

Estate of William Coy.

IN pursuance of an order of the Probate Court of Switzerland county, Ia., entered at the August term, 1834, the creditors of said estate are hereby notified, that the undersigned, administrator of said estate, having discovered that the personal estate of said decedent was insufficient to pay the outstanding debts against the same, and that said decedent died seized of no real estate, out of which said debts could be satisfied—reported the same to the court, and filed an inventory of the debts aforesaid, so far as they have come to his knowledge; as also a statement of the assets belonging to said estate in his possession, out of which said debts are to be paid so far as the same will go, and prayed said court for relief in the premises. Now, if any of the creditors of said estate shall fail to notify said administrator of the existence and extent of their respective claims, by filing the same, or a statement of the nature, description and date of the contract or assignment, upon which the same may be founded, in the office of the clerk of said court, previous to the final distribution of the assets of the estate aforesaid, such claims will be postponed in favor of more diligent creditors. And the creditors of said estate are notified to appear at the Probate court, to be held at the court house in Vevay, on Tuesday, the 11th day of November next, at which time all claims filed as aforesaid, will be finally heard, acted upon, and determined by said court.

THIS is the title of a new weekly paper, devoted to the republication of the standard works of the best writers.

It is well printed on paper of the finest quality made entirely of linen; each number contains sixteen 4to pages, making one volume of 832 pages per annum.

It will be sent by mail to any part of the United States or Canada, upon the proprietor receiving THREE DOLLARS per annum, post paid.

Nos. 1 and 2 contain the Man of Feeling, by Makenzie, and The Vicar of Wakefield, by Goldsmith; Nos. 3 and 4, Tales of the Hall, by the Rev. George Crabbe; No. 5, commences the letters of Lady Mary Wortley Montague. There will be no abridgement of the work of any author.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Republic of Letters.

Under this title, Mr. William Pearson of this city has commenced an enterprise which we really think deserving of great success. It is a publication which in the shape of a quarto newspaper or magazine, is intended to furnish the public with a copy of a great number of the most approved and elegant works of English literature. The publication contains 16 pages quarto, and is somewhat larger than the London Weekly Magazine. The paper on which it is printed is not merely beautiful to the eye, but is of the very best quality, and sized, so that one may write on it without blotting. The typography is at once neat and legible, and the whole style of the execution has far more the appearance of London than New York. To show the reader at what a cheap rate a library may be procured through the means of this publication, we may mention that the first number contains the whole of Makenzie's Man of Feeling, a fourth part of Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield; for all of which the price is sixpence. From what we know respecting this novel and laudable enterprise, we have the greatest confidence that the selection of works for the REPUBLIC OF LETTERS will always be submitted to the decision of gentlemen of such standing in literature, as to ensure that only the choicest productions will find a place in it.—Evening Post.

We have intended, as each successive number appeared, to notice this judicious publication. To those who are not apprised of the plan upon which it is conducted, it is merely necessary to observe, that it is a weekly issue of a beautifully printed quarto sheet at six cents a number, each number containing one or more octavo volumes. When it is added that ‘The Man of Feeling,’ and ‘The Vicar of Wakefield,’ two of the finest classics in our language, may thus be had for 124 cents, it will be seen, that both from the true taste and the liberality with which it is conducted, there can be no publication which promises better to diffuse abroad a knowledge of the models of polite literature than the Republic of Letters.—The last number published contains ‘The Tales of the Hall,’ by Crabbe, one of the most vigorous of modern writers. His style, indeed, strikingly original, is often overdone; and his subjects are of so coarse a character as frequently to leave a harsh and unpleasant impression upon the reader, but there is ever a truth to nature in his humblest guise, which renders his minute delineations and skillful dissections of character invaluable.—New York American.

“We have before us the first numbers of the Republic of Letters, a publication of the design and scope of which the reader may remember we took some notice several weeks ago. In these three numbers, each of sixteen small quarto pages, are contained the whole of Makenzie's Man of Feeling, the whole of the Vicar of Wakefield, and more than half of Crabbe's best work, the ‘Tales of the Hall.’ These works in the ordinary shape, occupy four or five duodecimo volumes, and could not be procured at from less than three to five dollars. In the Republic of Letters they occupy three numbers of a paper the size of this journal, as folded for delivery, and are sold at the prodigious low price of eighteen cents. This is making literature cheap indeed, and depriving poverty of all excuse for ignorance. And let it not be supposed that this extraordinary cheapness is attained by printing the work on poor materials. On the contrary, the typography is uncommonly beautiful, and the paper is of a quality much superior to what is commonly used in book printing, even the best Boston editions. It is as white as snow, is composed either wholly, or in great part, of linen, and may be written upon as smoothly and fluently as the sheet on which we are inditing this article, which is on Gilpin's best.”—Evening Post.

“A weekly publication, bearing to the above titles, has been undertaken by Mr. Pearson.—The design of the work is to place in the hands of all the old standard works, which are now generally referred to as the acme of polite literature; a course of reading, particularly followed by those desirous of inculcating a correct taste. The undertaking is deserving, and should meet with a liberal patronage. Each number contains 16 pages of closely printed matter; the typographical execution of which is unsurpassed; the price is only sixpence—being by far the cheapest, as well as most useful publication that has yet appeared. The present number contains Makenzie's Man of Feeling, and part of Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield.”—Evening Star.

“Under this title, Mr. William Pearson has commenced a weekly Periodical, which is certainly the cheapest that ever came to our notice. It is intended to embrace only standard works.—The first number contains Makenzie's Man of Feeling, and one fourth of the Vicar of Wakefield, the price of which is but six cents. The fifty-two numbers, or the years publication, will at this rate, contain some fifty or sixty of the best works in the English language, and cost but three dollars. The paper and typography are besides excellent.”—Courier and Enquirer.
