

L. L. WATSON,
DRAPER AND TAILOR,
RESPECTFULLY informs the Citizens of Vincennes and its vicinity, that having returned to this place with a view to permanently locate himself, he has recommenced business in the House adjoining Burtch and Heberd, two doors above the Corner, on Water Street, where all work entrusted to his care, will be promptly attended to, and executed with neatness and in the most fashionable style, as he will be regularly supplied with the latest fashions from the eastern cities, and trusts that he will merit a liberal share of public patronage.

He also has on hand and intends keeping a splendid assortment of

Cloths,

Which will be made up to order on accommodating terms.

—ALSO—

Summer ready made clothing, such as Vests, Pantaloon, Roundabouts, Shirts, Collars and Bosoms,

And many other things which the curious can see, by calling at the above mentioned shop.

First quality, just received and for sale by
THORN & TRACY.
Vincennes, June 11, 1835.

EAGLE TAVERN.

G. W. GOULD,

HAVING purchased the eligible tavern stand formerly occupied by Hyacinth Lasselle, offers his services to his friends and the public in general. This stand has undergone a thorough repairing. From its location and convenience, as well as retired situation, it is rendered a desirable place for gentlemen travelling through the country with their families. He also flatters himself, that from his long experience in his profession, as well as his known desire and capacity to please, he will receive a liberal share of public patronage.

In connexion with the house, a spacious wagon yard is attached for the benefit of movers and teamsters.

His stable is large and commodious, and well provided with all kinds of provender, and a careful ostler, who is always in attendance.

N. B.—His Bar is supplied with the most choice Liquors.

CAREY'S LIBRARY, OF CHOICE LITERATURE.

TO say that this is a reading age, implies a desire for instruction, and the means to gratify that desire. On the first point, all are agreed; on the second, there is diversity both of opinion and of practice. We have newspapers, magazines, reviews, in fine, pamphlets of all sizes on nearly all subjects, which have severely their classes readers and supporters. And yet, copious as are these means of intellectual supply, more are still needed. In addition to the reviews of the day, and passing notices of books, the people, in large numbers, in all parts of our great republic, crave the possession of the books themselves, and details, beyond mere passing allusion, of the progress of discovery in art and science. But though it is easy to ascertain and express their wants, it is not so easy to gratify them. Expense, distance from the emporium of literature, engrossing occupations which prevent personal application or even messages to libraries and booksellers, are so many causes to keep people away from the feast of reason, and the enjoyment of the coveted literary aliment. It is the aim of the publishers of the Library to obviate these difficulties, and to enable every individual, at a small cost and without any personal effort, to obtain for his own use and that of his favored friends or family, valuable works, complete, on all the branches of useful and popular literature, and that in a form well adapted to the comfort of the reader.

The charm of variety, as far as it is compatible with morality and good taste, will be held constantly in view in conducting the Library, to fill the pages of which the current literature of Great Britain, in all its various departments of Biography, History Travels, Novels, and Poetry, shall be freely put under contribution. With per chance, occasional exceptions, it is intended to give entire the work which shall be selected for publication. When circumstances authorize the measure, recourse will be had to the literary stores of Continental Europe, and translations made from French, Italian, or German, as the case may be.

While the body of the work will be a reprint, or at times a translation of entire volumes, the cover will exhibit the miscellaneous character of a Magazine, and consist of sketches of men and things, and notices of novelties in literature and the arts, throughout the civilized world. A full and regular supply of the literary monthly and hebdomadal journals of Great Britain and Ireland, in addition to home periodicals of a similar character, cannot fail to provide ample materials for this part of our work.

The resources and extensive correspondence of the publishers, are the best guarantee for the continuance of the enterprise in which they are now about to embark, as well as for the abundance of the materials to give it value in the eyes of the public. As far as judicious selection and arrangement are concerned, readers will it is hoped, have reason to be fully satisfied, as the editor of the Library is not a stranger to them, but has more than once obtained their favourable suffrages for his past literary efforts.

TERMS.

The work will be published in weekly numbers, in stitched covers each number containing twenty imperial octavo pages, with double columns, making two volumes annually, of more than 520 octavo pages, each volume; and at the expiration of every six months, subscribers will be furnished, with a handsome title page and table of contents. The whole amount of matter furnished in a single year will be equal to more than forty volumes of the common sized English duodecimo books, the cost of which will be at least ten times the price of a year's subscription to the "Library." The paper upon which the Library will be printed, will be of the finest quality used for book-work, and of a size admirably adapted for binding. As the type will be entirely new, and of a neat appearance each volume, when bound, will furnish a handsome, as well as valuable, and not cumbersome addition to the libraries of those who patronize the work.

The price of the Library will be five dollars per annum, payable in advance.

A commission of 20 per cent, will be allowed to agents; and any agent, or postmaster furnishing five subscribers and remitting the amount of subscription, shall be entitled to the commission of 20 per cent, or a copy of the work for one year.

A specimen of the work, or any information respecting it may be obtained by addressing the publishers, post paid.

Editors of news papers, to whom this prospectus is forwarded, will please insert the above as often as convenient, and a copy of their paper containing the advertisement marked, and entitle themselves to a free exchange for one year. Address
