Fruit Show at Purdue.

The Second Annual Fruit Show to be held at Purdue University during the week of the Farmers' Short Course January 11-16, is arousing great interest among the fruit growers of the state.
Nearly $300 is offered in cash premiums by the Indiana Horticultural society.
The state has been divided into three sections, north, central, and southern and separate premiums are offered for entries from each section. This arrangement places fruit growers in sections where the crop was light this season on a par with more favorable localities. A unique feature of this year's show is the special class which has been arranged for potatoes. All judging will be done with the official score card recently adopted by the Indiana Hortigiven in its use.

Homes Desired for Children.

"The agents of the Board of State charities have in the past year been very successful in securing a large number of good homes for dependent children who are public wards. There are still a large number of desirable children available for placing in suitable homes. Doubtless there are many families that would make a home for a child. An important part of the board's work is to bring the homeless child and the childless home together. The board solicits the co-operation of all who are interested in securing proper homes in families for children." For further information ad-

House, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE REFRIGERATOR.

Some Rules for Getting Sanitary Refrigeration Out of It.

To properly clean the refrigerator, remove the shelves from all the closets and stand them in the sink, or in a tub; now prepare some tepid water containing ammonia or chlorides, and sponge off the entire inside, not forgetting the ledge underneath the ice receptacle, which catches the drip and leads the water to the pipe, which can only be reached when the ice shelf is removed. After sponging off the entire interior, including the ceilings of the various closets, the sides, the ledges where shelves rest, etc. (using a wooden skewer if there are any grooves or corners), prepare some clear, cold water, and also some boiling water containing chlorides. With a long wire brush, which comes for the purpose, and which may be purchased for 5 cents, clean the drain pipe, flushing it with the water containing the chlori-des.

In place of the chlorides, many housewives prefer to use washing soda in this water, since it unites with any grease that gathers on the sides of the pipe and forms soap, which cleans the pipe effectually; however, a drain pipe must be neglected for a matter of weeks, or else ice must be particularly filthy before the dirt in the ice forms on the inside of the pipe and lines it with a slime that only the soda and thorough brushing will remove; if attended to every week, the chlorides will suffice to free the pipe from all impurities.

If there is a drain pipe underneath the ice box, where the waste water escapes, do not neglect this, but pour more of the hot soda solution down it; after a few moments pour the cold water over every part of the lining of the refrigerator, wipe it with a clean, perfectly dry cloth, and let it remain open to air; the clear cold water rinses the ice box and also assists in lowering the temperature after the boiling water has heated the refrigerator; never scrub the ice box with boiling hot suds, for unless it has been woefully neglected, it will not be necessary. It raises the temperature, which is harmful to the refrigerator and undoubtedly causes odors to arise and a steam to gather, which settles on the food, to its detriment. Wash the shelves, scald then rinse in very cold water; wipe dry and place in the sun and air for a short time; they may then be returned to place, and the ice box is clean. It is easily kept clean by looking over the contents every morning, using up what is left from the day before, or throwing away anything that is not to be used; wiping off the shelves at once if anything is spilled on them. Last of all, keep the atmosphere sweet and discourage all forms of vermin by placing a lump of charcoal in each compartment.

When anything is spilled it should be washed up immediately, in any case, for food spilled in an ice box soon gives rise to fumes which contaminate the rest of the food and injure the lining.

Men the Law Cannot Touch.

An ambassador is an august being and one who boasts some remarkable privileges. It may be mentioned, to begin with, that in the land in which he is officiating the chief of an embassy ranks immediately after the prince of the blood royal.

The ground on which an embassy stands is in theory, as well as in practice, the territory of the nation to which its principal occupant belongs.
Even if a criminal were harbored in an embassy, the police could not enter the premises without permission.

An ambassador is above the law of the country to which he is accredited.
The courts have no jurisdiction over him and strangely enough his subordinate, and even his domestic servants, are also inviolate. The humblest employee in the embassy, if he committed a punishable offense, could not be arrested without the consent of his master. Nor can an embassy official be imprisoned for debt.

Ambassadors are to be envied most of all, perhaps, for their freedom from the burden of taxation. They disburse not one penny in taxes, either directly or indirectly; and as for the custom house, it is non-existent so far as they are concerned. No duty whatever is charged in respect of wines, cigars, cigarettes, etc., that are consigned to them.

Happy Ignorance.

Francis Wilson, the noted comedian, apropos of certain curios whereon he believed he had been duped, said with a light laugh:

"The collector as he pursues his hobby, grows in knowledge. Then, reviewing his collection, he sadly finds many an instance where he has been duped. The one drawback to knowledge is that it reveals so many dupes and swindlers to us. One summer, for instance, I was doing Switzerland. In the neighborhood of Geneva, where the Swiss talk French, I climbed a little peak one fine morning and on my arrival at the chalet at the top I heard the pretty maidens call into the kitchen in excellent French:

"Quick, mother, quick! Here's a tourist. Put some milk on the fire.
You know they always like it warm from the cow!"

Good Ones.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton, who handles a trout rod almost as definitely as he handles a pen, was praising a book of new flies.

"They are wonderful flies," he said,
"Why, if I venture to leave any of them lying around loose, the spiders come and carry them off."

Would Be Quite Enough.

"And would you marry me if I were a poor girl, working for a living?" asked the waitress.

"Darling," responded the accepted suitor, "it wouldn't be fair. You'd be doing enough in supporting yourself."

Stops earache in two minutes; toothache or pain of burn or scald in five minutes; hoarseness, one hour; muscleache, two hours; sore throat, twelve hours.—Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, nonarch over pain.

"THE SENSELESS FEATHER DUSTER"

By EDWARD BOK, Editor of the Ladies' Home Journal

"It may be a quick way of dusting, but what does it really accomplish, except to set particles of dust in motion so that it can be more easily breathed in by those who happen to be in the room. As an unsanitary article of use, perhaps its equal is scarcely known. Let a maid or a housekeeper devote one hour to the dusting of a room with a feather duster and at the end of that time there is just exactly as much dust in the room as there ever was. It is simply not in the same spots."

You can avoid all this menace to health and useless work by wiping off the surfaces of your furniture and interior woodwork with a piece of cheese cloth slightly moistened with

LIQUID VENEER

It is simply an impossibility for disease germs to live or dust to remain where Liquid Veneer is used. and it will take up and carry away every particle of dust, leaving the surfaces gone over in a perfectly clean and sanitary condition and with a gloss and polish like new. One 25c bottle will prove.

The Captain Puts on a Necktie.

No matter how small the vessel nor how impecunious may be the skipper, says a Boston seaman, there is always a "boiled" shirt and a clean collar laid carefully away to be worn when the craft enters port. At sea the captain may be very rough in his attire, but the approach to land finds him combing his hair and cropping his whiskers, if he has any, and the collar is donned, also a necktie, which usually is a flamboyant red.

Even the poorest men who bring vessels to Boston to secure loads of lumber for South American ports dress as neatly as possible when the customs boarding officer is expected to come alongside to inspect the ship's papers.

And the mates slick up, too, when their floating home is nearing port so that the "old man," as the captain is familiarly termed behind his back, may not carry off all the honors of the occasion.

Super-Angelico.

George H. Lorimer, the author of "The Letters of a Self-Made Merchant to His Son," is no friend, as his writings show, to the high-down. A practical man, Mr. Lorimer stakes his all upon practical things. Discussing social veneer at a mid-19th century in Philadelphia, Mr. Lorimer said that in the education of girls the practical did not receive sufficient prominence.

"A young friend of mine in Gwynedd," said the shrewd humorist, "got married last night. He said to me the other day:

"When I married Maude I thought she was an angel. But," he added, "I soon found out my mistake."

"Disappointed?" I asked.

"Disappointed?" "No," he cried. "I found she was a good cook."
