Death from tight Lacing.

Mr. Editor.—I have seen and am much pleased with your paper, and doubt not it will do much good. I hope for it an extensive circulation. In one of the late numbers you call for facts, whether communicated in elegant language or not. I have recently learned one to which I gave all possible publicity, and have told in almost every circle of the young in which I have since found myself. Two weeks since while on a visit to the house of a respectable, long experienced physician in one of the southern boundary towns in New Hampshire, he gave me in substance, the following account as near as I can recollect.

He was called a week or two previous to visit a young female, I think, over twenty years of age, who was distressingly ill of a complaint of the lungs, laboring under great difficulty of breathing, and which his discrimination led him at once to impute to a long continued practice of tight lacing—a practice which is slaying its thousands and tens of thousands in our enlightened land. There was, in his opinion, an adhesion of the lungs to the chest, and a consequent inflammation which had proceeded to such a height that death was inevitable. Little or nothing could be done. The poor girl, after a very few days of acute suffering, fell a victim to—(what shall I say?) I am unwilling to wound the feelings of her friends;—her own folly and vanity. It could not be suicide, because no such result was contemplated, though the deed was done by her own hand. We can call it by no softer name than self-slaughter, for such even an external examination of the body proved it to have been. The shoulder blades were bound to be literally lapped one over the other; the false ribs had been so compressed that a space of only about an inch and a half remained between them; and so great was the curvature of the spine, which had been gilded by the cords of death, that after the corpse was laid out for interment, two pillows were put under the arch thereby formed, with the shoulders rested on the board. She was a large, healthy person, and was ignorantly led by the desire to please, to sacrifice her life at the shrine of fashion, and the prevailing false ideas of beauty of form.—She was said to be of amiable disposition, and correct moral habits, otherwise.

My own mind was so impressed with the recital of this story, that I could hardly forbear weeping over the folly, and weakness, and ignorance, and wickedness of my sex. I inwardly wished for the ability to ring this case of suffering and death in the ears of every female in our land, until their voluntarily assumed "strait-jackets," that indicate nothing better than mental aberration in the wearers, should be voluntarily thrown aside. Pray, sister, lift up your renovated voice anew—labor with the utmost power of your pen against this crying sin of enlightened Christian America, and may God Almighty bless your efforts, and enable you to turn the hearts of our erring sisters to Himself, that they may seek to please Him.

Mexico.

The North American gives the subjoined summary of the leading events of the history of Mexico, for the last forty years.

At the commencement of the present century it was under the dominion of Spain. Soon after that period, the spirit of revolt began secretly and gradually to spread among the Mexicans, and in 1810 an insurrection broke out. The leader, Hidalgo, was captured and executed. After a series of victories and defeats on the part of the insurgents, Iturbide, who had fought on the side of Spain, joined the revolutionaries, and in 1821 proclaimed the independence of his country. He afterwards caused himself to be proclaimed Emperor, under the title of Augustus the First. After a bloody struggle, he was driven from the country in 1823, and on attempting to return was arrested and shot.

In 1824 a constitution was adopted, and Victoria was elected president and Bravo vice-president of the new republic. The first congress was held Jan. 1, 1825. The independence of Mexico was early recognized by the Government of the United States, then by Great Britain, and subsequently by most of the European powers. Every thing seemed to promise prosperity when a violent party division took place. The aristocracy of the country united in a masonic society under the name of the Escoceses, and attempted to control the government. The less wealthy organized also a masonic fraternity, and bore the name of Yorknians, having obtained a charter from a masonic lodge in New York, through the agency of Mr. Poinsett.

In 1828 these two parties brought forward their candidates for the Presidency. Pedraza, the candidate of the Escoceses party, was successful by a majority of two votes over his rival Guerrero. At this crisis, Santa Ana, who had been a military commander at Vera Cruz, espoused the cause of the defeated candidate. Civil war ensued, Pedraza fled, and Guerrero was inaugurated in April, 1829. In December of the same year, Bustamante, the vice-president, publicly denounced the chief magistrate for abuse of his power, and placed himself at the head of an army. He caused himself to be elected by the army to the presidency, and Guerrero was made prisoner, and in 1831, executed. In January, 1832, Santa Ana took arms in opposition to Bustamante, and compelled him in the December following, to quit the country. In March, 1833, Santa Ana was elected President, and Gomez Farias who was strongly opposed to the views of Santa Ana, was elected vice-president. The Congress favored Farias, and at length Santa Ana appealed to the people.—The latter was successful. A new Congress convened, and Farias was obliged to retire to New Orleans. In May, 1837, Bustamante entered on the Presidency. He was for a short time superseded by Santa Ana, but was restored, and now holds the office. This sketch of the progress of events is too brief to be very satisfactory; but our time has not allowed us to make it more complete. We leave it as it is. What is to be the result of the conflict in Mexico, time only can decide. It may yet be long before that nation shall settle down under good government and enjoy peace.

VEVAY COOT.—The New Orleans Sun says a man walked into the office, and not being able to subscribe for a six months subscription in advance, turned round and requested the editor to lend him half a dollar, and he would treat to a alep! That was cool.

Dreadful Earthquake.

St. Peterburgh, Sept. 11.—The Abeille du Nord, of yesterday, published the following letter from Tiflis, August 13: "You have doubtless, heard of the dreadful earthquake of Mount Ararat, which has totally destroyed the town of Makitchman, damaging all the buildings at Erivan, and devastated the two districts of Shaur and Sourmata, in Armenia. All the villages in those districts have been destroyed. The earth is rent in such a manner, that all the cotton and rice plantations have perished for want of water. But the most awful event has taken place in the neighborhood of Mount Ararat. A considerable mass was loosened from the mountain, and destroyed every thing in its way for the distance of seven wersts, nearly five English miles.

Among others, the great village of Akhouti, has had the fate of Herculaneum and Pompei. About 1,000 inhabitants were buried under heaps of rocks. A thick fluid, which afterwards became a river, ran from the interior of the mountain, which was opened, and following the same direction, swept over the ruins, and carried with it the corpses of the unfortunate inhabitants of Akhouti, the dead animals, &c. The shock continued to be felt every day in the above mentioned districts, and entirely laid them waste; then the shock became less frequent, Ararat is not yet quiet; the day before yesterday I was awakened by two violent subterranean commotions.—Journal de St. Peterburgh, Sept. 11.

SINGULAR CASE OF SOMNAMBULISM.—A man, every way respectable in his station as a working jeweller, lived with an only child, a daughter, in quiet and comfort, putting aside all his earnings beyond that which was applied to household expenses, in order to apply her dot when she would be married to a man in her own station; but for some time, some months he had observed that he was robbed, that articles entrusted to him to alter, that gold given to him for the purpose of manufacturing into jewelry, vanished between the night and the morning. The poor man bore this for some months; but after having disbursed all that he had laid aside for his daughter's portion, in replacing articles of which he became convinced that the child had robbed him, he stealed his heart against her protestations of innocence, and drove her from his presence. On the following day he again missed an object of value, which she could not have purloined. The second night he broke a wine glass on the table of his bedroom, and having gathered the large fragments, retired to bed. Towards day-break he woke up, tormented by a pain in his foot, when he found that he had in it a piece of broken glass. This proved that he must have been standing upon the table, and he then remounted it, and was convinced that he was himself a sleepwalker, and that he had judged his child unjustly, as he found hid behind a cornice in the roof, immediately above the table, all the jewels and trinkets which he had lost. It is needless to add with what affection he again sought his child, or with what tenderness he restored her to that place in his bosom which she had never forsaken.—Paris Paper.

Awful Calamity.

We learned the particulars, on yesterday, of one of the most heart-rending calamities, that has ever occurred within the limits of Wabash county. The mother of Mr. Benj. F. Hodge, of Evansville, Ia., his sister and two children, started from that place a couple of days since, on a visit to some friends in this State. They passed through this town on Tuesday last, on their way to their place of destination, in a fine two horse carriage, driven by a mulatto man; they had reached the Bonpas river, which, from the late heavy rains, was swollen to an unusual height, and in attempting to reach the bridge, by the road leading close along on the edge of the river, and which we understand, was covered with water, unfortunately missed it and was precipitated over the bank into the raging current, and horrible to relate, the two ladies and children were drowned, and also the two horses, the mulatto man was saved by swimming and taking hold of a limb, until relief came to his assistance.

The bodies of one of the ladies and one of the children have been found.—Wabash Republican.

ABDUCTION OF THE KING OF HOLLAND.—The Amsterdam papers announce the abdication of the King of Holland in favor of his son. It appears that his Majesty communicated to his ministers before setting out the day before from the Hague to the castle of Loo. A proclamation will be issued in a few days informing his subjects of his resolution. The Handelsblad says that the King having summoned the Prince and Princess of Orange to Loo, communicated to them his intentions in the presence of his friend Bron Frayel. It is believed that his Majesty has already given orders for the transmission of all the official documents of the various official departments. He is said to have laid aside his crown and retired to private life, for the purpose of accomplishing the union with a lady of his court, which encountered so much opposition from his subjects when first announced some twelve months ago.

'LEAD US NOT INTO TEMPTATION.'—Three Indians in the vicinity of Green Bay became converts to the temperance cause, although previously given to put the enemy into their mouth that stole away their brains.' Three white men formed the charitable resolution of trying their Indian sincerity. Placing a canteen of whiskey in their path, they hid themselves in the bushes to observe the motions of the red men.
