

From the New York Sunday Mercury.
SHORT PATENT SERMON.
The words of my text may be found in the writings of Thomas Moore, Esquire, as follows:
When I remember all
The friends so linked together,
I've seen around me fall,
Like leaves in wintry weather,
I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but me departed.
My hearers—when, with the telescope of Memory we take a survey of the scenes of our childhood, and endeavor to look after the companions of our youth, once so firmly knit together by the ties of friendship, and see how sadly Time has unravelled the whole beautiful fabric, we cannot but feel as we tread so sadly about the heart as a water-soaked log. No matter how far away we may have been borne upon the railroad car of Time, or in whatever remote parts we may be, Memory will stick as close to the home of our childhood and the companions of our youth as a sheep-tick to the wool. It fills me with a milk of melancholy to recall to mind the once bright chain of former friends, and to reflect that I must now be numbered among its broken links. I feel, in truth, like one who treads alone some banquet hall deserted—whose lights are fled, whose garlands are dead, whose corners are filled with spider's webs—and where a few moaning, half-starved Echoes alone remain. You may let the coil of fancy loose, and it will gallop, kick up its heels, and cut capers all over the green pastures of ideal; but memory trots as steadily home to earlier scenes as a stray sucking pig to the sow—returning soon, however, sick, pale, tired and spirit-worn.
My friends—call over the list of those who joined you in the sports of childhood and see how many respond to the summons. Where are they? Echo answers "Don't know." Aye, they are among the missing. Some of them are sleeping in their graves unmindful of the jar and tumult of a noisy world, mingling mortality with its native mould—some have wandered like stray lambs away from the parental fold, and are scattered over the broad face of the earth, never again to meet in the warm glow of youth; some, perchance, may cling around those neglected bowers which they once built together in friendship, love and harmony; but the green wreaths of childhood no longer are entwined upon their brows, the frosts of age are settling on their heads; and their fire of youthful enthusiasm has long since become extinct. For the most part, they are scattered hither and thither, and you cannot call them together any more than you can go into the woods in November, and replace each fallen and wind-driven leaf upon its parent tree. Separated as we all are from our former friends, our thoughts are often brought to a focus at that "greenest spot on Memory's waste," where the happiest moments of our lives were passed; and where with the silken net that fancy knits, we drag each other in to join us in a repetition of those childish sports, which crowned our earliest days with the diadem of happiness.
My dear hearers—there is a bewitching, an enchantment, connected with early associations, that is difficult to overcome. Images of the past dressed in lovely, yet soul-saddening habiliments, will rise up before us in almost every step we take on our journey to the tomb. While we sigh over the sepulchre of by-gone joys, and mourn for the loss of absent friends, we feel for the moment as though the surf of sorrow were about to sweep over the soul and carry away our strongest bulwarks of christian fortitude; and then we eat, drink, frisk and frolic with our companions, pro tem, as though we had none to remember, or to be remembered by. This is a curious world in which we live, and yet, if I had the power and the privilege, I doubt whether I could make a better one. It is a world full of vicissitudes, villany and variation. The scenes that occurred yesterday do not happen to-day; and what happens to-day can never take place to-morrow. What is past is past—what is present we realize—and what is to come, must come. Therefore, rejoice ye not for former joys, now forever swallowed in the vortex of time—lament ye not that old associates have wandered away from the fold of parental friendship; because all these things must be. To think otherwise, you might as well suppose that you can go aboard of a steamboat here at New York, and arrive at Boston without leaving Hell Gate or Buttermilk Channel behind you. Time unsolders the firmest fastenings of affection. When I consider how many pretty girls I have loved with a "perfect looseness," and reflect upon what a splendid chance I had for either one or the other of them, I feel as if I had not done my duty to my God, to myself, and to the female sex in general. But, thank Heaven! there is time enough yet; and although my fourth or fifth love may not be equal in calor to the first, still there is just heat enough left in the oven of my bosom to bake without burning, connubially speaking. First love, former friendship and future glory are all tempered by time. The day will shortly come, when most or all of you, my young friends, will look back upon the original objects of your affections, and the first friends that you had on earth, with a wan and melancholy vision, and feel as if you "trod alone some banquet hall deserted."
My friends—waste not your tears around the monuments of the past, nor gather fuel from the uncertain future to build a brush-wood fire of enthusiasm upon the altars of your hearts; but provide for the present. Those companions of old who have been compelled to forsake, or be forsaken, can never again participate with you in the rich enjoyments of youth; and as for relying upon the future to bring you new and more beloved associates, you might as well depend on prayer for a pocket full of eagles. Be contented with your lot—lead moral and industrious lives—dwell neither upon the past nor the future, but push ahead for to-day, and you will soon find that you are not quite such miserable mortals as you might make yourselves. So mote it be! Dow, Jr.

Inventions—A new Knitting Machine.
—Well may the world be astonished at the rapid strides of science, and at the miracles and wonders of mechanical genius. Rapidly increases the already long record of New Inventions, day by day. And yet another is to be added to the list, an invention which must and will reflect credit, and merit too, upon its author. This extraordinary production of mechanical ingenuity is a Knitting Machine, now exhibiting in the American Museum, New York. The machine, as there erected, embraces some six or eight knitters, moved by dog power. Each knitter knits a stocking complete, heels and all, with the various narrowings, widenings, &c., that are performed by hand knitters, in one hour. The stitch is the same as that usually taken by the hand, and the whole, when finished, exhibits an evenness and uniformity that is unattainable in any other way. The knitters occupy very little space. A single establishment may embrace 500 to 1000, just as the circumstances of the proprietor shall admit. An establishment with 500 knitters, could turn out 3000 pairs of stockings in a day, supposing it to be kept in operation only during the usual working hours—18,000 pair in a week, and 936,000 pair in a year. Certes, this is an age of improvement.—Farmer and Mechanic.
Love and Reconciliation.—It is a glorious thing—and there are those who truly know how glorious it is—after moments of misunderstanding, even of reciprocal transgression, to rest again heart to heart; feel, deeply feel that there is actually in the world, in spite of all the powers of hell, a certainty, which is heaven upon earth—that they love each other, that they belong to each other, that nothing in the world will separate them, who have again found each other in earnest, in true and perfect love. Of this is a certainty, the most beautiful of all things on earth—a certainty, which is the foundation and security for every other. He felt it truly, the man, who, when about to leave the stage of life, laid his hands upon his breast and said—"I love, therefore I am immortal!"—Exchange paper.
COACH MAKING.

THE undersigned would respectfully announce to the citizens of Vincennes and its vicinity, that he has commenced the above business on Water street, a few doors south of Broadway, where he can at all times be found by any person wishing to get any thing done in his line of business. He will warrant his work to be equal to any manufactured in the west, in point of neatness and durability, and solicits a share of public patronage.

BY LA ROY SUNDERLAND.
These cannot be a sounder maxim of reasoning, than that which points out to us the error of attributing the phenomena that occur, to remote and extraordinary sources—when they may, with equal propriety, be referred to causes which obviously exist, and the results of which we daily observe.
TERMS.
I.—One Dollar (in advance) will pay for One Copy complete, or Fifteen Copies of any one number.
II.—Whatever may be the numbers requisite to complete the Work, the subscription (ONE DOLLAR in advance) will insure the entire work perfect, and in a very short time.

PETER'S PILLS.

TRUTH HAS PREVAILED.
(Is such fun they say to get well with them.)
ALL mankind throughout their wide and extensive circulation, that ever try them still continue to buy them. Peter's Pills are purely vegetable—they work no miracles, nor do they profess to cure all diseases, because they are the scientific compound of a regular physician, who has made his profession the study of his life. Dr. Peters is a graduate of Yale College, also of the Massachusetts Medical College, and has some reputation among the family of the late Gen. Bates.
Peter's Pills are simple in their preparation, mild in their action, thorough in their operation, and unrivaled in the results. The town and country are alike filled with their praise.—The palace and poor house alike echo with their virtues—in all climates they will retain their wonderful powers, and exert them unaltered by age or situation, and thus the voice of a grateful community proclaims, Peter's Pills prevent, keeps off disease when timely used, and have no rival in curing bilious fevers, fevers and ague, dyspepsia, liver complaints, sick headache, jaundice, asthma, dropsy, rheumatism, enlargement of the spleen, piles, colic, female obstructions, heartburn, furred tongue, nausea distention of the stomach and bowels, incipient diarrhoea, flatulence, habitual constiveness, loss of appetite, bloated or sallow complexion, and in all cases of torpor of the bowels where a cathartic of aperient is indicated, producing neither nausea griping nor debility, and we repeat all who try them, still continue to buy them.
The most triumphant success, has ever attended their use, and enough is now known of this unrivaled pill, to immortalize and hand it down to posterity with the improvements of the age.
Dr. Peters was bred to the healing art, and in order to supply demands he has originated and called to his aid the only steam driven machinery in the world for pill making;—tis perfect, and its process imparts to the pill essential virtues, for by being perfectly wrought, all the pills hidden virtue is revealed when called into action, and here also again it is Peter's pills excel all the world and takes all the premiums, medals, and diplomas—so clear the track for the Engine, Peter's Pills are coming, a million of witnesses can now be heard for them—do ye hear that—no a few can testify they believe they owe their salvation from disease and death to Peter's Pills, and it cannot and knives are not getting into perpetual disuse, we are only mistaken. Certificates, this paper could be filled with them by Indians—look here! it is now well known that he people will have Peter's Pills, and to hinder would be to stop the rushing wind. Price 25 or 50 cents per box.
Their happy influence on young ladies while suffering under the usual changes of life, as directed by the laws of nature, they impart a buoyancy of heart, feeling and action, an elastic and vigorous step, velvet cheek, lip, and carnation complexion by their action on the chyle, &c., and ladies in delicate situations always admit their power and innocence, and take them 2 or 3 at a time, and without in the slightest degree disturbing the hazard of abortion, which facts are of the utmost importance. 'Tis fun to get well with Peter's Pills, for they cause the blood to course as limpid and gentle through the veins, as a mountain rivulet. 3 or 4 is a common dose; hence the patient is not compelled to make a meal of them.
For sale a few bushels by
