

SCRAPING APPLE TREES.

George Olmstead, of East Hartford, published in the N. England Farmer, that he has experienced great benefit from scraping the moss from his apple and pear trees, with a hoe in June or July. There is no mistake in this. The rough bark of those trees affords shelter to numerous insects, and receptacles for their eggs, prejudicial to the tree or its fruit. A smooth clean skin is of as much value to the tree, as it is to the animal; its functions are important to the health and growth of both. The fault is, Mr. Olmstead does not go far enough; he should clean as well as smooth the surface of his trees; and we do not think there is any thing better for this purpose, at least for the apple, than a strong ley of wood ashes, or potash. We have had a dozen years experience of the benefits of this wash, though we have not in this time applied it more than twice to the same trees. It is applied to the bole, and as far as convenient to the larger branches, with a common shoe brush, affixed to the end of a stick a yard long, the loose bark, where there is such, being previously scraped off. It imparts to the bark a handsome, smooth, healthy appearance, destroys insects and their eggs, takes off the moss, and seems to be to the apple tree what salt is to the animal—a highly useful condiment. The objection to lime-wash is, that it stops up the pores of the bark, and by its caustic quality contract the sap vessels, and gives the exterior a dry and rigid appearance.—The ley, on the contrary, removes every obstruction to the wholesome perspiration, and leaves the bark so soft and pliable that it may almost be indented with the thumb.—Cultivator.

Liquid Manure.—A correspondent in London's Gardener's Magazine, speaking of the cultivation of the ground at Ghent, says, "Liquid manure may be here named, and very justly so, their summun bonum; as if applied when the corn is sprouting, or just before a rain, it has an effect which no other manure can have. It destroys insects and throws a surprising degree of vigor into the crops. It is pumped [from the tanks under ground, into which it is conducted by drains from the stables &c.] into a barrel-shaped water cart; and, when brought upon the land the plug is taken out, and the liquid, flowing over a broad something in the shape of a fan, as the cart proceeds, it is dispersed on both sides, over a space, perhaps, of 4 or 5 feet. The cart has generally three wheels."—Id.

Hedges.—Reuben Wheeler, of Vergennes, Vt., recommends what he terms the white thorn as a superior plant for hedges. He directs that the haws, or seeds be gathered in the fall, buried in the ground, and suffered to remain there till the second spring, when they may be sown in drills—they will grow one foot the first season, and if properly managed will make a good fence in six years. As the white thorn (C. oxyacantha) is exotic, and we believe not yet introduced into Vermont, we presume Mr. Wheeler has allusion to some of the indigenous species, which are of more vigorous growth than the white thorn of Europe. In burying the haws, we have mixed two parts of the earth with one of seed, laid them in a ridge upon the surface, in the garden, and covered with about three inches of mould. They were once overhauled during the summer, replaced and recovered. In the autumn following they were found to have germinated, and were then sown in drills. Id.

Modern Improvement of the soil.—Among the means for the improvement of the soil, in modern agriculture, is the rotation of the crops, and the use of clover and plaster. The rotation of crops is founded on the obvious principle, that in drawing their nourishment from the earth, different kinds of food are required by different plants—for instance, that peas and barley do not deprive the earth of the principle which furnishes the best food for wheat—that some plants derive more of their support from the air, and take less from the earth than others—and that no two crops which require the same food should be taken in succession from the same piece of land. To this doctrine there may be a few seeming exceptions: such as plants that require for their perfection little besides heat and a small quantity of moisture, as onions have been grown for half a century on the sandy plains of Weathersfield, and the finest melons in the world on the shifting sands of Egypt. Of all the plants for the renovation of the soil, none can be considered equal or superior to clover, and it may be deemed a happy dispensation of Providence, that those soils best adapted by nature to wheat, are also the most congenial to clover, and derive the most essential benefit from plaster.

Farmer and Gardiner.

The following dialogue took place at the Rail Road depot in this town, on Monday.
Sure, an, shall I be after riding on the Rail road this blessed day.
Yes, if you please.
Place your honor, an' what's the price of the tickets?
One dollar.
An', surely, how long shall we be going to Boston?
One hour.
Och, botheration to you, if I'll be after giving you a dollar for one hour's ride, when I can ride three hours in a stage for a dollar an' a quarter.

EAGLE
T A W E E R N
G. W. GOULD,
HAVING purchased the eligible tavern stand formerly occupied by Hyacinth Lasselle, offers his services to his friends and the public in general. This stand has undergone a thorough repairing. From its location and convenience, as well as retired situation, it is rendered a desirable place for gentlemen travelling through the country with their families. He also flatters himself, that from his long experience in his profession, as well as his known desire and capacity to please, he will receive a liberal share of public patronage.
In connexion with the house, a spacious wagon yard is attached for the benefit of movers and teamsters.
His stable is large and commodious, and well provided with all kinds of provender, and a careful ostler, who is always in attendance.
N. B.—His Bar is supplied with the most choice Liquors.

It is now six months since this publication was commenced in Philadelphia—and although the publishers have used no extraneous means to circulate a knowledge of its merits, yet such is the satisfaction manifested by that portion of the public who have been made acquainted with its character and contents, that its lists of patrons continues constantly and rapidly to increase. This paper is now distributed regularly every week over a wide portion of the Union, and the most satisfactory assurance that it will become one of the most popular among the numerous excellent periodicals which issue from the American press. No exertions will be spared to establish its permanent reputation more extensively, and if the liberal sanction of those for whom it is especially designed shall warrant, its future improvement—both as regards typographical neatness and embellishment—will be materially advanced.

The different PLAYS and FARCES that will appear in the course of a year, of themselves, will be worth more than FOUR times the amount of the subscription. The following is a list of those which have already appeared:—

The MSS. copy of the HIGH AMBASADOR, the favorite and highly interesting Drama in which TYRONE POWER so successfully amused the public, as SIR PATRICK O'PLENPO, has been obtained by the publishers, and will be published forthwith.
The SPORTING INTELLIGENCE (at home and abroad) occupies a considerable portion of our columns, and is collected from the most authentic sources. Among the Portraits of celebrated Winning Horses which have been given, are—
The American Trotting Horse EDWIN FOREST.
The Improved Racing Horse, MESSENGER.
The favorite Racing Mare, AERIEL, and her foal, by ECLIPSE.
Bond's celebrated Trotting Horse, NORFOLK PHENOMENON.
The well-known English Race Horse, TOUGHSTONE.
A correct PICTURE OF A RACE COURSE occupying the width of seven columns.

Among a variety of other Embellishments of interest which have been published are the following:—
A complete treatise on RIDING, with FOURTEEN ILLUSTRATIONS, for the improvement of Ladies in that most healthy of all exercises.
Explanation of the AUTOMATION CHESS PLAYER, illustrated by ELEVEN ENGRAVINGS.
The subjects which are particularly embraced in the VADE MECUM will be more distinctly understood from the following summary of them:—
The Turf and all matters connected therewith.
On the Structure and Character of the Horse.
On the improvement of Horned Cattle.
Rules for Novices in Shooting.
Methods for Feeding and Training Dogs.
Biographies of selected Horses, with their Portraits.
