is principally devoted. Tales, which are distinguished by interesting incidents, vigorous narrative, classic diction, and the absence of maudlin sentiment; Poetry, in which sense has not been sacrificed to sound, but where glowing thoughts are sensibly expressed; Essays upon pleasing and instructive subjects; Biographical Sketches of illustrious Women; Anecdotes, untainted by indelicate innuendoes; lively Sonnets, and humorous topics cleverly but modestly treated, constitute along with descriptions of the various embellishments, the reading of the Work.

Though enormous expenses have been incurred in making this work deserving of the immense patronage it has received, the proprietor does not mean to relax in his exertions.—Wherever improvement can be made, he is determined to accomplish it without regard to cost or labor, confident that he will be amply remunerated.

The terms of the Lady's Book are three dollars per annum, payable in advance.

Persons remitting ten dollars shall be entitled to four copies of the work. Persons remitting fifteen dollars shall be entitled to six copies of the work, and additional copies of the best Engravings. Persons procuring ten new subscribers, and forwarding the cash for the same, besides a discount of fifteen per cent. shall be presented with a copy of the third volume of the work superbly bound. Uncurrent Notes of solvent banks received at par value.

An extra copy of the work, or any information respecting it, may be obtained by addressing the publisher, (post paid.)
