PLANT A TREE.

Many years ago it was a custom when a child was born to commemorate the event by planting a tree. As a result of this beautiful and tender custom, today there are many trees sacredly guarded because they were planted by or for someone whose memory it was desired to perpetuate. Every reader of this article no doubt recalls one or more trees with which are associated pleasant recollections. It may be the one in the yard under which you were accustomed to play when a child. It may be the one that sheltered you when overtaken by a storm on your way to, and from school. It may be the one on the river bank under which your lover and you exchanged vows or made dear to you by any one of the many incidents of life.

Now that a day of the state and proclamation of Governor Goodrich have designated Friday, April 16, as Arbor Day in Indiana, why not by planting a tree or a shrub on that date, give your child when it passes into maturity, an opportunity to possess a living tree which it can call its own? Or if you have made a great sacrifice through a loved one offering his life in freedom's cause, what can be more appropriate and lasting than a beautiful tree or shrub planted to the memory of this world war hero, says Richard Lieber, Director of Conservation of Indiana, who appeals to citizens generally and school children in particular, on this Arbor Day, 1920, to contribute something to posterity.

There are several species of trees and shrubs appropriate for Arbor Day planting, according to Charles C. Deam, State Forester. Where space will permit the growth of a large tree, the sugar maple is best to use. The elm which is one of our most beautiful trees, is not recommended on account of the deadly insects it is rapidly becoming subject to. In moist soil the pin oak would be one of the best trees to plant. If a small round-topped tree is desired, the Norway maple is the best. Do not plant under any circumstances soft maple, box elder or catalpa, is the advice of the Department of Conservation officials.

The charge made by the coal miners that the operators were profiteering is sustained by government investigation. The increased wages to the miners should not add to the price of coal more than from 50 to 75 cents per ton, while the operators, under the plea of increased wages to the miners, have been camouflaging the public by slapping several dollars

NEVER A MORE TENSE AND GRIPPING DRAMA SCREENED
It Portrays with intense realism all the gigantic scenes the stage could only suggest

* The great Kentucky Handicap race with a girl winning by a nose.

* Fendal battles between the clansmen of the hills where death is the inevitable end.

* A girl rushing into a blazing barn to save a thoroughbred racer.

* Gun fights between moonshiners and U. S. revenue officers.

* Masked night riders chasing outlaws at breakneck speed over the mountains.

* A girl on horseback leaping over a broken bridge above a yawning chasm to save her lover.

Scores of other intense dramatic moments with a beautiful love story of a loyal clans-girl underlying it all on the ton. And they have been getting by with it very nicely for a long time.

In view of the use of American troops against Russia without a declaration of war by congress, Lansing might have thought quite naturally that a constitution was a little thing between friends.

Senator Capper wants profiteers jailed. It would cost more to provide sufficient cell room than it did to win the war.

Some of the presidential candidates probably think Borah's name should be spelt Borer.

While the public is discussing Hoover, the politicians are cursing him.
