THE AMERICAN FARMER,

Edited by Obed B. Smith, is published in Baltimore, (Md.) by I. LEITCH, HICKMAN & Co. (successors of J. S. Skinner,) in weekly numbers of eight quito pages, at Five Dollars per annum.

It is devoted exclusively to practical Agriculture, Horticulture and Rural and Domestic Economy. The American Farmer contains also a great number of useful recipes; readings adapted to the stations of mothers and mistresses of families; so much of the news as relates to the foreign and domestic markets for Agricultural products, and a correct statement of the prices current at the time of publication; but nothing connected with party politics is at any time permitted to appear in its columns.

The American Farmer is neatly printed on fine paper, and many of the subjects of which it treats are illustrated by expensive wood engraving. The numbers for a year make a volume of a convenient form and size, and the last one is accompanied by a title page and minute index, completing the volume for binding.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

1. Price five dollars per annum, payable at the middle of each year of subscription.
2. Subscriptions are in all cases charged by the year and never for a shorter term.
For further particulars, call at this office.

BLANK DEEDS.

Valuable Farm, FOR SALE.

THE undersigned, wishes to dispose of immediately

A VALUABLE FARM.

lying in Jefferson township, Switzerland county, Indiana, known more particularly, as being the south west quarter of section 36, T. 2, R. 2, west of the first meridian, containing 160 ACRES OF LAND.

The improvements are, comfortable log buildings—about seventy acres, well cleared and fenced—seven acres of timothy meadow—two orchards of choice apple and peach trees—eight beautiful, never-failing, springs of wholesome water. The balance of the land is well timbered with sugar, locust, walnut, hickory, ash and other timber. The land lies within a respectable neighborhood, is high, healthy, and within 2 1/2 of a mile of the Ohio river—immediately back of Thomas McCormick's Wood-yard.

This tract of land will be sold entire or divided, as may best suit a purchaser—it can be divided so as to give each half an equal quantity of fruit trees, cleared land and water. The undersigned is a farmer—he entered this tract of land, at an early day—he had picked an choice of the neighborhood, selected this quarter for its many good qualities, and has not been disappointed. Come, view for yourselves.

THOMAS RAMSEY.

A LOAN WANTED.

THE undersigned, if he could not previously dispose of land, will want to borrow $350, for which he will pay 12 1/2 per cent interest, and secure the payment thereof, with a mortgage on the above farm. He invites capitalists to give him a call.

THE COMET IS COMING

A PARODY ON THE SCOTCH CLAN GETTINGING SURE

"The Campbells are coming, O ho! O ho!
The Campbells are coming, O ho! O ho!
The Campbells are coming, O ho! O ho!
From Bonnie Loch Lomond,
The Campbells are coming, O ho! O ho!

The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
From the track of its roaming,
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!

The Angel Death in fiery wrath,
Has marked its vengeful flaming path—
In glowing letters traced in gloom,
He's told the world its heavy doom.

The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
From the track of its roaming,
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!

The sea will vanish, cooling fountains,
And green retreats on plains and mountains,
And from her center Earth will burst,
Mankind, by nations, die with thirst.

For the Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!
From the track of its roaming,
The Comet is coming, O wo! O wo!

You glowing East, so fiery red,
My bonnie lassie, do not dread!
For learned fools of modern years
Have filled the world with foolish fears.

The Comet's not coming, O no! O no!
The Comet's not coming, O no! O no!
The Comet's not coming, O no! O no!
From the track of its coming,
The Comet's not coming, O no! O no!

LOVE WITH A WITNESS.

He has shaved off his whiskers and blacken'd his brows,
Wears a patch and a wig of false hair,
But it's him—Oh it's him! We exchanged lovers vows,
When I lived up in Clavenish square

He had beautiful eyes, and his lips were the same,
And his voice was as soft as a flute—
Like a Lord or a marquis he look'd, when he came,
To make love in his mother's best suit

I lived for a thousand long years from my birth,
I shall never forget what he told!
How he lov'd me beyond the rich women of earth,
With their jewels and silver and gold!

When he kissed me and bade me adieu, with a sigh,
By the light of the sweetest of moons,
Oh how little I dreamt I was bidding good bye,
To my sister's tea-pot and spoons!

A gentleman on horseback finding himself at a spot where four roads met, asked a countryman, who was working on one of them, where it run to. Cloddy raising himself from his stooping posture, and scratching his head, replied with a grin, "I doesn't know where it runs to, zur, but we finds it here every mornin'."

A certain preacher having changed his religion, was much blamed by his friends for deserting them. To excuse himself, he had seven reasons—and being asked what they were, replied, a wife and six children.

At a party in Philadelphia, not long ago, and a young lady from B——. In the course of the evening, conversation became slack, and a pause of a few moments became unavoidable. A gentleman broke silence by observing, "awful pause." The poor girl, who thought the observation was meant for her, spoke up rather pertly—"well, I guess you would have awful pause too if you should wash and scrub as much as I do."

A hard head.—An old gentleman was relating a story of your "half horse, half alligator" St. Lawrence boatman. Says he, "he is a hard head, for he stood under an oak in a thunder storm, when the lightning struck the tree, and he dodged it seventeen times, when finding he could not dodge it any longer, he stood and took nine claps in succession on his head, and never flinched."

A young Irishman who had married when he was about seventeen years of age, complaining of the difficulties to which his early marriage had subjected him, said he would never marry so young again, if he lived to be as old as Methusalem.

Salt for poison.—The Rev. J. G. Fischer, says that common salt is an effectual remedy for all kinds of painful and dangerous serpent bites. It should be moistened with water and bound on the wound.—Cin. Chronicle.

A small touch of the sublime.

Abigail Lord, of her own accord,
Went down to see her sister;
Jason Lee, as brisk as a flea,
Jumped right up and kiss'd her.

The difficulties which had arisen between the British and Chinese, at Canton, have been adjusted by the former submitting to the pretensions of the Chinese.

Anecdote.—A friend related to us the following ball committed by a son of the Emerald Isle now in his employ, which we think is worth publishing: On going to the hog house one morning during the late cold weather, Pat discovered that a litter of pigs, which had been in existence but a short time, were all dead and on making known the discovery—"Faith sir," said he, "I don't b'lieve they'd live if they had'n't pigs, for the weather is so very cowlid."

One of the Westminster Constables at their assembly last week, complained that being extremely desirous of understanding his duties, he had purchased a book called "Constable's Miscellany," which he saw displayed in a bookseller's window; but to his great surprise, the book instead of directing him how to comport himself in his constableness, contained nothing but some account of voyages to the North Pole!

A romantic individual was asked why he showed greater attachment to a very thin lady than to another who was more lusty. "It is," said he, "because I am nearer her heart."

There is a singular society formed at Lincoln by a few young men, called "The Last man," embracing the following regulation:—A bottle of wine is sealed up in a neat mahogany case, and at a particular period of the year lots are cast by the whole society to determine to whose care the case shall remain, and that person, at Christmas, is bound to give either a dinner or a supper to the whole of the society. The bottle of wine is to be kept sealed up so long as two of the society remain alive, and when "the last man" is left, he is to open the bottle, and drink the wine, to the memory of his former friends.—Stamford Mercury.

We imagine the cracking of this bottle will be rather a sober affair. It is a little so with life,—we labor for years to earn money to enjoy ourselves upon; when it is earned, our money making spirit is gone.

We wonder why some of the rich old fellows don't see this and attempt a reform? the plan is feasible. Let them loan their money to us young bloods to enjoy life while we feel like it, and we in our turns must, when the fun is over with us, go to work and pass the evening of our days, in getting money for the next generation, and so on.

How beautiful and excellent are the following sentiments of De Witt Clinton.

"Pleasure is a shadow; wealth is vanity, and power is a pageant; but knowledge is extatic enjoyment—perennial in fame, unlimited in space and infinite in duration." To the performance of its sacred offices, it fears no danger—spares no expense—omits no exertion. It scales the mountain—looks into the volcano—dives into the ocean—perforates the earth—wings its flight into the skies—encircles the globe—explores the sea and land—contemplates the distant—examines the minute—comprehends the great—ascends to the sublime.—No place too remote for its grasp—no heavens too exalted for its reach."

To prevent the feet of horses from halting with snow.—If the frog in the hoofs of horses and the fetlock be cleaned, and well rubbed with soft soap, previously to their going out in snowy weather, it will effectually prevent their falling from what is termed halting the snow. A number of accidents might be prevented by this simple precaution.
